WHEELING, JULY 2, 1891.

The Tin Plate Industry.

Men engaged in the business, and who may be supposed to know what they are talking about, say that all the tin plate that was rushed in to escape the new duty does not amount to more than a two months' supply, so great is our consumption of this useful article.

Not are we to suppose that the British effort to control the American market will stop with these June cargoes. Men who have a good thing do not give it up so easily.

There is an impressive feature of this tin plate question which operates on the side of the British manufacturer. This is the lack of certainty with regard to the permanency of the protective duty.

It may be observed that nobody is afraid that the Republican party will knock in the head this or any other American industry.

Complaining of Convict Labor.

Proprietors and operatives in the great shirt and collar industry in and about Troy complain bitterly of the destructive competition of convict labor.

The demand of these men and women for a chance to live at their trade is not unreasonable. Convicts should not be kept in idleness, but it is possible to employ them without destroying free labor.

Judaism and the Trinity. Rabbi Wise, of New York, has created so great a stir among his co-religionists that he is threatened with trial for heresy, the prevailing religious epidemic.

FRANCE will be at the World's Fair with the whole family. And yet France knows that we as well as herself have a protective tariff.

THE Catholics of Wheeling and vicinity have made preparations for a notable celebration of the twenty-fifth anniversary of Bishop Kain's entrance into the priesthood.

There are too many slavins in this country. Home talent has no chance for honor and wealth. We have plenty of Smiths, to be sure, but they are not all shoulder-hitters.

There is an increasing number of men who kill the woman and then take their own lives. Something would be gained if they could be induced to kill themselves first.

The shorter the life of a short-term order the better for the public interest. While they last there will be people foolish enough to try their luck.

The President has earned the right to shoot off a giant firecracker on the glorious Fourth, but he must be careful that the police don't catch him.

Fifteen Millions of Immigrants. In seventy years more than fifteen millions of immigrants have come to this country. The number who have returned to their lands is inconsiderable.

ers. A policy of restriction has become wise in the light of decidedly changed conditions. This may be selfish, but it is sanctioned by the high law of self-preservation.

A Club Campaign. Mr. Calvin S. Brice, chairman of the National Democratic Committee, is in a state of panic. He sees the Republican clubs at work in some of the States and concludes that the next Presidential campaign is to be a contest between the clubs of the two great parties.

When the Republican club idea was new the Democratic politicians laughed at it as mere fuss and feathers. Presently something hit them hard. It was the Republican club. Then they stopped laughing and began to form clubs.

After that victory the clubs were urged to hold themselves together, to strengthen their several organizations, to promote as far as they could the organization of more clubs.

In effect all the work of organizing them to a point of efficiency must be done anew. There is time enough to do this, but not too much time. An effective Republican club in every school district beginning early and keeping up its work until the closing of the polls would insure the election of a Republican President and sweep in a Republican Congress.

The Outlook in Iowa. Iowa Republicans appreciate the gravity of the conflict in their State, and yet they play again directly into the hands of the Democratic party. The prohibition of the liquor traffic has lost to the Republican party in Iowa much of its normal strength without wiping out the liquor traffic.

The Prohibitionists, without waiting to see what the Republican convention would do, have nominated a State ticket. They are as distinct a party as the Democratic. Yet the Republican convention endorses their chief issue and says again to Republicans who do not approve of the prohibitory policy that unless they wish to endorse it they must again vote the Democratic ticket.

The outlook in Iowa for the Republican party this year is not encouraging.

The Panama Ditch.

De Lesseps can't be much sicker of the Panama canal scheme than the misguided ones who dropped their money in it. The project was either a great fraud or based on inexcusable ignorance. Whatever may be the relation of De Lesseps to the enterprise there can be no question that somebody has pocketed a large amount of money, much of which was drawn out of the stocking saving banks of France by the then magic name of the wizard of the Suez canal.

The friends of old Marietta College will be glad to know that it has just closed a successful year. In recent years the resources of the institution have been much strengthened and the present prospect points to increased usefulness. The commencement last week was the fifty-sixth, and many distinguished men came back to renew their pledge of fealty to their alma mater. The exercises were of high character.

