Baron Duffie and His Wife Create a Social Sensation.
THEIR MARRIAGE A FAILURE
And Each Blames the Other for Being Hot-tempered and Jealous—She Threatens Him With a Carving Knife—New York Society in a Flutter.

New York, July 7.—All Harlem was set agoz yesterday by the information given in the Herald that Baron Daniel Pelton Duffie had left his wife after a married life of less than three years. The cause of the separation as alleged by both husband and wife is incompatibility of temper, attempt at life and brutality.

It was on the evening of the last day of October, 1888, that Miss Adele P. Miner, the eighteen-year-old daughter of John D. Miner, a very wealthy builder living at No. 60 West 131st street, stood at the altar of St. Andrew's Episcopal Church, then at 127th street and Park avenue, and was claimed as the bride of Baron Daniel Pelton Duffie, of Livingston, S. I. It was a brilliant wedding and the church edifice was filled with fashionable people of Staten Island and this city.

THE DUFFIE JEWELS.
It was a wedding that was long talked of, for it was known that the bride wore a tiara of diamonds which contained something like 300 gems. It was only one piece of jewelry of many that had been in possession of the Duffie family for scores of years. The Duffies, and their way, are of French lineage, and their ancestors were pre-revolutionary settlers of Staten Island.

There was the usual wedding trip extending through several weeks, and then the return of the supposedly happy couple to this city. Baron Duffie is credited with the possession of great wealth, and most rightly, too. He is but twenty-nine years old and holds within his hands titles to a vast estate at Livingston, S. I., besides any amount of property in this city.

Harlemites did not open their eyes or wonder a bit when upon the return of the couple it was announced that the groom had purchased a handsome four-story brown stone residence at No. 149 West One Hundred and Twenty-first street.

It was considered the most natural thing in the world, and there were young lady acquaintances of the pretty bride who looked with envious eyes when they saw the latter installed in a handsome house with exquisite furnishings.

WONDER AT THE ANNOUNCEMENT.
There was not the faintest breath of suspicion that happiness did not reign within those walls. Little wonder, therefore, was it, when the Herald stated yesterday that the couple had agreed to separate and had gone to their respective former homes, that Harlemites and Staten Islanders opened their eyes and feigned unbelief. To-day the brown stone house in West One Hundred and Twenty-first street stands depleted of its rich furnishings, and the sign "To Let" hangs out to the winds.

It is now known that happiness left the Duffies three days after the wedding. They were then in Washington. The time of the first quarrel is agreed between the parties, but as to the cause thereof they differ.

yer, John C. Gulic, of No. 132 Nassau street. She said her husband's temper was something fearful, and her doctor could testify to the marks and bruises on her body.

CAPE MAY POINT, N. J., July 8.—A breeze that whipped the ocean into white crested waves greeted the President when he arose this morning. A CRAZY CHICAGOAN.

Terrible Plight of Dr. John Baptist Brown, a Windy City Spiritualist.
New York, July 6.—An elderly, gray-bearded, neatly-dressed, but wild-eyed man entered the Church street police station Saturday and told the sergeant on duty that he had been robbed of a gold watch and $300 in money in a lodging house in Greenwich street. Ward Detective Carey was detailed to accompany the man to the place, as the latter said he could not recall the number. They went to several lodging houses, each of which the stranger said he was positive was the right one, but the proprietors of which denied emphatically that they had ever seen him before.

During their walk the stranger told the detective that his name was Dr. John Baptist Brown, a physician of Chicago. In a rambling and incoherent way he added that he was a Spiritualist. He had, he said, materialized over sixty spirits of the illustrious dead, and had converted upward of one thousand persons to Spiritualism. He had been in a trance since coming to New York Wednesday last, and when he awoke Saturday found his valuables gone and the door of his room locked on the outside.

The detective became convinced that the man was demented, and on their return to the station house so informed the Sergeant, when it was decided to lock him up. On being searched a pistol and a long dirk knife were found in his pockets. He explained his having them in his possession by the fact that his life had been threatened by the Anarchists of Chicago, who were tracking him to kill him.

Detective Carey took the man to the Tombs Police Court yesterday, where Justice O'Reilly committed him to the custody of the Commissioners of Charities and Correction for examination.

Constable Charles Minnayer was here Monday and yesterday looking for the young man Bowers, who got away from him after being arrested for robbing Charles Wilson, the butcher. As yet his whereabouts are unknown. A street car driver named J. W. Riley, of Monroe county, assaulted and insulted Mrs. Louis Laroche, and was sent to her home by Superintendent Rodewig to apologize for his rudeness to the lady. The matter was talked over, and one word brought on another, until Mr. Laroche being called in, a fight ensued. The driver was knocked down and terribly whipped for his insolence, but during the scuffle he used a knife to good effect, cutting a brother of Mr. Laroche's, who stepped in to take a hand. Young Laroche was badly cut on the arms several times. Superintendent Rodewig, of the street car line, then interfered and took the driver to the lockup. He was released on Rodewig's going his bail, but was afterward re-arrested and locked up on the cutting charge. The racket all took place within a few seconds, in the shoe store of Laroche, in the Fourth ward, but it created quite an excitement for a little while and was the talk of the town. Mr. Laroche is a member of Council. Riley is still awaiting his trial. Warrants were sworn out for the Messrs. Laroche and Mr. Mitchell, a neighbor who took part. They appeared and were released, subject to a call at any time.
