WHEELING, OCTOBER 3, 1891.

Afraid of Their Own.

Mr. Flower and the rest of them on the New York Democratic ticket are beginning to fear that they may lose votes by reason of the prominence of Tammany in the campaign. What else could they expect?

Tammany ruled the convention and named the candidate. Is Tammany to take a back seat now and allow its rivals to step in and enjoy the usufruct in case of victory? It is not that kind of a Tammany.

If the candidates were sure of a victory they would not be worried, but the strong probability of defeat with the Tammany Tiger growling for the spoils so loud that his voice can be heard the State over, is what gives them pause.

The Tammany boss, Mr. Richard Crocker, does not view it in this light. If Tammany was good enough before the convention it must be good enough now and to the end. He recognizes that this is Tammany's fight and his organization cannot afford to be sidetracked. That would be interpreted as a repudiation of Tammany, and its influence outside of the city of New York would be at an end. Tammany seeks to lord it over the State and the country as it does over the city.

Mr. Flower and his associates on the ticket are in a bad box, but they were glad of a chance to get in it and will have to abide the consequences.

Advice to Farmers.

Ignatius Donnelly, president of the Minnesota Alliance, is a blunt statesman. He urges the farmers to hold their wheat, which may or may not be a good thing as the market happens to go. They may sell anything and everything else they raise, but hold their wheat.

If they cannot sell enough to meet their requirements Mr. Donnelly advises them what to do. He would not have them borrow money on the wheat they withhold. That would require the payment of interest, and gentlemen of his way of thinking regard interest paying as an outrage on the man who pays it.

Mr. Donnelly's plan is simpler—"stand off your creditors." He does not say how long they are to be stood off, but probably until the wheat shall be sold, whenever that may be.

Nor does this able financier say how the creditors, who presumably are not all bloated bondholders, are to manage during the stand-off period. Maybe they could try their hands at standing off, and if they failed they could go to the wall and bad luck to them.

If they are not farmer creditors they have no business having farmer debtors. If the creditor should appear with the sheriff as his next friend that might complicate matters, although if the farmers have "pull" enough the sheriff would not dare to take a hand in working out the problem.

It is very easy to see that Mr. Donnelly is a man of ideas and fertile in expedients.

Gov. Campbell Has an Idea.

The Steubenville Star has this to say of Gov. Campbell's speech in that city: "One of Campbell's best hits was about the tin plate factory. He said he had chase it out of Ohio and over into Pennsylvania and soon would have it in Wales where it belonged."

This is the Democratic idea. The tin plate industry belongs in Wales—anywhere but in the United States. The Democratic position is that we do not and cannot make tin plate in this county.

To establish the industry among us, to give employment in this country instead of in Wales, to add that much to the farmer's home market, would be to prove that the Democratic party is ignorant or vicious, and to prove either or both would be to prove that the Democratic party is not worthy of the public confidence.

This important fact has been shown many times—on every important question for the past thirty years—but to prove it again and at this particular time in the good State of Ohio would leave Gov. Campbell high and dry beyond the hope of rescue.

Foreign Building Associations.

One of the western building and loan associations got into Pittsburgh to the extent of $92,000 shares sold and $30,000 paid in. Now the shareholders refuse to pay any more and demand the return of their money on the ground that the company has broken its contract with them. There was a local board—to help the sale of stock—but that did not amount to anything, the parent company being master of the situation.

This is not the first disappointment that has resulted from foreign building associations. They invade a field with a gaudy prospectus and smooth-tongued agents, and make the people believe that they have special facilities for a profitable building and loan association.

Building associations have helped every community in which they have been properly managed, but these are the home associations, in the hands of men known to the shareholders and chosen by them, their money being lent on real estate which all the shareholders know about.

The foreign building and loan association with its promise of quick and enormous returns is a delusion at best, and may be a carefully planned fraud. The man who keeps out of it will not lose his money in it.

Too Good for This World.