TO-DAY'S INTELLIGENCER supplies another entertaining batch of short-term reading, in which the investors are seen to come out shorter than they were led to expect. It is encouraging to observe that this one concern is folding its tent. The industry it represents is not of the kind we are looking for in West Virginia.

HEER CAHENSLY has kept at it until the Pope does him the honor to sit down on him hard. The Pope is too much a statesman to abet a scheme that would stir up the body of American Catholics. He understands the situation in this country much better than Cahensly seems capable of understanding it.

FRANCE will be at the World's Fair with the whole family. And yet France knows that we as well as herself have a protective tariff. Maybe the tariff will not figure quite so much as the free traders would like to have it. Maybe they are a precious lot of silly billes.

MAX O'RELL is coming to lecture some more to us and write some more about us. Nobody has written more charming absurdities about the United States, so transparent, so good natured. Max is a good fellow to sit up with for a pleasant quarter of an hour.

THE Catholics of Wheeling and vicinity have made preparations for a notable celebration of the twenty-fifth anniversary of Bishop Kain's entrance into the priesthood. THE INTELLIGENCER adds its best wishes for a long life of continued usefulness.

BREAKFAST BUDGET.

In sections of Florida cabbages are being given away for cattle feed, such a drug are they on the market.

Sardou, the great French playwright, writes a hand so fine that it almost requires a magnifying glass to read it.

George Lippert, a Bavarian, having three legs, is under treatment at Bellevue Hospital, New York, for a fracture of his abnormal limb.

In Memphis, Tenn., in forty-eight hours three white women were locked up in the station to save them from imaginary medical students who wanted them for dissecting purposes.

A Saratoga letter tells of a woman there whose hair has turned white in a year from gray to black—its original color. She is seventy years old, and her hair had been gray from early in the '70's.

A cheeky thief in New York stole the bed from the house in which he had engaged lodgings, and was preparing to make off with the bedstead when he was caught. He carried the bed down stairs on his back at 2 p. m.

West Chester, Pa., has a goat that chews tobacco with a relish, and would eat a pound if he were given a chance. He is rather choice of the weed of which he partakes, however, and if a piece is bitten off he will not touch it.

A notice upon the window of a north Georgia postoffice reads: "When you Kum for Yore Male hav Pashuns Know Shootin around the Postoffice duron bunsels ours by order of the Postmaster his sine and Seal Chickens bot on Kommission."

At a forthcoming vessel launching in Venice the ancient custom of christening of the Venetian Republic is to be revived. It consists in attaching a gilt ring to the vessel's prow in such a way by the godmother that when the ship is launched the ring shall be the first thing to touch the water, thus fulfilling the "wedding of the sea."

A burglar, possessed evidently of a queer idea of value, has been operating in Florence, S. C. He carried off two cheap watches and a few worthless rings from a jewelry store, leaving valuable gold watches, diamonds, etc., that were in sight, untouched, while from a drug shop that he entered he took nothing but a bottle each of paregoric and tincture of iron.

The latest "fad" in Lewiston, Me., is telling one's age with a hair. It is not new, but an old fad that has been revived, and it is generally tried on a horse, the hair being taken from the tail, although on human beings it "works just as well." The idea is this: "Suspend a gold ring from a piece of hair over half a glass of cold water, and the ring will begin to swing to and fro until it hits the sides of the glass. It will strike the exact age of the horse, or if it be a person's hair, of the person upon whose head it grew."

The remarkable flight of a carrier pigeon has caused considerable comment among the sporting people of Germany. A few weeks ago a man in Charlottenburg, a suburb of Berlin, sold a carrier to a Londoner. On the second day after his arrival in London, however, the Englishman missed the pigeon. The former owner of the bird was not a little surprised a week later, says the New York Tribune, to see it alight again in his yard. It is almost needless to add that the man will not part with his treasure again.

A correspondent of the Indian Engineering recently witnessed a very interesting mode of obtaining a foundation for a new building. A hole was bored in the ground, which was previously damp, and a string of cartridges was lowered into it. The subsequent explosion not only produced a cavity a yard in diameter but also drove the water out of the surrounding earth by means of the expansive action of the gases. The water did not return to its former place for fully an hour, so that an opportunity was afforded to fill up the cavity with quickly setting concrete, and a rapid rate of working was thus attained.

