NOTES ON THE GROUNDS.

Tips and Pointers from the Horsemen and Other Gossip. This is public school day.

There was not a ripple of disorder yesterday. The weather indications for to-day are favorable.

Some side races inside the course caused amusement yesterday. The country people voted the balloon ascension a success and promised to come again.

The World's Fair Commissioners took in the fair after their meeting to get "pointers."

The dry goods stores will all close Thursday afternoon to allow the clerks to attend the fair.

There were a dozen narrow escapes from serious accidents yesterday, but no harm done by any.

WORLD'S FAIR COMMISSIONERS.

Meet and Discuss the Plans for the Building—No Decision Yet Arrived at. Yesterday at noon the West Virginia Board of World's Fair Commissioners held a meeting in the Chamber of Commerce hall, over the Public Library.

Messrs. W. N. Chancellor, J. S. Naylor, George M. Bowers, and Sidney Haymond were present. Capt. R. S. Carr, the remaining member of the board, was not present, but is expected to-day.

Chairman Chancellor called the meeting to order, and the plans for the West Virginia building at the World's Fair were taken up and discussed. No decision was arrived at, and the board adjourned to meet in the evening at the McClure House.

At eight o'clock the gentlemen came together again, in the parlor of the McClure, and took up the discussion of the plans without arriving at a definite decision. Accounts were audited, and the procuring and distributing of World's Fair literature was talked about.

THE GAS SUPPLY.

Mr. George Heard, of the Company, Interviewed by the Intelligencer. On Monday Mr. George Heard, secretary of the Natural Gas Company of West Virginia, called upon Dr. Campbell, chairman of the Council committee on health, and Health Officer Spragg and informed them that it would in all probability be necessary to shut the gas off from the crematory, as the supply was insufficient to keep it and the water works going and supply the household consumption at the same time.

He also called upon members of the water board and gave them the same information. There was considerable flurry in the two departments on account of this statement and the ordinance governing the matter was read and re-read.

Mr. Heard was interviewed by the Intelligencer yesterday on the subject. He said it was not a matter of dollars and cents nor of sentiment, but purely a physical fact. No matter what the company might desire to do, it could not furnish the gas needed.

The company's supply was short last winter and will be shorter this winter. It has succeeded in getting very few good wells and all of them are failing.

The water board and health department were notified as a precautionary measure. No time for sluttling off the gas was named, but it was simply stated that it would be impossible when cold weather comes to supply the water works and crematory and the household consumers. This notice was given early so that arrangements for other fuel might be made.

"It is merely a question of gas, and we will deliver it when we have it to deliver, beyond which point, as a matter of course, we cannot go, and we have no doubt that the citizens of Wheeling will take that view of the matter."

THE EDISON LIGHT.

The Local Company Organizes—A Good Board Chosen. The first stockholders meeting of the Edison Electric Light, Heat and Power Company of Wheeling was held last night in the new Chamber of Commerce rooms. This is the company which proposes to introduce the Edison system here.

The low-pressure wires used are to be underground. The incorporators are Messrs. Alex. Mitchell, George E. Stifel, John M. Birch, Gibson Lamb, Henry Speyer, Robert Simpson, George Adams, W. A. Wilson, J. A. Miller, R. W. Hazlett, H. M. Russell, R. T. Devries, H. Sterling, M. L. Ott, August Rolf, John Young, A. J. Cecil, F. J. Hearne, B. Fisher, N. E. Whitaker, H. C. Franzheim, William H. Hearne, Thomas O'Brien, C. M. Frissell, R. M. Gilleland, J. K. Hall, George W. Woods, Edwin C. Ewing and D. E. Stalnaker.

There was a very fair attendance, and the talk was all encouraging. Col. Thomas O'Brien was called to the chair and H. C. Franzheim chosen secretary. The following gentlemen were chosen to the Board of Directors: Dr. R. W. Hazlett, Messrs. Robert Simpson, Aug. Rolf, N. E. Whitaker, W. H. Hearne, Alex. Mitchell, Ran Stalnaker, H. M. Russell, George Adams, W. A. Wilson and Dr. C. M. Frissell.

Later the board organized by electing Dr. R. W. Hazlett, president; Alex. Mitchell, secretary, and the president, Ran Stalnaker, and W. A. Wilson, the executive committee. The members were all appointed a committee to secure the franchise from Council, and Messrs. Russell and Hearne a committee to draw up an ordinance granting such franchise.

The names of those interested make the project look very much like business.

EVA IS A FAILURE.

Robert Ray Hamilton's Alleged Widow Quits Barnstorming.

HER COMPANY BECAME STRANDED.

After a Very Brief Engagement—The People Didn't Care to See Her Parade Her Disgrace and the Show Didn't Draw—She Had to Pay the Board Bills of Her Company After the Performance.

