BETTER THAN THE MILITARY.

Because Deputies Could be Secured Who Would be in Sympathy With the Men—The Situation Yesterday Morning at Homestead—The Flurry at Midnight—Uneasy Feeling and Evidence that the Workmen are Prepared for Surprises—The Events of the Day.

HOMESTEAD, Pa., July 8.—After the return of the men from Henry Striegel's funeral a meeting was called in the opera house on Fifth avenue. About 200 mill workers were present. On the stage was President Weihs, President-elect M. M. Garland, Secretary John Kilgannon and Attorney W. J. Brennan, of the Amalgamated Association. The object was to consider the situation, and the Amalgamated officers addressed the men. Every speaker addressed the men in plain words, and showed them what would occur in case affairs continued as they were. The meeting was open only to the mill workers and citizens. A. L. Brennan, an attorney for the Amalgamated Association, said: "The owners know the law is on their side and their hearts cannot be touched. They have civil protection. When the militia comes to Homestead the mill will be surrounded and new men put in, and any man interfering with the civil authorities will be shot down. If anyone thinks for a moment that the militia will stand around like hitching posts, he is badly mistaken. When they do come it will not be for dress parade, but to 'shoot.' He was loudly applauded at the close of his address. In part another speaker said: "The sheriff and the men he will bring here will be in sympathy with the people of Homestead. He will not be foolhardy enough to bring a lot of men here to shoot us down. We have their sympathy now and will have it when they come. The sheriff must do his duty, and will do it with men not in a spirit of animosity."

The third speaker in part said: "The Amalgamated lawyer has told us what the militia can do, and if we can't believe him, who are we to believe? We all know this is a great struggle, and if the Amalgamated Association does not win at Homestead it will not amount to a row of pins in the future. The question is, will we permit the sheriff to take possession of the mill as our friend? We will not be compelled to go to our homes and remain there, and we will know we have some friends among the sheriff's deputies. Time will show that the best thing for us to do is to let the sheriff take possession of the mill. We all know the law is against us."

THE MORNING HOURS

At Homestead Peaceful—Feeling of the Men—Bitter Against the Pinkertons. HOMESTEAD, Pa., July 8.—The morning opened as quietly as is possible in a railroad town. No signs of trouble were visible, and up to 11 o'clock there had been no occurrence of startling nature, not even an alarming report. The strained situation is beginning to show its effects: sentiment in the town is all with the strikers, but tradesmen and others do not go the length the most radical of the men wish to go, and they are quietly endeavoring to have order and the usual law rule once more, and to do away with the present condition of public affairs, in which every man assumes to be an officer and the workingmen's leaders give orders as if they were the properly constituted authorities. This condition of things is hurting business, and many of the men with interests fear that it will hurt the town permanently.

BITTER AGAINST THE PINKERTONS.

The men are extremely bitter against the Pinkertons and will meet them in every way possible. It is believed that they have an intention to try the law if an opportunity presents itself. They purpose to see whether or not it is lawful to send an armed force of men, alien to the state, into it. A part of Hugh O'Donnell's mission to Pittsburgh last night was for the purpose of learning the intentions of the Pinkerton men and endeavoring to checkmate another attempt by an injunction or other legal proceedings. Another attempt on the part of the Pinkertons is apprehended and there is a nervous dread of what is to come. Many persons believe that Mr. Frick will make another call for men and if he does, Pinkerton is expected to furnish a big force. The reputation of the organization is at stake, and Pinkerton's known pride in his system is expected to show itself in his willingness to again make an effort to force his way into the works. Against such an attempt the strikers will array all the power they have. They are watching every point and have assistance from many quarters in which valuable aid can be rendered. The railroad men are in hearty sympathy with them in the strike and for this reason it would be hard to execute a coup and surprise the strikers. They have an abundance of money, the treasury of the Amalgamated Association being well supplied with funds and they are able to employ the best legal assistance.

PERFECT ORGANIZATION.

