YESTERDAY BY CAPT. DELBRUGGE.

He Confesses his Crime-Other Happenings in Police Circles Yesterday. Mrs. Stauver bought a Ticket to Baltimore-A Boy Swindler,

Chief of Police Delbrugge left Wednesday night for New Castle, Pa., to get Moreina Bobert, alias Andy Smith, who is accused of stealing $200 from a roll of $400 hid in a bustle, and belonging to Mike Romania, who missed the money July 1, 1890.

In June, '90, Mrs. Romania, in talklex about her money in the presence of Pobert, said nobody knew where it was hid. He bet her $5 he could find it if it was in the house, and he afterwards untched her so closely that he saw her go to the bustle. When she left she took $200, and hid it in the stock house at the Top mill, among the coke and ore, and for the purpose of creating the im-pression that rats had carried off the among he tore up a lot of old paper as if the rodents had chewed it up to make Bobert and several companions were Robert and several companions were visiting at New Castle, and he made a statement of the case, saying he had afterwards written a letter to friends here confessing the theft and telling where the money was hid. This was true.

Bobert had accumulated some money and was building two houses in New Castle, Joing part of the carpenter work leads to be being a carpenter.

When arrested he expressed his willingness to come to Wheeling without trouble, but a local lawyer persuaded him to refuse to come without a requihim to refuse to come without a requisition. Chief Delbrugge was expected to arrive in New Castle yesterday, but he got there the night before, and he and the local police persuaded lobert to come on with him. When his lawyer called yesterday to show him how to obstruct justice Bobert was here in the county jail, where he was sent for a hearing at 10 a. m. to-day. He trankly confessed the whole thing to consider his situation very serious.

Bobert is a Polander, aged about thirty. When the money was missed an old Hungarian and his young son were arrested for the theft because they seemed to have a pretty large sum

WHOLESALE SHOE STEALING.

Another Case Quickly run down by the Police.

It seems strange that two Main street shoe merchants should have been made the victims of continued petty thefts, but they were. Yesterday Joseph Hasenauer informed the chief of police that he had been robbed of at least seventeen pairs of shoes, he did not know just how or when. Suspicion was directed to two women, both named leatzell, one of whom lives on North Market street and the other in Fulton, astevening Chief Delbrugge and Officer Terrell visited both houses, and with faitful results. The North Wheeling Mrs. Beitzell, after denying the theft for some time, finally admitted her guilt. Her daughter said she had stolen four pairs on Wednesday, and that she had en stealing shoes since Christmas, been stealing shoes since Christmas, seiling them for $1.50 a pair. The girl, who is about fourteen years old, often sold shoes for her mother. She said her cousin, John Beitzell, of Fulton, had also stolen four pairs. In the Fulton house were found a lot of new towles, suspected to have been stolen somewhere. This opens up a wide field of possible operations, which will be inquired into. inquired into.

Neither woman was arrested, for the reason that neither was in a condition to spend the night in jail. They will both be apprehended this morning,

THREE THIEVES IN JAIL Five Young Men are Accused of stealing

The same evening they arrested James T. Sheillin, and he was sent to jail by Squire Davis. Sweeney and Sutton have since been captured, and are also in jail. Johnson is believed to be in hiding somewhere about the city, and Dixon, known as "Nigger," is said to have gone away. Johnson will probably be rounded up in a day or two.

A Precoclous Swindler.

It has been reported to the police that a small boy, apparently ten or twelve years old, has been working a nervy confidence game about town with success. He claimed to be a son of Charles Kettler, the Eighth ward shoe charles Kettler, the Eighth ward shoe dealer who was recently burned out, and represented that his father was rendered destitute by the fire, and needed financial assistance. A number of parties contributed liberally. The boy's story was pure fabrication and Mr. Kettler does not know him.

THE RETURN SADDENED BY DEATH.

