

"LAND BILL" ALLEN

Must Not Be Left to Die in a County Poor House.

AN APPEAL TO THE GRATITUDE

Of the Public in Behalf of the Author of the Homestead Law--He Spent a Fortune and Almost a Life-time in the Interests of the American Workingmen and is Now in an Alms-house--Thousands of Happy Homes Due to His Efforts--Will Their Occupants Permitt Him to Die a Pauper?

Some weeks ago the INTELLIGENCER published a dispatch which will bear repeating. It tells a simple, sad story of the ingratitude suffered by a noble philanthropist at the hands of the people who owe him so great a debt. Here it is:

"Special Dispatch to the Intelligencer. COLUMBUS, OHIO, Sept. 30.--"Land Bill" Allen, author of the homestead law, and the greatest friend to the wage-workers, was to-night taken to the county infirmary to end his days. He is eighty years old, and spent his life in the interest of workingmen and women. He spent his own time and money addressing meetings, until at last Congress passed the national homestead law, giving every actual settler 160 acres of land. He spent a fortune in the cause, and was left to die without friends or money."

The INTELLIGENCER has, since the publication of the above dispatch, taken occasion more than once to refer to the matter and to the necessity for some action looking to the relief of Mr. Allen, and it is with pleasure that the following communication on the subject is published. The suggestions contained therein will no doubt be received with favor and the appeal met with a ready response:

"Sir:--Some days ago we wrote a letter to the Enquirer, of Cincinnati, and asked it to receive contributions for the benefit of "Land Bill" Allen who is now an inmate of the Franklin county, O., poor house. In calling the attention of the public to the ungrateful treatment that this man is receiving and in offering to head the list of contributors with a certain amount to begin on, we had hoped that ere this other papers and other men would have seen the necessity of immediate action in this matter and would have offered to help us. But no, even though the Enquirer very kindly published our letter, yet, in a personal letter to us, it says: "We would not care to take charge of a subscription unless it could be seen that the public was showing enough interest in Mr. Allen to give reasonable assurance that it would be a success."

In this the Enquirer seems to think that public opinion and public philanthropic action should outline the course of the newspaper world and not that the press of the country should mould public opinion, or even call the attention of the public to the necessities of suffering humanity. John Howard Payne sang of "home," but "Land Bill" Allen builded homes. Payne was homeless and a wanderer while living, but the philanthropic Mr. Cochran builded a guided monument to his ashes and to his rags. Some day the public spirit of some future millionaire will perhaps erect a cold white marble column to the memory of "Land Bill" Allen, but this will not make the mortification and suffering that he endures now grow any less. Some time the children in a thousand palatial homes will be taught to love and reverence the name of "Bill" Allen, but this will not lessen his sensibility to the cold wind that blows to-night, and that is perhaps chilling to the very death the body, soul and heart of old, but still brave, still patriotic, and still homeless "Land Bill" Allen. The world at large seems to care nothing for its benefactors. Those that offer us salvation we crucify. One who has spent more than fifty years of time in behalf of the once homeless working men of the country certainly deserves something better than the poorhouse.

The father of the agitation and legislation that has dotted the great west all over with happy homes and pleasant firesides surely ought to be provided with, at least, a comfortable shelter, enough to eat, a place he could call "home" and a decent place to die. Almost everybody looks back with the kindest feelings upon the place they once called "home." Reader, has a kind providence blessed you with a home? If it has, we beg of you; yes, you who are now reading this, to go down in your pocket and, for the sake of justice and humanity, contribute something, if it is only ten cents, to help buy homeless "Bill" Allen a home. And some day, maybe not in this world, but, perhaps, just over on the other shore in that bright land of the dead, you, my dear reader, will receive your reward.

We asked the Enquirer to receive subscriptions, with the result as stated above, and now and here we ask the INTELLIGENCER to do the same. Knowing that it is a paper in sympathy with the "great common people" we trust it will grant our request. The uncertainty of life and the fickleness of fortune ought to teach us to extend the hand of charity to those less fortunate than ourselves.

I have written the above unsolicited, and no connection of Mr. Allen's, know neither his religion nor politics, never had any business with him, never saw him and never knew him only by reputation. Knowing what we do of him, however, we would have thought it a sin to have kept silent. The writer has no personal axe to grind in this matter and the purest motives of charity. Thinking, however, that justice and not charity demand that something should be done for Mr. Allen, and done now, he has ventured these suggestions, trusting that they will be read, considered and acted upon. Feeling that the world is our country and that to do good ought to be our religion, I am,

Yours, very truly,
O. D. HILL.
Kendall, W. Va., Nov. 18, 1891.
Papers that feel kindly toward Mr. Allen will please copy.
[Any subscriptions sent to the INTELLIGENCER office for the above-named humane purpose will be duly acknowledged and properly applied.--Ed.]

