

DEMOCRATIC BOGIE MAN.

The Elections, and, Otherwise Known as the "Force Bill," and What it Proposed to Do.

The south has been the home of the bogie man in this country. There he has for years been called up to frighten children and slaves into obedience. So great has become his power that he has made the men and the old masters as superstitious as were the children and the slaves a generation ago. The Democratic leaders well understand the southern character and they have every four years dressed up a bogie man to frighten the southern whites into voting the Democratic ticket. The leaders are now dressing up their bogie man in more grotesque garb than for many years past and are making him appear as a monster with musket and bayonet, powder and lead, dynamite and devilry, prepared to murder every man, woman and child whom he catches near an election booth. This bogie man is called "the force bill." His excuse is the Federal election bill proposed by Congressmen Lodge and passed by the house of the Fifty-first Congress, but defeated in the senate.

That bill proposed to extend and perfect existing laws in regard to the supervision of the election of members of the house of representatives, so that they would be effective throughout the United States, wherever the application of the law should be demanded.

It provided that a chief supervisor should be appointed by the circuit courts in each judicial circuit of the United States; that, on petition of 100 citizens in an entire congressional district, or in a city of over 20,000 inhabitants, or on the petition of fifty citizens in a county, such city, congressional district or county should be put under the operation of the law. Unless citizens desired it to the numbers mentioned it would not be applied. If citizens did desire it to the numbers mentioned it would be applied.

The supervisors, to be appointed by the circuit court, were to act as officers of supervision and observation, and should stand side by side with the local officers who registered and received the votes, who counted and returned them. No local machinery would be disturbed, no local officer be displaced, no man would cast his vote in a manner different from that which he cast when the law was not applied. No state which had adopted a system of a secret and official ballot would be interfered with. To state or local elections it is not applicable, but only when the election of a national official is effected.

These supervisors should represent the two leading parties at every registration office and every polling place where they were posted. Their first duty would be that of observation and report, first on registration when registration existed, and next to stand at the polls and watch the reception of the votes. Their next duty would be to take part in the counting of the votes, and make a return to the chief supervisor. If the law applied simply to a city or county, their duty ended there. If, however, it applied to an entire congressional district, the law provided for the establishment of a United States board of canvassers, also to be appointed by the circuit courts, who should canvass and return the votes as returned to them by the supervisors, and make certificate of the same to the clerk of the house. If their certificates agree with the certificate of the state officers of course the man holding both certificates would be seated. If, however, they differed, the certificate of the United States board of canvassers would be prima facie evidence and would place the name of the holder upon the roll of the representatives. Provided, that if there should be an appeal from the decision of the United States board of canvassers to the circuit court, the bill provided that the clerk of the house should enroll as representative elect the name of the person certified by said circuit court as entitled to said certificate.

This is the excuse for the bogie man which is used to frighten the southern men into standing by the Democratic party through another election. It provides for the house of representatives securing better evidence of the honesty or dishonesty of elections of its own members than in its action as judge of its own membership it will not have to send its committee to Arkansas or other places to take testimony before it knows who shall be entitled to seats. If the elections in Illinois or Alabama are above suspicion there will be no call for the law, and if they are wrongly suspected of being dishonest it will demonstrate that the suspicion was unjust.

Financially Embarrassed.

A large manufacturer, whose affairs were very much embarrassed, and who was overworked and broken down with nervous exhaustion, went to a celebrated specialist. He was told that the only thing needed was to be relieved of care and worry, and have a change of thought. This doctor was more considerate of his patient's health than of his financial circumstances. He ought to have advised him to use Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine, the best remedy for nervous prostration, sleeplessness, dizziness, headache, ill effects of spirits, tobacco, coffee, opium, etc. Thousands testify to cures. Book and trial bottle free at Logan Drug Co.'s.

Roaches, bed bugs and other insects are conspicuous by their absence in houses where Dugine is used. 25 cents.

MARTIN'S FERRY.

Accidents and Incidents in that Thriving City—Personal and Industrial.

