

THEY MADE THE MONEY,

And they told where their molds could be found out in Ohio.

THOSE THREE COUNTERFEITERS

Arrested over at Bridgeport last Friday give the United States Officers some valuable information--Who the Three Men Really are--Not old Criminals.

It is very probable that the three men arrested over at Bridgeport last Friday on a charge of making and issuing counterfeit coin are not old and "elke" professional criminals, as was at first thought. It is almost certain that the man known as Morton, who escaped from jail at Bellaire the other day, is one of them, and he is not the "smooth article" that he has been represented to be.

The men told the jailer at St. Clairsville that if Capt. George W. Robinson, the Deputy United States Marshal of this city, would come to the jail, they would give him some information of value. He went out, accompanied by Capt. Abbott, of Cleveland, an agent of the secret service, and interviewed the men in the jail. They asked that they might be allowed to have a talk together, and after consideration this was allowed. They talked a good while, and at last told Robinson that they had decided to tell where they made the money, and where the molds and other appliances they used could be found.

They said that their headquarters had been at Canal Dover, Ohio, where two of them were employed in a mill. A short distance from Canal Dover a Mrs. Brady keeps a boarding house, and in it one of the prisoners, named Mulligan, has a room. In that room were two molds for making silver dollars, with a tin box, a small quantity of whitening and a little metal. In the yard of the next house toward Canal Dover, in an outhouse, was concealed another mold for dollars, and some other requisites of the business.

Capt. Abbott left at once to investigate the truth of this story.

Mulligan is the right name of one of the men. The name "Nickabob" printed Saturday is evidently a mistake. The man called Nickabob gave his name as MacLeroy. Whether this is his right name is not known. He and Mulligan both worked at Canal Dover, both being sheet rollers, and both formerly working in the Etnaville mills.

Thomas Mullen was one of the names given by the men when arrested. This man has one alias for every year he has lived. He says now that his right name is Thomas E. Tennant, that his home is at McKeesport, Pa., and that he has an uncle here named Frank Lake. Tennant is the man "Morton," who was arrested at Bellaire for snatching a roll of money from a drover's hand, and who mysteriously disappeared from the lockup at Bellaire early one night. He had a big beard. He is now known to have come to Wheeling, where he was met by friends, who took him over to Martin's Ferry, and there early next morning he had his beard shaved off. MacLeroy has been recognized, by people who know him as a well known crook named "Cub" Bolen, but others say there is no real resemblance. Morton has been spoken of as too smart to be caught with counterfeit money in his possession, but the fact is that he had the bad coin, and the other two did the work of getting rid of it. Mullen is said to be the really bright member of the combination nevertheless. He is possibly playing the simple dodge. It is a question whether the men are amateurs caught early in their career, or old-timers who realize that they are in for it and hope by making a show of innocence to get off lightly. It is ten to one, however, that they are simply bad men who thought it would be easier to make money with plaster molds and a ladle than by honest work in the mills.

A DROWNED MAN FOUND.

A Floater Caught up at Wilson's Station Yesterday--A Missing Man.

Yesterday forenoon Henry Youngman found the dead body of a man in the river at Wilson's station, up the river. The body seemed to be that of a young man, fairly well dressed, but it had been in the water a good while and it was impossible to recognize anything about the features.

Crowner Phillips was telegraphed for and went up. After holding an informal examination he decided that the man had been accidentally drowned. It is supposed that he fell off some boat on his way up or down the river. On his person was a letter addressed to Mike Watson, and signed by Joe Gilson, of Bradlock, Pa. There was also a letter of introduction to J. F. Howell, asking him to give Joe Norven and four other men work, and signed James Abriola & Co., a letter instructing a ticket agent to pass six men for the Peach Orchard Coal Company, a ticket for deck passage from Pittsburgh to Sandy, a dollar and twenty-three cents in coin, a silver maltese cross with a German inscription on it, and a silver open-faced watch and silver chain.