Workmen, while engaged in tearing down an old building in London, found, under the floor, the skeletons of a cat and a rat. The cat was within two inches of the rodent, an obstruction preventing it from going further when alive. There was nothing to stop egress of the animals by the way they had entered except the cat's disinclination to leave its prey; and so they remained watching each other until overtaken by death. Both skeletons were covered by thick layers of dust, leading to the supposition that they had been there for a long time. The Pall Mall Gazette recounts another such discovery of skeletons that was made in London a long while ago.

The Idea of the Triad.

Rabbi Aaron Wise, New York.

Lastly, He (Jesus) assumed the crown of law, the crown of priesthood and the crown of royalty and revived the dogma of the Trinity, which rooted in Judaism. We can prove that the dogma of the Trinity is of Jewish origin, yes, that it winds, like a red thread, through the whole history of Judaism. The number of patriarchs was reduced to three, although the history of the patriarchs really closed with Joseph. The dogma appears to date back before the time of the patriarchs. In the earliest history of the Bible the first human couple has a trinity of sons, Cain, Able and Seth; Noah has three sons, Shem, Ham and Japheth. Abraham's first sacrifice consisted of a heifer of three years old, a she goat of three years old and a ram of three years old. Three generations had to submit to the oppression of Egypt. Abraham digged three wells—Ezek, Sitnah and Rehoboth—which his son Isaac dug again. Three days lasted the journey to Mount Moriah, and into journey to Mount Moriah, and into three camps Jacob divided his family for the reception of Esau. Three herds he presented to his brother Esau.

The chief buller of Pharaoh saw a vine with three branches, and the chief baker three white baskets, in his dreams, while Joseph in his interpretation referred to three days for the fulfillment of the dreams. Balaam smote his ass three times. During three years the fruits were "unclean." Three stars must be visible before night is officially declared, and three times a day prayers are to be regularly recited. The blessings to be pronounced by the priests in the temple over Israel were threefold; also the saying, "A threefold cord is not easily broken." Israel was divided into three classes—"Cohenites, Levites and profanes." Three crowns are the ornaments bestowed upon worthy men—the crown of the law, the crown of the priesthood and the crown of the royalty. Three days should last the journey the Israelites should undertake under the guidance of Moses. Three days lasted the darkness in the land of Egypt. The number of the "cities of refuge" was also three. Three persons formed a legal tribunal in Israel in civil cases. The divinites at the time of the patriarchs were also threefold, the God of Abraham, the terror of Isaac, Beth-El of Jacob. Also our confession of creed shows a trinity, "Hear, O Israel, the Lord, our God, the Lord," these three form "One." So also popular belief designated the third day of the week as "a lucky one." The pious Jew has three meals prescribed for Sabbath. Three persons authorized to pronounce loudly the blessing over the meals.

NEW YORK FASHIONS.

Wider Skirts—Disables—Dotted Muslins. Gilt Laces—Tennis Suits—Vassar Sailor Hats.

New York, June 29.—The monotony of the sheath skirt, although trimmed in a variety of ways, has brought about a desire for change, which finds expression in a skirt with some fulness in front and at the hips, greatly to the delight of stout persons, to whom the entire absence of gathers was extremely unbecoming.

An attempt has also been made to revive the Princess style, but judging from present indications, it will not prove very successful, as a large proportion of expensive costumes have been made sheath skirt; either with the long coat effect; round basques cut into squares, or short basques slightly pointed back and front, edged with French lace or chiffon ruffles. These pointed basques are very much in favor for China and India silk dresses, and between two lace ruffles on the skirt one of colored chiffon may be placed in harmony with the principal color in the material. The present fashion of putting flounces or facings of colored silk on half worn wool dresses is an economical one, and a ruffle around the skirt and basque, with new sleeves and collar, will change the whole appearance of a dress, if the combination is made with taste. Accordion plaited frills of colored silk or chiffon, put under the tabs of a round basque (just showing from the outside), at the cuffs, and with a full plastron of the same, will render even a plain black silk stylish and effective.