The heavy rain yesterday afternoon brought to a close the big picnic of the Methodist Episcopal school and congregation at Sidwell's Grove. About 300 persons went out in wagons, leaving the church about 8 o'clock and reached the beautiful grove safely about 9. The seven hours in the grove were spent pleasantly and all present were sorry to see the rain. The picnicers sought shelter in the covered wagons and in Sidwell's house and barn and very few of them got a wetting. Thirteen wagons hauled the party to and from the grounds, thirty-four riding in one four-horse wagon. Only one accident occurred. As one of the wagons was returning it upset and the occupants were thrown out, but fortunately none were seriously hurt. Miss Lottie Harris had her wrist badly sprained, Mrs. Rev. I. S. Winters was bruised about the head and face, Mrs. Ed. S. Houghton badly injured and on arm and shoulder, and all of the others were more or less hurt. The accident happened near Elletts's blacksmith shop, on Glenn's run. No blame is attached to the driver. The breaking of the axle was the cause.

At the meeting of the city council last night the contract for paving Broadway was awarded to C. O. Cochran, and the contract for paving Jefferson street was awarded to Malone Brothers, the Porter brick to be used.

Much complaint is heard about the water supply. It tastes and smells fishy and is anything but pleasant. Even the prohibitionists object to drinking it. The reservoir should be cleaned out at once.

MOUNDSVILLE.

A Miscellaneous Melange of Minor Matters from Marshall's Metropolis.

Moundsville has witnessed a phenomenal building boom since the opening of spring, but from the present outlook business in this line will be even brisker from now until cold weather puts a stop to outdoor work. Both the building and investment company and the improvement company will erect a number of houses, probably thirty, while a large amount of industrial building will be done. A conservative estimate puts the number of houses that will be erected between this and cold weather, exclusive of those now in course of construction, at fifty.

Immigration Agent M. V. Richards was here yesterday, having in charge a party of capitalists seeking location for works and opportunities for investment. They were very favorably impressed with the town, especially with its splendid location and natural advantages. It is quite possible that this visit may result in one and possibly two splendid new industries being located here.

BELLAIKE.

All Sorts of Local News and Gossip from the Glass City.

The Belmont County Medical Society held its monthly meeting at the Windsor hotel here yesterday, and after the reading of papers by Drs. Piper, D. W. Boone, J. M. Blackford and W. E. Thompson, the new feature of these meetings, the examination of classes, was taken up and proved the most interesting part of the meeting. The examination of a patient is undoubtedly of more benefit to the doctor than some papers, and the society seems to be making a specialty of this branch of the programme. They also decided to make a new fee bill—and also to report all persons who go from doctor to doctor and never pay. A motion carried, that physicians report to the society, all persons, whether men or women, who are practicing medicine in the county illegally. The society adjourned to meet in Bellaire Tuesday, September 13, 1892.

The county commissioners have made an order that proceedings be commenced to recover the amount of money wrongfully drawn from the county treasury by the false measurements of stone work recently noted in this column. This will open up the matter in legal form and possibly place the responsibility where it really belongs. In the meantime the commissioners are smarting under the load they have to bear by reason of their official capacity. But there are others who realize that a great share of the odium is likely to fall upon them, since it is one of those ugly things that cannot be compromised without even greater suspicion than already exists.

The new street commissioner started out with the idea of having able-bodied men render the two days' service as required by law, but so far he has not notified over seventy-five and not one-third of these have rendered the service. This, in view of the fact that there are perhaps 1,800 men to whom the law applies, indicates that the move is not popular and that the officer intends to follow his predecessor in letting the people severely alone on this score.

Divorce cases are growing more numerous in this county each year. Since the adjournment of court the following new cases have been filed: Jacob W. Halsey vs. Lucy Halsey, adultery; Eliza Bennet vs. Hannah Bennet, adultery; John Keys vs. Sarah Keys, adultery; Emma Gregory vs. J. K. Gregory, willful absence; Mary Robinson vs. Dexter Robinson, cruelty; Mary Parker vs. T. O. Parker, habitual drunkenness and cruelty.

Thomas Dugan, another one of the brothers wanted for the brutal assault upon Engineer Wigfield in the Baltimore & Ohio yards, was arrested at Newark and brought here yesterday by Officers Baugh and Johnson. He will be bound over with Francis, and the search will be continued for Joseph, who was the principal assailant. The last heard of him he was at Rowlesburg, W. Va.

The whisky cure establishment that existed here for three or four months became alarmed at the prospect of two or three months of quiet and pulled up stakes and left. They had several patients while here and did some of them good apparently.