Yesterday Chief of Police McNichol received an inquiry from Thomas Dempsey, of Mingo Junction, Ohio, as to the body found on the Ohio side of the river the other day. He says that his brother is missing and has been for some time. He had been in the asylum, and was sent home to see how he would behave. He disappeared, and it was thought that perhaps this was his body. The description he gave did not tally with that of the drowned man found at all, however.

PREPARATION SERVICES

For the Lord's Supper, at the First Presbyterian Church.

WHAT THE POWER FROM ON HIGH IS

Ably Explained by Rev. A. B. Marshall, of East Liverpool--Much Interest Manifested in the Meetings, and a Large Audience Attends.

The preparatory services for the Lord's Supper, which is to take place at the First Presbyterian church on Sunday, March 27, began yesterday evening. The lecture room of the church was well filled with an attentive audience, and in Mr. Marshall's sermon much interest was manifested. Mr. Marshall will address the meetings every evening until Friday evening inclusive; next week, at least in the first part of the week, Rev. Dr. Alexander, of St. Clairsville, and in the latter part of the week Rev. Dr. William Lester, of West Alexander, will preach the evening sermons. For yesterday's discourse Rev. Mr. Marshall took for his text the twenty-fourth chapter of Luke, forty-ninth verse: "And behold, I send the promise of my Father unto you; but tarry here in the city of Jerusalem, until ye be endued with power from on high." "We have all noticed times," said the preacher, "in the life of every church, when the pastor and the members seem to be especially gifted for

THE SERVICE OF CHRIST.

"There are other times when the minister seems to be saying a lesson, rather than revealing a grand message from on high; along the lines of christian endeavor the work seems to be ritual, and appears to be dead. In all our lives there are times when we seem to be able to almost grasp the hand of God; when we open the word the word speaks to our hearts and brings a blessing with it; we meet some person not of Christ's kingdom and when we say we wish they had a place therein the tears come to their eyes, and they are immediately ready for conversing on spiritual things. There are other times when we go to this one or that one and speak of christian life, and they hear us unmoved. When we look over the church we see some ministers who seem to stand head and shoulders above others, and are singularly gifted in preaching the word of God.

"There are various explanations given for this well known fact, but I think there are none so good as these: Unless power from on high be given us, we are like Samson shorn of his locks, we are like a tree in winter, before it has budded forth, and our work in the Master's kingdom profiteth little. Referring to the time indicated by the reading of our text, we know that then the church organized by Christ had life, had organization and had officers; but the one thing lacking was

THE POWER FROM ON HIGH.

It was like a boiler filled with water, ready to do its work, but with no fire to turn the water into steam and to move the engine. And knowing this the members of the church waited for the fulfillment of the promise of the Redeemer."

Here Rev. Mr. Marshall made a digression and picturesquely described the feelings and actions of the disciples, while waiting for the fulfillment of Christ's promise. How they gathered in their little room, on the Thursday following the ascension, and waited for the power from on high; how every day thereafter their meetings were held, and with what disappointment they must have been filled, when their prayers were not heard. When the Lord's day came around they remembered that on this day He had always been with them, and on this day, they thought, He would send His messenger. But He came not. "I think I see them now, kneeling there in astonishment, perhaps in gloom. They have been thinking when the Lord must come; in a sense they have been dictating to Him, just as we do sometimes in praying to God. But at last they see that it is not for them to say, when the Lord shall keep His promise, and finally, come to a sense of their presumption, they pray to God that He shall fulfill his promise, when it pleases Him best. And, lo, on that Sunday morning a sound as of a rushing wind fills the room; tongues as of flame appear, and the disciples speak to every one that comes in in his own language. The men who crucified Christ fall down and cry: 'What must we do, that our sins be remitted us?'

