

GOSSIP ABOUT BLAINE

Aroused by the Postponement of the Canadian Conference.

SUSPICIOUS OF THE MINISTRY

Which Rules the Destiny of Our Northern Neighbor—His Friends Believe That He Will Show His Hand Regarding the Presidency on His Return to Washington.

New York, Oct. 5.—The Sun publishes the following from Washington: The action of President Harrison in suggesting to the Governor General of Canada that the conference on the subject of the trade relations of the United States and Canada, which was set for October 12, be postponed, owing to Mr. Blaine's ill health, has aroused much comment in Washington. This is the second postponement of the conference, the first having followed the arrival of the Canadian commissioners in Washington. Mr. Blaine's ill health was one of the reasons given for the first postponement also, and the opponents of his nomination to the Presidency now declare that he never will be able to meet the Canadian representatives or to return to Washington. Blaine's friends, however, insist that he is not ill to other public duties, but that he does not wish to come back to Washington until after the regular frosts have set in and dissipated all danger of malaria, so prevalent here at this time of the year.

But whatever is the real condition of Mr. Blaine's health, this second postponement of the Canadian conference has given rise to all sorts of rumors of a political nature. The State Department officials profess to see no particular significance in the President's action, but the politicians outside the department are not so willing to believe that Mr. Blaine's illness is the sole reason for deferring the meeting with the Canadians. It is said that the Secretary has decided that he will have no conference whatever while the present Canadian Ministry is in power, and that the suggestion for a postponement really means that all negotiations are off so far as the Harrison administration and the existing Canadian administration are concerned. Mr. Blaine, it is said, has often expressed the belief that the Dominion government were not sincere last spring in their professed desire to study the question of commercial reciprocity between the two countries with a view to reaching a basis for harmonious and mutually beneficial action, and that the partial discussion of the subject which did take place was used in an unfair manner by the conservatives in the recent Canadian elections. In a word, it is said that Mr. Blaine regards the present ministry with grave suspicion, and that he means to let them severely alone.

The discussion of any subject with which Mr. Blaine's name is even remotely connected leads at once to speculation and gossip by the Washington politicians and officeholders as to his future political intentions. His friends take heart whenever they hear that he has delayed his return to Washington, for each day that he remains away adds, they think, to the postponement of the time when he must inform the public whether he is to be a candidate for President or not. Blaine's friends, as well as his opponents, are beginning to feel that the day when he shall return to Washington must be the day when he will show his hand. It is generally believed that he cannot remain a member of the cabinet during the coming winter, while the issues for next year's fight are being made up, and allow his friends to remain at work in behalf of his nomination. He must leave the cabinet soon, it is thought, or else inform the President and his friends that he will under no circumstances be a candidate, and that he will frown upon the efforts of his friends to create sentiment favorable to his nomination. Therefore, the Blaine men fear that should Blaine resume active duties at the State Department he will first give President Harrison the welcome assurance that the truck is free as far as "the man from Maine" is concerned.

This feeling that Blaine must declare himself before the meeting of Congress is plainly growing, and is reflected by the opinions of the congressmen and other politicians who have been in Washington in such large numbers lately. An opinion that is a fair sample of this kind is that of Representative McKenna, of California, who called on the President yesterday. California is always regarded as a Blaine State, and yet Mr. McKenna says that it is absurd to suppose that Blaine can remain longer in the Cabinet without giving the President the assurance that he does not fear him as a Presidential possibility. For Mr. Blaine to return to his Cabinet duties after his long absence, during which he has been so conspicuously mentioned as the first choice of the Republican party in various parts of the country, would, the California Congressman thinks, be ungracious and unmanly in the extreme, and is confident that the President already knows that he has no cause to fear the popularity of Mr. Blaine.

Vapor Poison and Its Antidote.
The morning and evening mists that pervade the atmosphere of malarious localities cannot be breathed with impunity. A safeguard is needed to render harmless the dangerous miasma with which they are impregnated. The surest, safest defense is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. It is an antidote to the poison which has already been inhaled and borne fruit, an adequate preventive of its harmful effects. No preparative for breathers of miasma tainted air or drinkers of malarious poisoned water like the Bitters. It completely neutralizes the otherwise irresistible onset of the malarial fever, settles on newly-cleared land, excavators of canal routes (notably that on the Isthmus of Panama), western pioneers and emigrants—in short, all subjected to malarial influences in air or water find in it a benign remedy, an effectual safeguard. Disorders of the stomach, liver and bowels, "la grippe," rheumatism and kidney complaints are remedied by the Bitters.

Mr. William Hocher, of Martin's Ferry, a glass-blower says: "My head and eyes would stop up, I had very severe headaches and pains through my temples and in the back of my head. I had a buzzing and roaring noise in my ears continually. I could feel the mucus dropping back into my throat, which kept me having and raising to clear it. My sleep was restless and broken. I would not get up mornings actually more tired and worn out than the night before. My work was a drag and my life a positive burden. "I was in this condition when I first called on Drs. COPELAND & BELL, after reading so much of their noble work. After examination I thought they understood my case, and finding their charges so very reasonable I decided to place myself under their care. I don't believe I ever made a better resolution in my life. I have improved from the start under their treatment and I can heartily recommend these gentlemen as competent physicians, and their method of treatment most pleasant and effective.
