WHEELING, AUGUST 8, 1892. NATIONAL REPUBLICAN TICKET. FOR PRESIDENT, BENJAMIN HARRISON, OF INDIANA.

REPUBLICAN STATE TICKET. FOR GOVERNOR, THOMAS E. DAVIS, OF TAYLOR COUNTY. FOR AUDITOR, JACOB S. HYER, OF BRAXTON COUNTY.

A British View of the American Tariff. The promoters of the McKinley tariff meant it to push forward the policy of America for the Americas.

REPUBLICAN victory in the coming election would retard for a long time the progress of the sound commercial doctrine that underlie the commercial greatness of Great Britain and alone maintain British ascendancy.

READERS of the Intelligencer going out of town for the summer can have the Intelligencer mailed to them for sixty-five cents per month, postage free.

The Nominee For Governor. The Democratic objection to the head of the Republican ticket in West Virginia is that he is not a statesman of the magnitude of Fleming and MacCorkle.

Judge Fleming was a quiet gentleman on the bench when the Camden influence took him up for governor. He had cut no figure in state affairs.

Mr. MacCorkle used to be a lawyer. Later he has been a speculator. He has never had any public prominence whatever. He has made a pile of money recently and they love him for the money he has made.

Mr. MacCorkle was determined to have the gubernatorial nomination, and his friends point to him with pride as a man who stepped right out of the ranks, risked $12,000 to get the nomination and will spend as much more as may be necessary to get the election.

Mr. Davis was nominated for the state senate against his desire to be passed by. He ran against the dashing, glib-tongued Farnsworth, of Upshur, who tickled himself with the thought of an easy victory over the quiet business man of Taylor county.

garded by his fellow Republicans as the very man for president of the senate, a position which he did not wish and into which Carr, of Kanawha, juggled himself at last.

Mr. Davis was one of the level-headed men in the state senate, serving with credit on the finance committee and as chairman of the committee on banks and corporations.

Mr. MacCorkle has never served anywhere in any public capacity. He did not serve in the confederate army. That misapprehension grew out of his heated defense of Mr. Jefferson Davis a couple of years ago in the city of Charleston.

Mr. Davis entered the union army at eighteen years of age, and the men who served with him say that young Tom Davis was a good soldier.

So far as the personality of the respective nominees is concerned the Republican party invites a close, searching and patient comparison.

DEMOCRATIC headquarters will be at Charleston, with Chilton in the saddle. This has long been the fond dream of the Democratic politicians of Charleston.

A Little Democratic Game. Word is being passed around to the Democratic newspapers and politicians that they are expected to be very sorry over the defeat of Hon. G. W. Atkinson in the Huntington convention.

It should be well understood that Mr. Atkinson was not a candidate for governor. He told his friends so before the convention and at the convention.

Mr. Davis told Mr. Atkinson that he would under no circumstances go before the convention unless Mr. Atkinson thought his nomination the best thing for the party and would so declare himself.

There was the fullest and frankest consultation between these gentlemen and their friends. Mr. Atkinson not only thought the nomination the very best thing to do but cheerfully agreed to place Mr. Davis before the convention, at the same time asking his followers to abstain from voting for him and to give their votes to Mr. Davis.

Some of Mr. Atkinson's friends made the mistake of voting for him because they were unwilling to let go. Among those who voted for Mr. Davis were some of the best friends Mr. Atkinson has, and he cordially approves their vote.

Mr. Atkinson was not a candidate for the nomination for attorney general. Many of his friends desired him to have the nomination, but he doubted the wisdom of the suggestion.

Democratic efforts to make Mr. Atkinson think he is sore and to induce any of his friends to think they are unhappy are a waste of energy.

His friends in the Huntington convention and those whom they represented are all Republicans; which indicates with sufficient accuracy where they will be and what they will be doing through the campaign.

Some members of Congress think it unconstitutional to appropriate $5,000,000, but entirely constitutional to appropriate half that sum to the World's Fair.

Thanks for the Suggestion. The Register has complained that not even our nominee for attorney general is a farmer. This of course was an oversight.

It happened that there were no farmer candidates for any place on the ticket, and so, with the exception the three places above named, the ticket is made up of business men clear through, and exceptionally good business men at that.

