

BLAINE'S BEREAVEMENT

The Sudden and Unexpected Death of His Son Emmons.

NOBLE SON OF A NOBLE FATHER.

The Blow Falls Upon the Parents With Crushing Force—Some Beautiful Tributes to the Character of the Deceased—All Hearts Throb With Sympathy for the ex-Secretary of State.

CHICAGO, June 19.—Emmons Blaine, son of ex-Secretary Blaine, died yesterday at 11:15 a. m., of blood poisoning, the result of inflammation of the bowels. The fact of young Mr. Blaine's death was kept concealed for some time after he had actually passed away, the object being to reach the father first with some gentler intimation of the sad news.

It was not until about a quarter of an hour prior to the fatal moment that the least intimation that Mr. Blaine was in a dangerous condition became known, and then only to a few.

At his office in the Baltimore & Ohio railroad headquarters, in this city, his associates were only aware that he was ill, and had been for several days. Reporters were sent to the Blaine residence, 135 Rush street, but while they were informed that the patient's ailment had assumed a fatal form, no other information could be gained, for the time being.

Young Mr. Blaine was a notable figure in the exciting convention scene at Minneapolis that resulted in his father's defeat. He took the result greatly to heart and was confined to his room shortly after his return from the north. During the convention he seemed in perfect health, and none who heard of his sudden passing away were more shocked than those who saw him participating in caucuses early and late, night and day, in his father's interest.

The death bed scene took place in the great brown stone mansion of the McCormick family, on Rush street. The wife, Mrs. Emmons Blaine, and the couple's two-year-old son, McCormick Blaine, were the only persons present besides Mrs. Cyrus McCormick, young Mrs. Blaine's mother. Death came so swiftly, when it did come, that there was not time to summon the other members of the McCormick family, Mr. and Mrs. W. G. McCormick, who were in the house at the time.

Intellectual efforts were made continually throughout the night and to reach Mr. James G. Blaine and Mrs. Blaine by telegraph, to convey the intelligence of their son's precarious condition. The family left Augusta, Me., several days ago for Bar Harbor, Me., Mr. Blaine's summer seat, but it was impossible to effect the delivery of a telegram either to Mr. Blaine or any one who could transmit the message to him. The New York and Boston representatives of the McCormick Company were instructed to use every endeavor to convey the information to some member of Mr. Blaine's family, or to Mr. Cyrus McCormick, who went to New York some days ago, but up to this afternoon the efforts had availed nothing.

The first confirmation of the fact of death was given by the attending physicians, Dr. Billings and Dr. Albert. Their statement was simply: "Mr. Emmons Blaine died at 11:15 o'clock of septicaemia (blood poisoning), due to disease of the bowels."

Emmons Blaine at the time of his death was vice president of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, and had until quite recently resided at Baltimore, coming to Chicago to take charge of its western interests of the company. His wedding in New York state to Miss Anita McCormick, daughter of the great reaper manufacturer, was a social event of the first magnitude. They have had only one child, the infant who was at the bedside when the father died. Before being connected with the B. & O. he served in less conspicuous places than the vice presidency. Mr. Blaine was at different times in the service of the West Virginia Central, the Chicago and Northwestern and the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe.

BAR HARBOR, Me., June 18.—The only occupants of Stanwood, Mr. Blaine's summer home, to-night, were the Coppinger boys and servants. The first intimation that Emmons Blaine was ill was a telegram which reached Stanwood just after breakfast this morning, saying Emmons was ill Wednesday, but was out Thursday. This was followed shortly after by a message saying he was dangerously ill. About noon a third dispatch stated that he was growing worse, and the doctors said that unless there was a change in twenty-four hours there was no hope.

Upon the first news of his serious illness, preparations were made to leave on the first train. Between 1 and 2 o'clock this afternoon came word of his death. Mrs. Blaine was frantic with grief, and the whole family greatly prostrated. Emmons Blaine had many friends at Bar Harbor, and the news spread rapidly. Expressions of sympathy were heard on every hand. Nearly half an hour before the ferry steamer was to leave, the ex-secretary, accompanied by Mrs. Blaine and Miss Hattie, arrived at the wharf.

The whole party seemed overwhelmed with sorrow. Mr. Blaine was very pale, and walked with a quick, agitated step. Mrs. Blaine, who leaned upon his arm, gave way to her sorrow, sobbing and moaning aloud. The party took seats in the pilot house as the boat left the wharf at 3 o'clock. Mr. Blaine sat with bowed head and his hat pulled down over his eyes. The party will be joined in New York by Mrs. Da. mrosch and go directly through to Chicago.