How well they are prepared to meet physically any attempt to force an entrance was shown last night when a false alarm sounded that the detectives were on their way. In an instant the alarm was sounded by a loud whistle from the electric light works. The signal soon brought out men from every corner and block. The alarm showed that the strikers have a fairly effective organization and are no disorganized mob, though at the same time they can do much in the way of perfecting their organization. Out of every house, the men poured and collected their forces. On two corners, a couple of young men began blazing away with pistols, firing at the ground. This was not part of the programme and angered one lieutenant, who rushed down the street and yelled: "Stop that shooting, you damned fools; if there was any need of shooting you would not be around."

One wife hurried to her husband, who was doing patrol duty along the railroad tracks. She put a rifle in his hands. "I loaded it myself," was all she said, and with this she turned away and joined a group of women who had collected to learn the trouble. Men were dispatched to headquarters in the Amalgamated Association building to learn what was known about the trouble. Here a reporter found several scores of excited men, none of whom clearly knew what was to be expected. A telegram of warning had been received, but it was indefinite. Scores of men dropped in, and the most vigorous of them had rifles in their arms and the muzzles uniformly pointing downwards for fear of accidents. Along the road young boys followed all unknown persons. At cross sections were some of the more intelligent and influential men, who sent squads in every direction. While the reporter was there one leader dispatched about a hundred men off and each followed directions.

GUARDING AGAINST SURPRISE.

The strain was becoming serious, and some of the men expressed the hope that troops would be ordered in so as to avoid bloodshed. Across the river precautions have been taken to prevent a surprise. A guard is on duty there and dynamite is stored along the trestle, so as to blow up the communication between the two shores, should occasion for it arise. There will be three funerals during the day, the first that of young Striegel occurred early in the morning and was attended by a small delegation of the Turn Verein and other organizations. A report which could not be verified was in circulation that troops would arrive here during the day. Their presence would result in greater security being felt. It was said that the arrival of the troops here and the announcement of the orders for them would be practically simultaneous.

At present order prevails but this condition can hardly continue for any long period. The workmen are mostly keeping to their homes. This is done by the order of the leaders who are anxious to avoid any possibility of trouble that might arise from the presence of large numbers of men in the streets. When the men are in their homes, they are so well scattered that a number of them them can hardly reach any place where their presence is needed.

CARNEGIE WON'T TALK

About the Trouble—English Demagogues Quick to Take Advantage.

LONDON, July 8.—A correspondent found Andrew Carnegie, who has been making a tour of Scotland, at Braemar, in Aberdeenshire, last evening. He appeared to be in excellent health, but was evidently laboring under great agitation, so much so that Mrs. Carnegie, who was present, endeavored to soothe him and to draw his thoughts away from the tragedy at Homestead. Mr. Carnegie positively declined to make any statement. He has within the last day or two sent and received numerous dispatches by cable, and there is no doubt that Mr. Carnegie has been kept fully informed of events on the Monongahela. The newspapers here continue to attribute the disorders to the McKinley bill and profess surprise at the inability of the governor to maintain order.

The St. James Gazette says the proceedings show the very usual way in which the law is regarded in America. The Globe in an article on the disorder refers to Mr. Carnegie, saying: "When he was making a tour of England in a well fitted drag, the philanthropic millionaire did his best to convince our working people that they could not be happy, prosperous or free under a monarch. Perhaps he will modify his anti-monarchical leanings."

The Chronicle says: "The bloody tragedy in Pittsburgh will resound throughout the world. One effect is likely to be visible before long in American politics. The conduct of Mr. Carnegie's great company is not likely to endear the Republican party to the American working classes."

Pinkerton Realizes His Position.

CHICAGO, July 8.—Mr. Pinkerton in an interview on the Homestead riot says: "No further effort will be made to force the strikers into order. It simply means a lockout that will last forever, so far as union men are concerned. I guess Carnegie and his partners have money enough. I know what I am talking about when I say no union men will ever again set foot in the Homestead mill. "That is about all I have to say on this subject. I cannot expect fair treatment from the press. There is too much politics in the fight and I have the unpopular end."

Will Meet the Strikers.

HARRISBURG, Pa., July 8.—Governor Pattison received this telegram this morning: "Could you meet committee of Homestead citizens on arrival of mail express at 10 o'clock to-night? Wire at once." (Signed) "JOHN PURMAN, "J. H. WILLIAMS, "HUGH O'DONNELL, "GEORGE SARRAE, "Committee."