MRS. ROBERT DOWNING, Known on the Stage as Eugenie Blair, talks interestingly to a Reporter.

The Downing company came over from Martin's Ferry last night after the play there. The train on which they came from Lancaster, O., was delayed so that the performance did not begin until 9 o'clock. After the play a reporter had a pleasant chat with Mrs. Downing, who is Eugenie Blair, the star's beautiful and accomplished leading lady.

"We lead a very quiet life, retire immediately after the evening performance and arise at 8 o'clock in the morning," she said. Mrs. Downing is a fine dresser. Her taste is exquisite and she makes a study of color and harmony. Unlike most ladies of her profession, she does not use cosmetics on the stage. She has a clear, fair skin, which she does not abuse by means of cosmetics.

"How came I to go on the stage?" repeated Miss Blair. "Well, my mother was an actress, and I grew up with the stage for my ambition. My mother was Mrs. Ella Wren Blair, a Southern woman, and my father, Captain Charles Blair, was a Confederate soldier and cousin of Francis P. Blair, who ran for vice president with Seymour. My mother was leading lady with John McCullough. My first appearance upon the stage was when I was still a school girl. I immediately went back to school, where I remained three years longer. Seven years ago I became leading lady with James O'Neil, playing in 'Monte Cristo.' I had never seen Mr. Downing when I entered his company. I was engaged by his manager, and never laid eyes on him until we began playing. Six weeks after we began playing together we were engaged, and six weeks later we were married. We know very few professional people. We spend our summers at our own home, Edgemoor, four miles from Washington."

Here Miss Blair produced some views of their pretty home, wherein not only their house and grounds were pictured, but various horses, handsome carriages, dogs and other pets.

"Handy Andy" at Westwood's Hall. To-morrow evening the two-act comedy, "Handy Andy," will be presented at Westwood's hall by a company of picked amateur artists, with Mr. A. T. Ray in the title role. Mr. Ray is a funny comedian, and has already gained fame in the impersonation of the rollicking Handy Andy.

The other characters will be filled as follows: Squire Egan, Charles Ray; Squire O'Grady, Carl White; Mr. Murphy, Fred Stathlers; Dick Dawson, Fred Steinbecker; Mr. Furlong, Charles Burt; Edward O'Conner, Bert Bowman; Simon, C. Burt; Ferrell and McQuade, tot pads, H. Brown and C. F. Jones; Onah Rooney, Miss Ada Campbell; Mad Nance, Miss Nora Bowman; Fanny Dawson, Miss Mary Ray.

Between the first and second acts a musical olio will be performed. A quartette, composed of R. V. Arkle, C. Clemens, H. C. Stewart and Charles Zulauf, will sing, "Come Where the Lilies Bloom." Miss Daken will play a violin solo and James Quinn will sing a comic song. The entertainment is under the auspices of Stephens Post, G. A. R., and the Womens' Relief Corps.

CHANGING THE TROLLEYS, A Gang of Men at Work All Night--One of Them Gets a Shock. Last night two gangs of men were at work, one with the new patent extension platform wagon and the other with a high platform on a truck, changing the wires so that pole trolleys can be used on the electrical road exclusively. The wires were changed down as far as Fourteenth street on both Main and Market, and men with pole trolleys met the cars there and substituted them for the old rope trolleys on each trip, and after running around the loop the ropes were replaced till the next trip. The entire line will be changed in a day or two and the loose trolleys will then be a thing of the past. About one o'clock this morning one of the men working on Market street at Fourteenth, thinking the power was off the wire, caught both wires in his hands. To use his own language, he was shocked so hard he "couldn't holler," and his hand was burned pretty painfully but not seriously. Coming so soon after the serious burning of John Reining, mentioned elsewhere, the accident made the linemen a little timid.

A WHEELING BOY Who is Winning his way to Fortune in the Far South--A Rare Record. Howard Atkinson, who has been visiting his parents in this city for the past two weeks, left last night for his home in New Orleans. Lawrence McLain accompanied him to the South, with the probable view of locating and going into business. Mr. Atkinson claims that New Orleans is a thrifty business city and very desirable place to live. He will return again for a Christmas visit.

Howard had had a varied career since he left home, and is now a successful business man, the owner of a tow boat, and filling a lucrative contract for the removal of garbage from the city. He holds license papers as a pilot, mate, engineer and master, and before he attained his majority, had filled all these positions under permits. He has made several sea voyages, visiting South and Central America and almost circumnavigating the globe. For his age he has certainly won his way to the fore with remarkable success.

His best cure for rheumatism or neuralgia is Sulfur Oil, used according to directions. 25 cents.

The news from the seat of war is constantly contradictory; but not so from Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup; every report concerning it proves it to be the best Cough Syrup known. Only 25 cents a bottle.

A LIVELY EXPERIENCE

Out at Laurelton, on the W. & L. E. Railroad, Saturday Night.