Colored Bur's Tribute. Correspondence Cincinnati Commercial Gazette. "When the flowers bloom, and the best elements of life are fixed and settled, no more perfect man in his department will have ever lived. Surrounded by all sorts of temptation with which youth is bounded, he never left anything behind to regret. This is eulogy enough for a boy to be the son of the greatest statesman of the age, and to go out of life like the flicker of a yellow dip, wandering into the socket without a question, is all that is necessary to say."

"What are the honors of the Presidency to the loss of this boy? One-half of this wonderful family has passed away within a year or two, and the master of the household, who has made three Presidents, takes the silent end of life without a return. It is a bad thing to be the second son. When Walker Blaine was alive he dominated the child's feature of the household. He was a diplomat with far more ability than he was ever given credit for. It is a cold thing to have a great father. Walker Blaine would have been a fine lawyer, had he the chance, but he did not. He was educated for the bar, but he drifted towards railroading. His early life was a dream. His education was one of strict attention to duty, and his after career can not be criticized."

WORSHIPPED HIS FATHER.

Emmons was a Good Son—Col. Fred. Mussey's Tribute.

Correspondence Cincinnati Commercial Gazette.

The news of the death of Emmons Blaine silenced for a while, at least, the noise of political controversy. Only a day or two ago we met him, the gentle, unassuming gentleman, that he was, and nobody knew Emmons Blaine but to respect him. He had everything to live for—youth, health, high social position, a beautiful and devoted wife and pretty children—and yet the first thought of all was for the father. In unutterable tone and sympathy the hearts of all, regardless of such small matters, in such connection, as party and politics, went out to the father in his far away Bar Harbor home. In this there is a feeling that a tragedy greater than was ever conceived by the playwright is being enacted in the stern actualities of practical life.

To the magnificent and lustrous public career of Mr. Blaine have entered elements of personal sorrow and grief that few men have been called upon to face and endure. The vocabulary of political abuse has been exhausted, and the last resources of the cartoonists have been drawn upon to pillory him, stripped and tattooed, before the world. The gravestones of his children have not been spared from desecration, and to-day he is alone with only one son left, James G. Blaine, Jr., with Walker dead, and in his thoughts the roar of the Atlantic surges on the rock-bound coast of his home. No more pathetic figure was ever known in history than this neglected idol of his people in his lonesome despair.

The physicians who attended Emmons Blaine, as is the custom, indulged in a world of professional technicalities, as did the physicians in the case of President Garfield, but it was the piling of Minneapolis upon all that had gone before that broke the heart of the boy who worshipped his father. Whatever may have been the direct cause of Emmons Blaine's death, there is no one at all familiar with the facts who is disposed to doubt that the reasons given in this dispatch are the real ones. People in the hurlyburly of politics, its acrimonies and antagonisms seldom take account of wives and daughters and affections behind it all, and harsh and cruel things are said of men who can fight back, but wives and children weep in silence as wives and children and sweethearts alone can weep over the scarred bodies of their loved ones, who have been in the battle's front in warfare. Look into the eyes of the famous statue of the dying Napoleon of Vela, and catch some idea of the look from the eyes of James G. Blaine as he gazes back upon the stormy and magnificent past, caring little that in the future his name will show in the list of the accepted great men of history.

EX-SENATOR RUTAN DEAD.

The Well Known Pennsylvania Politician Passes Away—His Life Work.

PITTSBURGH, June 18.—Ex-Senator James S. Rutan died at 12:37 o'clock to-night.

James S. Rutan was born in Carroll county, Ohio, on May 29, 1838. He was educated in the common schools and at Richmond College, Ohio, and Beaver Academy, Pennsylvania.

He studied law, and in 1862 was elected district attorney of Beaver county, being re-elected in 1865. In 1868 he was the presidential elector for his district, and the following year was elected to the state senate from the Beaver-Washington district.

He was returned the senate in 1872, during which session he presided. He was nominated in 1876 to be consul to Cardiff and Florence, but declined both and in November of that year was appointed collector of the port of Pittsburgh, in which he served until June, 1881.

He was appointed United States marshal of the western district of Pennsylvania in May, 1882, serving until November, 1885, when he was removed by President Cleveland.

He was again elected to the senate in November, 1886, and at the recent primaries failed of renomination.

During the war he was first lieutenant of the One Hundred and First regiment Pennsylvania volunteers.

Recently Mr. Rutan created a sensation by making charges against ex-State Treasurer Boyer, Treasurer Morrison and Senator Quay, accusing them of the illegal use of the state's funds.

The case against Mr. Boyer came up before a Harrisburg alderman Wednesday but as Mr. Rutan and his witnesses failed to appear the charges were dismissed.