SHAMOKIN, PA., Sept. 8.—The theatrical company in which Mrs. Eva Mann was the central figure came to grief in this place Saturday night. It is not likely that she will parade the stabbings of Nurse Donnelly before the public any more, although Manager Cole says that the Philadelphia engagement will be filled. The company was to have played at Williamsport to-night, but the engagement has been cancelled, as have all others in country towns.

The combination left here for New York. One of the actors told the Reading ticket agent that after the tickets were purchased there was ten cents left. Had not Mrs. Mann given $20 to help pay board bills it is probable that some of them would have had to walk home. This was the fifth and last performance. On the day before the company swooped down on Pottsville. Two hundred persons composed the audience, and, if reports are true, the company had "hard luck" there. A few of the men were assaulted by bystanders in a saloon for objecting to derogatory remarks about Mrs. Mann. Saturday morning the troupe arrived in Shamokin. A big crowd was at the station to get a glimpse of Mrs. Mann. She was heavily veiled when she got off the cars. She was escorted to a hotel near by, and had noonday lunch served in her room. The company rehearsed in the afternoon, but Eva stayed in her rooms enjoying a novel. She was rudely disturbed by an enterprising boy, who begged permission to sell her photographs to the audience in the evening. The adventuress flew into a rage and drove the boy from her room. She said that the newspapers had paraded her face entirely too much to suit her.

Soon after this the manager wired Charles Gardner of New York, the backer of the venture, that money was needed to pay expenses. No answer was received. Gardner had told Cole that he would stand all expenses as far as Pottsville, and if the nightly receipts were not large enough to make it go after that the company would have to manage for themselves. Cole assembled the company in the parlor and informed them of the facts. They eagerly awaited nightfall. When the curtain rose 100 people were scattered about the theatre. On the appearance of Mrs. Mann a few gallery gods applauded in derision. She was very pale and trembled. She spoke in a low tone and the prompter came to her aid frequently. When she was entering the cottage in which the stabbings was to occur, she half faced the audience and fell back into the arms of her leading man, out of sheer nervousness. During the remainder of the play she acted into an aimless manner. Before the show ended several people had left the hall.

The most annoying part of Eva's trials began after she had regained the hotel. Manager Cole told the night clerk that the company was in a fix, and that there was not enough money among the crowd to pay the bills. The clerk aroused the proprietor, who told him to get all the money he could, and that to harbor them another day would mean that much more expense. Mrs. Mann reluctantly opened her purse and gave the $20. Manager Cole was asked why he had been attacking the play so savagely that it ruined the house in each town. Every paper, big and small, had "roasted" them. He added: "Mrs. Hamilton has laid no pretense to acting. She thought that her reputation would draw big houses."

Since the night Eva played the opening engagement in New Jersey she has viewed with complacency the diminishing crowds in each theatre, but when the final crash came she wept bitterly. When the company registered yesterday Mrs. Mann's residence was omitted. During the day some one supplied the words, "Trouton Prison." Eva was very indignant when informed of it, and had them erased.

BRIDGEPORT.

Current News Items from the old Town across the River.

W. J. Howells, of the Etna Iron and Steel Company, returned from the East on Saturday last, and left last evening over the Baltimore & Ohio railroad for Chicago. Mr. Howells has a host of friends here who will be glad to hear that he has improved rapidly and nicely from his recent severe and critical illness, and is on the way to permanent and entire recovery.

It was hoped that the electric cars would be running across the new bridge, but as yet they have not been started. The wires are being put up through Etnaville, and everything but the connecting line of track through that place is now nearly ready for the cars.

Dyspepsia

Few people have suffered more severely from dyspepsia than Mr. E. A. McMahon, a well known grocer of Staunton, Va. He says: "Before 1878 I was in excellent health, weighing over 200 pounds. In that year an ailment developed into acute dyspepsia, and soon I was reduced to 102 pounds, suffering burning sensations in the stomach, palpitation of the heart, nausea, and indigestion. I could not sleep, lost all heart in my work, had fits of melancholia, and for days at a time I would have welcomed death. I became morose, sullen and irritable, and for eight years life was a burden. I tried many physicians and many remedies. One day a workman employed by me suggested that I take Hood's Sarsaparilla, as it had cured his wife of dyspepsia. I did so, and before taking the whole of a bottle I began to feel like a new man. The terrible pains to which I had been subjected, ceased, the palpitation of the heart subsided, my stomach became easier, nausea disappeared, and my entire system began to tone up. With returning strength came activity of mind and body. Before the fifth bottle was taken I had regained my former weight and natural condition. I am today well and I ascribe it to taking Hood's Sarsaparilla."