A New England farmer who had an abundant apple crop went into executive session with himself to know what to do with it. There were more apples than he could use and he feared they would be converted into the delusive cider if he sold them. He called in his pastor and a lay brother and among them they decided that the dangerous fruit should be consigned to the mill pond.

With the help of a hired man who regarded the proceedings as a sacrilege they stripped the trees and consigned the apples to a watery grave. The miller may have lost his religion when he heerd the apples pounding in the buckets of his mill wheel, but the good men had registered their solemn protest against cider and an abundance of good apples and were content.

If we only could know exactly what the Lord of the harvest thinks of this performance we could judge better of the punishment that will be inflicted on him for being the foolish man that he is. The same intemperate zeal would keep a conscientious man from growing fruit of any kind, corn, rye, hops or barley, but it might be well to watch him in a horse trade.

The Methodist Conference Seminary.

By dint of zealous effort the Methodists of West Virginia have erected at Buckhannon a fine building for the higher education of their youth of both sexes. The institution is well officered and already shows good results. Last year was its first, and the roll of students was over two hundred. This was phenominal success. But the seminary is not yet able to stand alone.

It is carrying a debt of about $20,000, a heavy burden for a young school. The conference now in session could not do a better thing for its denomination, for the seminary and for the State than to lay out a plan of campaign that shall insure at once enough money to discharge the indebtedness of the Conference Seminary and put it on a solid basis.

The Methodists of West Virginia are a numerous and powerful body, well able to give their institution of learning the chance it should have to be strong and useful. The history of Methodism demonstrates that when it undertakes a good work in earnest it does not fail.

THE Emperor of Austria has not been doing anything of late to attract attention, while all the other crowned heads have been keeping themselves before the public. A little dynamite on a railroad track which went off without doing any particular harm, serves to remind the world that His Majesty of Austria continues to do business at the old stand.

FITZSIMMONS is wildly supposed to be lurking near Pittsburgh, and the people of that lively city don't go to sleep until they have looked under the bed. Fitzsimmons is a power in his way.

THE Itata is to be released, and this probably will be the last we shall hear of a vessel that was nothing in itself and yet might have made a mighty bobbery.

THIS is New Year's Day of 5652 according to the Jewish calendar. The INTELLIGENCER wishes its Jewish friends many happy returns.

THE warm weather is playing a game of hide-and-seek this year. It has come out of its corner again in full blast.

PERSPIRING weather in Wheeling, snow in Montana. Are we not a great and varied country?

BREAKFAST BUDGET.

A tramp walked into police headquarters in Hoboken, N. J., Monday, and placed four fifty dollar bills on Sergeant Rathgen's desk. "I found these on the railway track," he said, "and though I am poor, I hand them up because they may belong to some one who needs them as badly as I do." The Sergeant was astonished at this display of self-sacrifice and honesty on the part of the tramp. He discovered, after inquiry, that Freeholder John Coyle had dropped them out of his pocket.

A 3-year-old daughter of Jacob Ziger, of Findlay, O., fell to the bottom of a 45-foot well, containing five feet of water, Tuesday. The mother, looking down the well, could faintly see the child with her head out of the water clinging to the pump-stock. The little one saw the anxious faces looking down at her, and called out: "Me 'ants to get out." A big basket was lowered, into which the child climbed, and was pulled up. She was uninjured, with the exception of some slight bruises and a scalp wound.

"Not the least among our Maine industries," says the Kennebec Journal, "is that of picking blueberries to supply the various packing houses in the eastern part of the State. Washington county has done an unusually large business the past season—some families having received from $200 to $400 as the result of the summer's work. A single day's receipts in the packing houses in the vicinity of Cherryfield have often run up as high as 1,000 bushels."

A flock of about thirty quail astonished the residents of Beech street, Springfield, Mass., the other morning, by making themselves very much at home around the premises. They lighted on adjoining fences and neighboring roofs, but apparently found most delight in hovering about an apple orchard. They were not disturbed. The evening before a girl living in the neighborhood caught one of the young birds in her hand, but released it.