Members of His Congregation Treat Him Handsomely and Remember

Him With Substantial Kindness-His Trip-Ready to Begin Work Next

Rev. Dr. D. A. Cunningham and wife arrived in this city yesterday afternoon from a two month's trip through Scotland. Dr. Cunningham's home coming was saddened by the news of the death of his niece, Mrs. Dwight C. Moore, of Wilkinsburg, Pa., which was first learned by himself and wite when they landed in New York, on last Saturday. Mrs. Moore was reared in Dr. Cunningham's household and was almost a daughter to him. When he left for Europe, one of the last friends he saw was Mrs. Moore, and at that time she was well and happy and surrounded by her interesting family. To return and hear of her death was in deed a sad blow, and it took away much of the pleasure which they would have felt at returning to their native land. It had been the intention of Dr. Cun-

It had been the intention of Dr. Cunningham's congregation to tender him a hearty and joyous welcome upon his return, but the knowledge of the death of his nicce, made that seem an impropriety, and the matter was dismissed from their minds.

When Dr. and Mrs. Cunningham arrived in the city to-day they were met at depot by a number of the gentlemen from the congregation of the First Preserve.

When they arrived at home, they found many evidences that they had not been lost to the minds of the congregation while they were away. On the mantle shelf in the reception room was an envelope addressed to Dr. Cunningham, containing the following very kind letter: WHEELING, W. VA., Sept. 3, 1891.

DEAR DOCTOR CUNNINGHAM:—At meeting of gentlemen of your congregation held a few evenings since, it was the manifest desire to give you and Mrs. Cunningham some expression of the feelings of your people, upon your re-turn among them, by a public reception in which all could join to give you welcome; but the sad dispensation, of which you could not know until your arrival, awakened feelings of sorrow in the hearts of all, and forbade the thought

As a committee of and for your people, we wish to express their tenderest sympathy in the sorrow which touches you so deeply, add pray that the sustaining grace of Him "who doeth all things well" may comfort you.

In your journeyings by land and by by sea, the thoughts and good wishes of your people have followed you and the oft repeated prayer for your safety has fallen at the mercy seat.

We are grateful too in that your were permitted once again to visit the land of the patriot, the preacher, the Christian martyr, a land full of interest to those of our Presbyterian faith.

We rejoice that the kind hand of that Father you love and trust has led you safely your journey through, and brought you back again, re-invigorated for the Master's work. It is your people's hope that you may long go in and out before them, in the future, as in the past, faithfully to break unto them the bread of life. A number of members of the congre-gation called last night and expressed their delight at the safe return of their pastor.

An INTELLIGENCER reporter called on the doctor. He said they had a most delightful journey both ways, the trip going out being the smoothest and most pleasant of any of the half dozen voyages Doctor and Mrs. Cunningham have made. Their stay in Scotland was full of interest, and though it was the third time they had visited that country, they were able to find something try, they were able to find something new and interesting to them every day.

They heard sermons by a number of distinguished clergymen and Dr. Cunningham, at the request of friends, preached several times while there. preached several times while there. They spent a week with Rev. Dr. Stalker, who was Dr. Cunningham's guest here last winter, and who delivered a lecture in Wheeling on "How to Read the Bible." The weather during their stay was very pleasant, but so cool that on every day but one while they were there, heavy wraps were necessary, and in all the time, it rained only on two days. They were just in time for the strawberry and cherry season, stepping from the close of the season on one continent to the beginning of the season on another.

While Dr. and Mrs. Cunningham were in Edinburgh, Mr. Frew and Mr. Campbell called on them, and the four Wheeling people and a number of relatives of the family with whom Dr. Cunningham was visiting, spent several hours very pleasantly discussing their trips. Dr. and Mrs. Cunningham came home a week sooner than they had in-tended because the rush of returning tended because the rish of returning tourists made it impossible to secure steamship accommodations for a month unless they came when they did. They returned on the steamer City of Rome, which, on that trip, carried 1,584 per-
