WHEELING, FEBRUARY 11, 1892.

REPUBLICAN CLUBS.

Call for the Annual Convention of the State League.

The fourth annual convention of the Republican League of the State of West Virginia will convene in the city of Parkersburg, Wood county, at 12 o'clock noon, TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 23, 1892.

Each Republican club in the state is entitled to be represented by five delegates.

It is requested that the election of delegates be held and a list thereof be forwarded to the Secretary of the State League at Parkersburg, W. Va., as soon as possible.

Full information as to the rates of transportation will be published as soon as the necessary arrangements can be made.

HENRY C. FLEISHER, President. R. ALEXANDER, Secretary.

THE approaching contest is rendered especially important by reason of the industrial and financial policies of the Government being at stake.

What is it, then, that disturbs our able cotemporary? This is it: "If the house passes a free coinage bill it makes free coinage an issue in the campaign of this summer and fall, and commits the Democratic party," the tariff issue will be excluded and the Democratic party will be defeated.

The INTELLIGENCER would be sorry to see the tariff issue excluded, for that issue will contribute largely to the defeat that is in store for the Democracy; but the Times takes another view and is therefore in a state of weeping over the strong probability that the Democratic party will provide the Republicans with a silver club with which to do terrible execution.

These be troublous times for Democrats and Democratic sympathizers who believe in a dollar worth one hundred cents.

The Garrote's Clean Work. The four Anarchists who were put in the deadly clutch of the garrote in Madrid yesterday are said to have died the instant the brass collar was snapped on them.

The principle of protection to American industries and American labor is incorporated in the acts of our first national Congress by fixing a tariff upon foreign manufactured articles.

A man of Mr. Atkinson's knowledge must certainly know that this is in substance the act and that these taxes were levied by our first Congress, not for "protection" to American industry or for the benefit of American labor, but to raise much needed revenue by indirect taxation.

"A man of Mr. Atkinson's knowledge" has probably informed himself on the history of the subject he is writing about, a method of inquiry which might be commended to the Register if that were worth while.

The First Congress of the United States organized April 6, 1779. The first act of that body provided a form of oath to be taken by officers of the government.

WHEREAS It is necessary for the support of the government, for the discharge of the debt of the United States, and for the encouragement and protection of manufactures, that duties be levied on goods, wares and merchandise imported.

President Washington signed this act appropriately on July 4, 1779, and it was hailed with general rejoicing as being another Declaration of Independence.

The Union had taken the place of the abortive Confederation. Political independence had been gained by the valor and the blood of the colonists.

Congress determined to declare for industrial independence. It declared that this first of its acts was, among other things, for "the encouragement and protection of manufactures."

The Register, coming along more than a hundred years later, says the act was not for protection, and finds fault with Mr. Atkinson for agreeing with the men who passed the act.

If there be "falsity and absurdity" here the Register is entitled to the full credit of the invention. It would be idle to engage in a discussion of a question with a disputant who begins by trying to cut away its historic foundations.

The Register's arguments and its history are of equal quality, and are entitled to equal respect.

Our free trade friends should not allow these things to set them mad so early in the campaign. Protectionists intend to force the fighting all along the line and to make things uncommonly lively on the tariff issue.

The Democratic party is thoroughly identified with free trade, and protectionists do not intend that the people shall lose sight of the identification.

The better the people of West Virginia understand the question the heavier the vote they will poll for the defense of the industries they have and the establishing of more. It is this thought that fills the Democratic politicians with a hopelessness akin to despair.

For Blaine Men to Consider.

As the INTELLIGENCER has been something of a Blaine man itself, it feels at liberty to say a fraternal word to those Blaine men and Blaine newspapers who are trying to make out of the great leader's letter something it does not mean and was not intended to be understood to mean.

First and most important of all, has Mr. Blaine been in the habit of saying one thing to his party and wanting his friends to think he meant the very opposite of what he said? Has it been his custom to seek by indirect means the accomplishment of his purposes? When he has desired a presidential nomination has he not said so? When he did not desire and did not intend to take a nomination, has he not said that he was not a candidate?