The people near Marblehead, Mass., are becoming interested in the mysterious digging which has been going on in the Wyman woods for some weeks. A ditch has been dug running east and west, 150 feet long, from five to eight feet deep and six feet wide. The work has been done at night and no one seems to know who has been doing it. It is thought, however, that parties are hunting for hidden treasure.

A dispatch from Mechanicsburg, O., says: "O. C. Hupp owns a bantam rooster which every night crows punctually at 9 o'clock. It will carcely vary thirty seconds either way from the time. The rooster is a veritable town clock in its own section, and its punctual manner of using its voice creates much comment and amusement."

The Congregationalist tells of an erring church brother in Vermont who got up in open meeting and made the following confession: "Brethren, my conscience compels me to confess that when boiling down my sap this spring I put into the kettle two buckets of water and sold the sugar at the same price as that made from pure sap."

An electrical journal tells of the construction, by M. Trouve, of an electric walking stick of which the knob consists of a small electric lamp in a thick glass bulb, the battery being two cells of a peculiar shape down the cane itself. The lamp gives sufficient light to read a newspaper in a train, or to light the bearer up stairs at night.

Dredgers working in the Tiber to prepare for the construction of a new embankment have brought up a magnificent ancient Roman bronze helmet. It is perfectly preserved and is decorated with bas-reliefs. Signor Rossi, the Italian archeologist, assigns it to the second century before the Christian era.

In laying the foundation-stone of a new church the other day, Stewart Clark, exM. P. for Paisley, made himself responsible for a rather curious kind of climax. Having occasion to refer to a certain seventeenth-century divine, he described him as having been "not only a credit to the name of Christianity but a credit to Scotland!"

The fig is a wonderful tree for sending down its roots in search of moisture. According to the Oroville (Cal.) Register there is a gigantic fig tree in the yard of E. Tucker, of that place, the roots of which have filled the bottom of his well, which is thirty-two feet deep.

A Youngstown (O.) ministerial widower married again, and so soon that the churches felt scandalized and none of them would have him for a pastor. The only thing to do with him was to promote him to be presiding elder and this was done.

Quong Yo Ick, a Chinaman, who has all the advantages of a first-class education, has recently married an Indian woman of the Soughies tribe, and they will enter the field as missionaries of the Methodist church, to which they both belong.

A clergyman in England in an earnest address to his parishioners advocating the establishment of a cemetery asked them to consider the "deplorable condition of 30,000 Englishmen living without Christian burial."

The only pauper in Tucker county, W. Va., is handsomely lodged. The poor farm cost $9,000 and he has it all to himself.

THE GAME LAW.

Adopted at the Recent Extra Session of the Legislature.

By request we publish the following amendment to the game laws, as passed by the last Legislature:

Sec. 11 of chapter 62 of the code enacted so as to read as follows:

It shall be unlawful for any person in any place to catch, kill or injure, or to pursue with such intent, any quail or Virginia partridge, between the 20th day of December and the 1st day of November following; or any wild turkey between the 1st day of January and the 15th day of September; or any ruffled grouse, pheasant, primated grouse, prairie chicken, between the 1st day of January and the 1st day of November; or any blue winged teal, mallard or wood duck, or any other wild duck, wild grouse or brant, at any time between the 1st day of April and the 1st day of October; or any snipe except between the 1st day of March and the 1st day of July, or any woodcock, except between the 1st day of July and the 15th day of September. And it shall be unlawful for any person at any time to catch by seine, net or trap, any Virginia partridge. And it shall be unlawful for person, by the use of any pivot or swivel gun, or any other than the common shoulder gun, or by the aid of any push boat, or sneak boat, used for carrying such gun, to catch, kill, wound or destroy, or to pursue with such intent, upon any of the waters, bays, rivers, marshes, mud flats, or any cover where wild fowls resort, within this State, any wild duck or brant.

BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS taken after eating will relieve any feeling of weight or over fulness of the stomach. Sold everywhere. DAW