Dimities are more fashionable this season than ever, a leading Broadway house showing fifty-two different patterns. Trimmed with white lace or colored ribbon they make the daintiest and freshest of morning toilets for Saratoga or Newport, and the very small dots or sprigs, are considered more recherche than larger designs. So many beautiful, thin, colored materials are now worn, that white embroidered muslin is no longer stylish, and the antiquated Swiss muslin in dots of various sizes from a pin-head to a silver quarter has been revived, and ceru Swiss with colored pin-head dots and squares, is another attractive novelty. Stylish black nets show the whole surface covered with small dots resembling ordinary veiling, and variety is given by narrow stripes a few inches apart. This material makes up beautifully over black or colored silk and may be trimmed with ribbon or lace flounces, but the simplicity of the costume is best retained by plain rows of ribbon. Nets, forty-eight inches wide and $5 00 per yard, striped with gilt, are very handsome, every alternate stripe being of a different pattern, thus precluding any appearance of sameness. A beautiful novelty is a very sheer net in bow-knot designs scattered over a sparsely dotted surface, and made over a bright chameleon silk, the result is peculiarly charming.

INGALLS' DEBUT

On the Lecture Platform—He Discusses in his Unique Way the Problems of the Day. WASHINGTON, D. C., July 1.—Ex-Senator Ingalls made his debut as a lecturer at the national Chautauqua yesterday. His subject was "The Problems of our Second Century." The first problem which he discussed was the danger of paternalism in the government, and paid his respects in his unique way to the class of people who wanted their debts paid by act of Congress, and who would have money as plentiful as autumn leaves in the forest.

He said that if all the wealth of the United States were to be equally divided now, in six months there would be some people riding in palace cars, some in buggies, some would be walking and some would be sitting in the fence corners watching the procession go by. "Above all," he added, "there would be heard again the voice of the irrepressible reformer earning his livelihood by the perspiration of his brow rather than by the sweat of his brow." If some men were rich and others were poor, it was the fault of the Creator. He would not disguise the fact that the present was a momentous crisis in the history of this country, and that all the forces of demoralization were marshalled for the contest. He had no doubt of the outcome of the fight. There would be in the future a broader liberty, larger opportunities for happiness and greater prophecies for the developments of the nation than the mind of man could now conceive. In the course of his remarks he referred to himself as a statesman out of a job, to the great amusement of the audience.

PLEA FOR ORGANIZATION.

Chairman Brice, of the Democratic Committee, stirring up the Clubs—Urging Immediate Action.

New York, July 1.—Senator Calvin S. Brice, chairman of the national democratic committee, has written a letter of warning and advice to his fellow members of the national committee. The letter embodies advice in regard to the association of Democratic clubs and the necessity of the national committee co-operating with them.

Senator Brice begins with the statement that the presidential contest is near at hand; that the Republicans are rapidly preparing for it, and that the Democrats cannot be too circumspect or too swift in arranging to meet them. The plan of campaign of the Republicans, he says, is a colossal system of clubs to be maintained and supported by unlimited means drawn from the pockets of the beneficiaries of the monopoly policy. This system he urges can only be met by an equally extensive system of voluntary Democratic clubs—that is, an association of people in their several neighborhoods for the defence of their rights and interest against those who are banded to assail them. Mr. Brice says the truly Democratic club has been the friend of liberty. The tendency at this time of the people of the United States, to enroll themselves together in neighborhood organizations of this character, is one of the signs of the political perils which confront them.

He thinks that the approaching struggle is to one mainly between clubs, and it is greatly to be desired that a uniform and perfected system of Democratic societies thoroughly organized and in intimate association with each other shall be established before the beginning of next year.

Mr. Brice says he has examined the plan of organization now in process of successful accomplishment by the national association of Democratic clubs, and he feels it the duty of every member of the national executive committee to give the club association his most hearty support, and he urges each member of the national committee to co-operate with the association to the fullest extent.

Mr. Brice concludes as follows: "An important feature of the plan is the selection of correspondents in the several States. This now requires urgent attention in your State. I would, therefore, ask you to confer with the chairman of your State committee and arrange soon as may be convenient and arrange this part of the plan; also that you will do all in your power to facilitate the organization in other ways you may think best."