The Register compels us to remind it that the Democratic convention had before it Farmer Eastham, who had been declared to be the friend of the people and the hope of the Democratic party in West Virginia.

Eastham had been encouraged by the managers to look a good deal to the nomination. But he did not spend $12,000 to get it—more than the office is worth for the whole term—and this made him look very small beside the liberal disburser from Kanawha, whose idea of the path to glory is that it is paved with silver dollars and shaded with the pleasant foliage of bank notes.

be true that where wages are low living will be correspondingly and necessarily cheap.

Negroes Hard to Persuade. This appears on the editorial page of the Louisville Courier-Journal: "The colored people of Paducah have been forming plans for celebrating the 8th of August in grand style, but they find it difficult to persuade negroes in other towns that the race riots are over, and that it is perfectly safe for them to visit Paducah."

The C. J. being Democratic we do not feel at liberty to challenge the accuracy of its statement of fact. The colored people spoken of are citizens of Kentucky, with the same right to celebrate anything they please that the white citizens of that state have.

Kentucky is one of the states of the United States of America, a country having a written constitution in which the black man is declared to have the same civil rights as the white man.

The matter of getting negro votes for a Democratic ticket, in a fight between Democrats, as in the recent election in Alabama, is quite another thing. There are times when all prejudice must be put aside for the general welfare.

What They Want. The business of a merchant began to be disreputable in the eyes of the Democratic politicians in West Virginia on the third day of August, 1892, when the Republican convention named Thomas E. Davis, of Grafton, for governor of West Virginia.

It is a great satisfaction to know that the Republican state ticket is so weak, for that gives our Democratic friends satisfaction without fighting for it. They have nothing to do now but just roll up their big Democratic majority when they find it.

Col. Robert G. Ingersoll finds his heart in the presidential campaign this year. He has taken little public part in campaigns since 1880, but next month his eloquent voice is likely to be heard again on the Republican stump.

Edward Bellamy will support the People's party because "it is the only party whose opposition to the aggressions of private monopoly is not a sham."

Luther Laffin Mills, who has been abroad, declares that the World's Fair is "the best advertised show on earth."

Senator Pasco, of Florida, is known in Washington as the senator who never votes.

The New England Magazine for August contains three views of Walt Whitman. George D. Black writes of "Leaves of Grass" as a new force in literature.

For earache, toothache, sore throat, swollen neck, and the results of colds and inflammation, use Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil—the great pain destroyer.

Two-thirds of the money recovered from the city of New Orleans in the great Gaieties case, recently terminated, went to the lawyers.

A saw fish fourteen and one-half feet long and estimated to weigh 800 pounds was caught near Dayton, Fla., on Friday.

There are twelve obelisks in Rome, one in Paris, five in London and one in Central Park, New York.

A pet rattlesnake at New Smyrna, Fla., committed suicide by biting itself in the neck.

The typewriters of Chicago are about to organize a trades union.

Rich petroleum beds have been unearthed near Edmonton, B. C.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER Absolutely Pure. A cream of tartar baking powder. Highest of all in leavening strength.

WEST VIRGINIA Will Be a Redeemed Child of the Union if the Stars Don't Fall. Pittsburgh Commercial-Gazette.

The platform is sound in all its parts, the tariff plank being without flaw or defect. It gives a hearty endorsement of the national candidates, Harrison and Reid, and pledges to them the electoral votes of the state.

There is no section of the country which has been developing its natural resources with greater rapidity since the war than West Virginia.

PERSONAL POINTS. The paragraph which has gone the rounds to the effect that Mrs. Mand Howe Elliott has gone abroad to study Salvation army methods is denied.

When Prof. Asaph Hall discovered the two moons of Mars he showed his appreciation of the fineness of things by naming them Deimos and Phobos, after the two Homeric attendants of the god of war from whom the planet takes its name.

Col. Robert G. Ingersoll finds his heart in the presidential campaign this year. He has taken little public part in campaigns since 1880, but next month his eloquent voice is likely to be heard again on the Republican stump.

Miss Isabel F. Hapgood, the Russian translator of Boston, has personally raised $7,000 for the famine stricken Russians during the past few months, and sent the money to the Tolstois for distribution.
