An attempt was made to prove that Mrs. Casario, the mother, was not of fit character to have the custody of an infant. Evidence of familiarities taken with her was produced, but on cross-examination her attorney, Col. White, developed that this was not an attempt by her to seduce the child, but that she resented. Nothing throwing doubt on her virtue was shown, and the court awarded her the custody of the baby.

SAD CASE OF SUICIDE.

Timothy Woodruff, a Popular and Well-known Citizen, met with a Sad and Suffering Fatal Aberration.

For some time past the family and intimate friends of Samuel Woodruff, familiarly known as "Tim," have feared that he would commit suicide.

On two occasions, revolvers have been taken from him, and last week he was found behind a curtain, at his home, with a rope in his hand, acting mysteriously.

Yesterday morning he was discovered in ending his life by jumping into the river. He was seen by Benjamin Combs, an employe of the Riverside mill, running down over the bank at twenty-five minutes of seven o'clock.

After he crossed the railroad tracks near Hoffman's tannery, he went up to the Riverside wharf, a few yards above Twenty-fourth street. Combs paid no more attention to him.

A few minutes after seven, some men unloading ore from barges at the Riverside wharf, saw Woodruff's body floating in the river. It was in such a position that they could not reach it, but they called the attention of others to it, and it was landed a short distance below the wharf.

Woodruff was a large man, weighing about two hundred and fifty pounds. He came here from Bridgeport, N. J., eight years ago, and was for many years in the employ of the Riverside mill. He was a popular man, and was a general favorite among his acquaintances.

He was a widower, and was married to a woman who died some years ago. He was also a father, and was the father of a young man, who is now in the employ of the Riverside mill.

There is no reasonable cause assigned for his rash act. His home life was of the happiest character, and the only thing that his friends attribute his desire to end his existence was a halcyon dream that he was to become a rich man, and would go to the poor house.

For several years his income has not been nearly so large as formerly, but he was in what most working men would call a comfortable position.

For some time he has been well spirited, and has brooded over the possibility that he might become an object of charity.

He left no communication behind, and the Coroner found nothing but a purse with some change, a watch and chain and a pocket knife in his clothes.

The Coroner is of the opinion that he was not quite dead when he jumped into the water, for the reason that his body had not sunk. His watch stopped at exactly 6:56.

THE BOARD OF COUNTY COMMISSIONERS.

The Board of County Commissioners' Finance Committee met last night and held the annual levy, as follows: General county fund, 50 cents on the $100 valuation; road fund, 25 cents on the $100 valuation; 25 cents. This levy will, it is estimated, produce a revenue just $200 in excess of the estimated expenses for the year.

DISPERSED VICTIMS are numbered by thousands. So are those who have been restored to health by Hood's Sarsaparilla.