He has a fertile imagination who can suppose that Mr. Blaine has something to gain in the way of securing a nomination by writing the letter he has written. He knew he could have the nomination without going to the trouble of putting a two-cent stamp on it.

Those of Mr. Blaine's friends who take second thought will not pay him the poor compliment to try to twist out of his letter a hint to go ahead and appear to force the nomination on an unwilling man.

Mr. Blaine has his own reasons for declining, and nobody has a right to embarrass him by keeping up an agitation in his favor or in some other behalf under cover of an ardent and irreconcilable Blaine preference.

Alarmed for its Friends.

The New York Times asks the business men of the country if they appreciate what it is they are threatened with in the proposed silver legislation. The Times says it is worse than idle to await events merely because President Harrison would veto the measure and there is not majority enough to pass it over his veto.

If the matter would end here the Times might find some comfort in the veto, since that would for the time preserve the country from the ruin which the Times predicts would follow free coinage.

What is it, then, that disturbs our able cotemporary? This is it: "If the house passes a free coinage bill it makes free coinage an issue in the campaign of this summer and fall, and commits the Democratic party," the tariff issue will be excluded and the Democratic party will be defeated.

The Swiss government proposes to buy up all the match works in the country, and make matches a government monopoly, similar to that of salt and tobacco in most countries of Europe. A Swiss savant is said to have made a discovery by which he reduces salt to a dry powder in such a manner that by the addition of water it at once assumes all of its natural properties.

Coral was made use of by the Romans as a protection against the evil eye, and popular superstition has credited the topaz with the power of depriving boiling water of its heat.

While a man was lecturing in Chattanooga, Tenn., a few nights ago to husbands and urging them to treat their wives better he was arrested on the charge of bigamy.

At a party in Mexico, Mo., last week the ladies were dressed to represent the titles of novels, and the gentleman guessing the largest number was awarded a prize.

The latest victim of the whipping post in Delaware chewed tobacco while the sheriff was wielding the cat, and left the post with a broad grin on his face.

The health officer of Philadelphia has been directed to prosecute 130 clergymen for a fine of $10 for each of 412 marriages that they neglected to report.

Under the new tariff in France the Frenchmen must pay double the price they have formerly been charged for their vin ordinaire and their beer.

There are 800 public baths in the city of Tokio, Japan, where natives are parballed at a temperature of 110 degrees for a sum equivalent to one cent.

The first machines were pieces of wood about six inches long, tipped with sulphur. They caught fire easily from a piece of flint.

A hole one-one-thousandth of an inch in diameter can now be bored through a diamond, sapphire, or a ruby.

Naturalists have enumerated 657 different species of reptiles. Of this number 400 are as harmless as rabbits.

There are said to be 20,000 kinds of butterflies, of which two-thirds are named.

Some insects are in a state of maturing thirty minutes after birth.

MORNING SMILES.

After the Hallelujah Chorus: Clara "I never saw such a friendly choir. They stopped right in the middle of the anthem this morning to speak to me."

Aunt Huldah—"I didn't notice it, my child." Clara—"But they did. I wore my new cloak to church for the first time, and as soon as I came in the choir sang 'Hardly knew you, hardly knew you,' two or three times."—New York Tribune.

Heard in a Library—"I want a good, new novel to read, without any psychology or philanthropy or any social conundrum or a bit of dialect." "Well you'll have to wait till the spring trade to get it. There's none this winter."—Boston Transcript.

Judge Greynick—"Ah, Patrick! Patrick! And is this the way that you keep the pledge you signed on New Year's day?" Mr. McGinty—"An' faith yer honor, an' Oi thought it would kape all the bitter for a little spirits!"—Boston Courier.

nor Flower said "Rats!" when the New York business men called on him to talk about the World's Fair. "Flower and Rats!" would be a taking campaign cry.

One of the lessons of the Hotel Royal disaster is that an electric alarm from the office to every room in a hotel is a necessary protection. Every hotel should be compelled to give its guests this show for their lives.