DRUNKEN HUNS RAISE A GREAT ROW.

Shooting and other Diversions Grow out of a Charge of Stealing, and the Foreigners and Native-born Miners Engage in a War--Cool Heads Prevent a Lynching Bee.

A miner employed at the Laurelton coal mines was in Martin's Ferry yesterday and told of an exciting time among the miners up there last Saturday evening. Windows were broken, one man hit with a club, a shot fired at another, threats of lynching were heard, seventeen Huns were discharged and several skipped.

A silver watch and chain were stolen from a Hungarian. A native-born miner was accused of taking it. Several Huns got drunk and started to clean out the village. They broke the windows and doors in several houses occupied by Americans, struck one young man on the head with a club, shot at another, both harmless, sober men, and carried on high generally. This created considerable excitement and enraged the American-born miners, who organized a band of fifty or sixty and would have probably lynched several drunken Huns had it not been for the managers of the mines and other cool-headed citizens and law-abiding men. On Monday the riotous Huns and those with whom several boarded, numbering seventeen, were ordered to vacate the company's premises, and several were discharged.

Fearing that they would be arrested and severely dealt with, three of the leaders skipped on Monday. The native born miners all laid off that day, thinking that the excited Huns might kill their families and burn their property.

Some meanness is manifest in Laurelton, because it is believed that the trouble is not over.

Laurelton is a mining village on the Wheeling & Lake Erie railroad, ten miles from Martin's Ferry. About 275 men are employed in the mines there.

A Promising Fair. The fair and festival to raise funds for the purpose of furnishing the recently completed addition to the North Wheeling hospital, which is to be given under the auspices of the ladies of the Cathedral congregation, will open in the old Donaldson, Lewis & Co. carriage factory building next Monday night, November 23, and continue till Thursday night, November 25, inclusive. The building, or rather the hall in the second story, is admirably fitted for the purpose, and Father Sullivan remarked yesterday that it was a mystery to him that the people had not discovered it before. It only lacks a convenient and good entrance, and this fault is being remedied by the construction of a broad stairway leading from the open way in the middle of the building, formerly used for a carriage elevator. The place will be decorated profusely and artistically, and will be a place of beauty when the committee gets done with it. A number of attractive features have been arranged for the fair, and there is no doubt as to its entire success.

The Best Scheme Yet. The device taken by Business Manager Mills, of "His Nibs, the Baron," to attract attention to his attraction, is one of the most successful, apparently, ever tried in Wheeling. If all the people who have sent in topical verses to compete for the $5 gold piece offered for local stanzas of the topical song, "There is nothing in it," go to the theatre Monday evening to see if they have won, the audience will be of at least fair size. Manager Riester is getting specimens of "poetry" in two languages, English and profane, by every mail, and if the thing keeps up long, he will be a pretty fair master of the latter language himself before the contest is settled.

White Cross League. Quite a number of boys from twelve to sixteen years of age met at the parlors of N. W. Beck, at No. 32 Thirteenth street, and organized the White Cross League. The boys were addressed by Dr. Hattie B. Jones, and the following officers were elected: President, Harry Craig; vice president, Robert Erskine; recording secretary, Clyde Taylor; corresponding secretary, N. W. Beck, Jr.; treasurer, Harry Jamison; sentinel, Leon Frank.

A Wheeling Man Honored. At the annual meeting of the railway porters of the United States and Canada, held in New York City on the 15th, 14th and 15th inst., George W. Brunswick, a well known colored man of this city, was unanimously elected chairman of the arbitration committee. The New York World says: "This is one of honor as well as duty, and as Mr. Brunswick has served the organization in every capacity, he has merited this just recognition."

Two Things In Regard to Catarrh. 1st, It is a Constitutional Dis case; 2d, It Requires a Constitutional Remedy.

These two facts are now so well known to the medical fraternity that local applications, like snuffs and inhalants, are regarded as at best likely to give only temporary relief. To Effect a Permanent Cure of Catarrh requires a constitutional remedy like Hood's Sarsaparilla, which by purifying the blood and imparting healthy tone to the affected organs, does thoroughly cure.

Read this from Mr. P. B. Stout, a well-known merchant and lumberman of Sheridan, Ind.: "I want to say for the benefit of suffering humanity, that Hood's Sarsaparilla is a permanent cure for Catarrh. After suffering with catarrh in my head for a number of years, and using every obtainable remedy, I was requested by our druggist, Mr. C. E. Elliott, to take Hood's Sarsaparilla. I did so, and after using three or four bottles I am healed of the most annoying disease the human system is heir to."

An "A No. 1" Man. "The above testimonial is from an A. No. 1 man of wealth and influence." C. E. Elliott, druggist, Sheridan, Indiana. "I have used Hood's Sarsaparilla for Catarrh and received permanent benefit from it." J. F. HURNBARD, Streator, Ill.