The governor replied that he will be at the executive department at 10 o'clock to-night.

Carpenters' Sympathy.

CHICAGO, July 8.—The carpenters' council and the painters' council have passed resolutions extending sympathy to the strikers at Homestead, Pa., and denouncing Mr. Carnegie for employing Pinkerton men against the interests of his employes. If it proves necessary the carpenters' council will assist its 7,000 members $5 each to help the men who are in the fight.

A Mute Recovers Speech.

Alphonse Hemphling, of Summit township, Butler Co., Penna., made an affidavit that his twelve-year-old son, who had had St. Vitus Dance for twelve years, lost his speech, was completely cured after using three bottles of Dr. Miles' Restorative Nerve, and also recovered his speech. Thousands testify to wonderful cures from using it for nervous diseases, dyspepsia, nervous debility, dullness, confusion of mind, headache, etc. Four doses of this Nerve cured Mrs. W. E. Burns, South Bend, Ind., who had been suffering with constant headache for three months. Trial bottle and elegant book free at Logan Drug Co's.

Proprietor of the fine livery stable at the West End hotel, Elmira, N. Y., says Hood's Sarsaparilla goes way ahead of anything he ever took for troubles with the Liver and Kidneys with which he suffered for a long time, until he took Hood's Sarsaparilla and was completely cured. Other members of his family also take Hood's Sarsaparilla and are highly gratified with the benefit from it. HOOD'S PILLS are a mild, gentle, painless, safe and efficient cathartic. Always reliable. 25c.

MARSH STAND.

Base and Top Solid Oak, Rubbed Finish; Castings Milled-Finished; Height, 34 inches; Height Extension, 50 inches; Weight, 12 lbs.; Size of Top, 14x18; Top and Rest Adjustable; Patent Applied for; Shipped E. D.

- USES: Reading Stand, Dictionary, Music, Atlas, Album, Bible, Flower, Lamp, Lecture, Parlor, Library, Office, Checker, Easel.

THE ADJUSTMENT is simple, perfect and POSITIVE. Any angle desired—even to the 16th part of an inch—can be obtained, and the top held solid and rigid.

The Rest invented and patented for this Stand, it is universally conceded, surpasses in ingenuity and usefulness any device ever made for a similar purpose. When the Stand top is at an angle this Rest is raised and firmly holds its position in preventing a book or other article from sliding off; but when a level or flat top table is required, it is easily and quickly dropped down and out of the way. It is polished metal and plated.

The Extension consists of a 16-inch polished Bessemer Steel Rod that runs down in the post, and which may be raised or lowered and at any point desired is firmly held by a set screw; thus the HEIGHT of the stand is adjusted to meet the requirements of any SITTING or STANDING position.

THE TOP is 14x18 inches. This is the size required for large volumes, such as DICTIONARIES, BIBLES, ATLASES, etc., and is especially well adapted to SHEET MUSIC. Stands on the market with a SMALLER top are practically USELESS.

REVOLVING SHELF, as shown, is 12x12x10 1-4 inches and admits an Unapridged Dictionary, Atlas and many volumes of less size. Is substantially made and finished in Antique Oak. It serves the purposes of a Revolving Book Case.

CONDITION OF TRADE.

R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of the Business Situation.

New York, July 8.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade:

There is a stronger demand for finished products of iron and steel, while pig iron is overloaded and weaker and the Thomas company has reduced its price for No. 1 anthracite $1 to $15 per ton, which is believed to be the lowest price ever recorded. Sales of 10,000 tons of steel rails have been made by eastern works, and the aggregate for the half year has been 880,000, with 560,000 tons actually delivered, which corresponds with the decrease in railroad building and the prospect that the new mileage for the year will be only about 3,000. Bar iron is in heavy demand, and structural iron also, with an advance of about $1 per ton.

Textile mills are all well employed for the season and better orders for woolen goods have been given an impulse to purchasers of wool by manufacturers. Nearly all the iron mills at Pittsburgh are closed and pig iron is weaker, while glass works have stopped for the summer.

At Cleveland trade in most lines is good. Business at Detroit is good for the season.

Business failures occurring throughout the country during the last seven days number 176 as compared with totals of 197 last week. For the corresponding week of last year the figures were 247.