WHAT DID THE DISCIPLES GET,

that they did not have before? It was not illumination; it was not education. They told no things, that were new, or that they did not know before. It was not better understanding. It was not something for that particular month or year, for it has continued ever since. It seems to me it was the Holy Spirit taking a man's internal life, and making it a living, persuasive force. "And this power of the Holy Spirit, only Christians will have it; only those who have really abandoned their sins and accepted Christ as their Lord and Savior and consecrated themselves to God. I have known special meetings like this to be nearly fruitless, because minister and people lacked this power. The disciples were Christians, yet it was a long time before they got the power to impart Christian teachings."

As Rev. Mr. Marshall said, those who would have the power must be prayerful Christians, and depend upon God to impart the power. He instanced the example of Jacob, who was about to succumb while wrestling with the angel, and prevailed at last by calling on God. When the preacher forgets his eloquence and learning, then he will get the power. In reading the history of the Washington Presbytery he had read that in the old days, when the houses were small and the families large, and there were no closets in which the ministers they would go out of the house of an early morning, with the thermometer below zero, repair to where the cattle were kept, and there commune with God.

There were two propositions to consider. One was, that the Spirit would come to one, and indicate to him what to do, and that it would probably be something he had not thought of; if the man to whom the Spirit came should not do that which he had been indicated to do, he would never get the power, but if he took the step shown, the Holy Spirit would lead him on to others. The second proposition was, that the Christian must be empty of all sin and all unworthiness, as the Holy Spirit and sin could not abide together, and that while an unrepented sin remained, he would never get the power.

MADAME ROLLA HOME

She Arrives from New York Slightly Ill, and will Rest Here.

Mrs. Kate Wheat Rammelsburg, famous in two hemispheres as Madame Rolla, the lyric artist, arrived in Wheeling on the Pan-Handle road yesterday morning from New York. She was met at the station by members of the family of her father, Mr. George K. Wheat, and driven at once to his residence on North Main street.

Madame Rolla is suffering considerably from a heavy cold, with an annoying cough, the result of exposure on the voyage to this country. She also still feels the effects of a surgical operation by Dr. Curtis, of New York, to which she submitted recently for the benefit of her voice. Her general health is good, however, and she is nearly as bright and charming in appearance as her Wheeling admirers are accustomed to see her.

Madame Rolla had intended to sing at the Metropolitan Opera House, New York, with the De Reszkes, with whom she sang in Europe, and the other famous artists in Messrs. Abbey and Grau's organization, but her ill-health prevented and the disappointment was natural and great. She would have gone to Boston this week, where the company sang, but she could not do so on account of the condition of her throat. She has received a very flattering offer from Messrs. Abbey and Grau, and will perhaps accept it, but she will not make any engagement until her health is entirely restored. In the meantime she will rest at her home here. In all probability her first public appearance in America will be before a Wheeling audience.

Madame Rolla was too tired and ill to see anybody outside of her family yesterday, but it is understood that she returns to America this time to stay. She will be a bright addition to the galaxy of American lyric art, and there awaits her in her native land a future which any singer might envy.

FRANK HENNING HOME

He will be in Wheeling till his Starring Season opens.

Mr. Frank Henning, Wheeling's favorite young son and actor, returned home yesterday morning from Boston, where Mr. Keene has just closed the most successful season of his career. Mr. Henning said:

"I cannot help but feel greatly encouraged over my treatment at the hands of the press of the Hub city, which probably is looked upon as the representative city of culture, education and refinement of America."

From papers received here they were specially kind to this rising young actor for his performance of Jago, which must certainly be to him extremely gratifying, realizing that this most difficult and wonderful character has been essayed many times in Boston by all the famous tragedians of this century.

Mr. Henning opens a short starring tour March 23 at Washington, and will be seen in "Othello," "Hamlet" and "Richard III" in Wheeling on March 29 and 30, "Hamlet" at the Wednesday matinee. He will be supported by Mr. Water Mathews, Miss Henrietta Vadera and the principal members of Thomas W. Keene's company. The engagement is under the auspices of the Wheeling Press club.