Mr. BLAINE says it is "an infernal lie" that he is going to leave the cabinet. Those who have objected that his English of late has not been quite plain enough will probably understand this.

The Blaine matter being settled, the gossips feel under a solemn obligation to break up the cabinet once more. This is much more agreeable to them than sawing wood.

The silver bill is on its way rejoicing—and the President has a club ready for it. This may prove to be very fortunate for the country.

BREAKFAST BUDGET.

Harrisburg, Conn., has a grove of trees from which musical sounds come during a wind. In September, during what is known as the equinoctial storm, this strange grove is heard. Then, above the howling of the wind, the roar rises and falls like the moaning of 10,000 lovatians in the agonies of death.

Four hundred hairs of average thickness would cover an inch of surface. The blonde belle has about 140,000 filaments to comb and brush, while the red-headed beauty has to be satisfied with 88,000; the brown-haired damsel may have 100,000; the black-haired but 102,000.

A Leipzig scientist has demonstrated by facts and figures what most people have always believed, that colds are often caught by those who wrap themselves up and avoid the severity of the weather than by those who dare to brave the elements.

The custom of keeping birthdays is many years old. It is recorded in the fortieth chapter of Genesis, twentieth verse: "And it came to pass the third day, which was Pharaoh's birthday, that he made a feast unto all his servants."

The first ingot of nickel steel to be used for the manufacture of armor for the United States navy was cast in a mold weighing fifty-six tons. The ingot weighed 90,000 pounds. This armor plate will be used on the Maine.

In future each soldier of the Belgian army will carry on his person a small bone disk, which will contain his name, birthplace and regimental number, so that the holder can be readily identified in case of accident or death.

AFTER THE GRIPPE,

The Grippe Responsible for More Deaths After Recovery Than During its Course. How to Avoid the Danger.

Grippe, in itself, is bad enough, debilitating enough, but it is the after effects, the slowness of recovery that give it its great danger. In most cases, the person did not have sufficient vitality to rally after the disease itself had passed. The forces of nature were too weak to contend with the debility which the Grippe had left.

It is sad to think how many people have died who might have been saved if nature had been properly assisted and fortified after the Grippe had been driven from the system. Many physicians realized this fact, and assisted their patients over the dangerous after effects by bringing up and stimulating their systems. This, and can be done in but one way and that is by the steady and moderate use of some pure yet powerful stimulant. There is but one absolutely pure and medicinal stimulant known to the profession and to the public, and that is Duff's Pure Malt Whiskey.

The most prominent scientists and physicians of the land endorse its purity and value. It is not a new whiskey, it has been before the public for years. It is not a cheap concoction, but a pure distillation. It imparts a tone to the system possible in no other manner and sends the blood coursing through the veins with renewed vigor. It is superior in every respect and however much any unscrupulous druggist or grocer may seek to lead you to believe to the contrary do not be deceived.

WOMEN'S WAYS.

A member of Sorosis tells of her trials with a servant named Adeline. I gave a little afternoon tea, and Adeline arrayed in a new bib and tucker, was intrusted with the important task of serving the milk and sugar. She behaved herself admirably for some time, but finally I was obliged to call her attention to a group in one of the alcoves that she had steadily ignored. "Adeline," I whispered, "ask them if they have been served with milk and sugar."

"Yes," she replied, and lifting up her voice she wailed: "Mrs— wants to know how you 'ro'll for sweetnin' in that air corner!"

A widower with children married a divorcee who also had children. They now say, "We have five children mostly about twelve years old." This equals the old story of the second wife who said to her second husband, "Your children and my children are quarreling with our children. Make them stop."

One of the handsomest presents received by the empress of Russia when her silver wedding was celebrated was an ermine mantle which cost $50,000. It was a gift from the nobility of the provinces of Kleron, but was made in Paris.

Princess Victoria Kaiulani, the heir presumptive to the Hawaiian throne, is a girl of sixteen years, who is now studying in England. She expects to "finish" her education at an American women's college.