Young Men's Christian Associations for employes on the line of the Union Pacific railroad, $25,000; Amherst College, $25,000; Woman's Branch and Tract Society, $5,000; Board of Missions of the Presbyterian Church, $5,000; Children's Aid Society of New York, $15,000; New York Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, $5,000; American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, $5,000; Peabody Home for Aged and Indigent Women, $5,000; The Sheltering Arms, $1,000; Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church, for use of the seaside home in connection with that church, $4,000; New York Association for Improving the Condition of the Poor, $5,000.

LINCOLN avenue, in Ferryville, and Broadway, in Martin's Ferry, have recently been repaired, making a good driveway to Martin's Ferry by way of New Steel Bridges, the most direct and quickest route. No delays, easy grades, no railroad crossings, and road speed allowed.

PARKERSBURG POINTS.

Improvements on the Ohio River Railroad. New Bridge.

Special Dispatch to the Intelligencer.

PARKERSBURG, June 18.—To-day the well known New York firm of bridge builders, Messrs. Soliman & Kavanaugh, was awarded an extensive contract by the Ohio River Railroad Company along its line, amounting in the aggregate to many thousands of dollars. The contract consists mainly of bridge repairs, stone work and culvert building. One of the principal abutment of the company's bridge across the Kanawha river at this point.

This bridge is as solid as a rock yet, and it must not be understood that there is any danger whatever connected with its use. But the energetic young president of the company saw a possibility of danger, and will now see to it that everything here and along the line is made secure.

When the Ohio River railroad bridge mentioned was erected it was thought to be one of the strongest, safest and solidest structures in the country. And it was, as far as the ingenuity of man could make it. But a strange phenomenon is being witnessed here that is exciting considerable comment among geologists and others interested. It is a fact that old Fort Boreman is gradually slipping into the Kanawha and Ohio rivers, and being carried away to the Mississippi and the gulf.

ROWAN'S RELEASE.

A Steubenville Saloon Keeper Who Pleads the "Indignant" Act.

Special Dispatch to the Intelligencer.

STUEBENVILLE, O., June 19.—James Rowan, a prominent saloon keeper and local light weight pugilist, was released from the county jail Saturday evening, after five months' "sweating" on the part of the officials and a game of "bluff" and "wait" on his part. Rowan was sentenced to sixty days imprisonment and fined $300 for Sunday selling. He served out his sixty days and under the terms of his sentence he was booked to stay in jail until fine and costs were paid. He endeavored to take advantage of the law which permits the auditor to release indigent prisoners when their term of sentence is served, making the claim that he did not have the money to pay his fine. County officers thought a little sweating would cause him to shell out, but it failed. His friends circulated petitions and secured thousands of signatures asking for his release. It was presented Saturday evening and he was released.

STRUCK BY LIGHTNING.

Two Big Tanks in Mackburg District Burned—Property Destroyed.

Special Dispatch to the Intelligencer.

CALDWELL, O., June 19.—During the heavy electrical storm in this neighborhood last night an oil tank containing 35,000 barrels of oil in the Mackburg oil field, thirteen miles south of this place, was struck by lightning and entirely consumed by fire. A smaller tank near by containing 15,000 barrels was also burned. The oil was the property of the Standard Oil Company and the loss is estimated at about $50,000. Insurance unknown.

The burning oil did considerable damage to the Cleveland & Marietta railroad, near whose track the tanks were located, burning one mile of track and destroying the telegraph wires. The track will now, however, be replaced by to-morrow morning and will not interfere with the running of trains.

Mr. Warren D. Wentz of Geneva, N. Y., Tells of His Fearful Sufferings After Gastric Fever and His Cure by Hood's Sarsaparilla

Hood's Sarsaparilla

All who know Mr. W. D. Wentz give him the best of recommendations for honesty and integrity. For many years he has worked for Mr. D. P. Wilson, the harness maker and member of the Geneva Board of Health. He says:

"I was taken sick last October with gastric fever and my chance for recovery was considered almost hopeless. After 7 weeks the fever slowly left me, but I could not eat the simplest food without terrible distress. It seemed that I had recovered from the fever to die of starvation."

I took peppin compounds, bismuth, charcoal, cod liver oil and malt until my physician confessed that his skill was about exhausted and he did not know what else to try. Everything I took seemed like pouring molasses lead into my stomach. I began to think that I had just a bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla that had been in the house for two or three years, that I found had benefited me previously for dyspepsia. I began taking it and soon began to feel better. I have now taken a little over two bottles and can truthfully say I feel well again and can eat anything without distressing ill, even to Pie and Cheese.

which I have been unable to touch for years. The English language does not contain words enough to permit me to express the praise I would like to give to Hood's Sarsaparilla." W. D. WENTZ, 181; Castle St., Geneva, N. Y.

A Good Voucher

"I have known Mr. Warren D. Wentz for many years and can vouch for him as a man of veracity and one well known about here. I have sold him several bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla during the past few months." M. H. PARKER, Druggist, Geneva, N. Y.
