A British View of the American Tariff.

The promoters of the McKinley tariff meant it to push forward the policy of America for the Americans.

One method of realizing it was to keep all work within their own dominions.

The country was to be made self-sustaining what could be produced at home was not to be bought abroad.

That was the key-note of the McKinley scheme, and it is working out the idea of its designers with the precision and effectiveness of a machine.

REPUBLICAN victory in the coming election would retard for a long time the progress of the sound commercial doctrines that underlie the commercial greatness of Great Britain and alone maintain British ascendancy.

IN 1890 it was a conflict of predictions now our adversaries must face trade statistics and prices current.

Seating Judge Fleming. The Register is politely informed that Mr. Hart does not "know anything about the many attempts of his political friends to bribe Delegate Harr."

What is matter of common notoriety is that Delegate Harr was supposed by Judge Fleming's friends to need very close watching to keep him in line on the gubernatorial question; so much so that a body guard for him had to be furnished from Marion county, Harr's cousin had to be given a position as elevator man in the capital building, and Harr had to be given a mine inspectorship in the face of his well known incompetency.

And after all that one of the body guard had to be made secretary of state and another assistant adjutant general as a reward of extraordinary merit.

Many things were required to give Judge Fleming the seat to which General Goff was elected, and these are some of them.

No Republican ever tried to bribe Harr, or any other member of the legislature to vote for Gen. Goff, but two Democrats were kept from giving an honest verdict by means the most desperate.

One was drugged and the other was threatened with a scandal. As for Harr, he wanted the mine inspectorship and played his cards to get it.

The Democratic party should be glad to have the gubernatorial seat and all that relates to it buried in oblivion, and it is a wonder that the Democratic managers do not padlock the Register's mouth on this subject.

Republicans are always glad of a chance to remind the people of West Virginia of the wrong done to them and to honest government by seating a very nice gentleman who was defeated at the polls.

That act of the legislature is figuring in this campaign. It will figure in the ballots, and there will be such a majority for Thomas E. Davis that it cannot be figured out.

Honest and Courageous Democrats.

In this neck of the woods, as in some others where every seeing man reads every day and every hour in the smoke of factories an eloquent and conclusive argument in favor of protecting home industries, the Democrats are doing their best to hedge on their party's platform and policy.

Men who see and reason will not accept free trade, nor will they vote for the party which is pledged to it. So the sting must be taken out, and we behold infinite misrepresentation and writhing in this behalf.

There are some Democrats above this pitiful vote-seeking under false pretenses. They know that their party is for free trade and they do not hesitate to express their own convictions and to tell the people frankly what their party intend to do—the Democratic party has promised the country free trade, and free trade it shall have.

How could the Democratic party mean to do anything less, when it declares that Congress has not the power to pass a measure of protection to any industry? Note what is said by Mr. Watterson, in the Louisville Courier-Journal, an honest and courageous expression which the INTELLIGENCER has quoted before and may quote again:

We mean to rip up, exterminate, abolish, annihilate, and in the foulest ignominy and disgrace, every vestige of the fraud called protection, wherever we can find it, and as fast as the needs of the government, increased ten-fold by the Republican party, will permit. See?

No commentator is needed to make this perfectly clear to the dullest understanding. Then we have Congressman Harter, of Ohio, who is right in line with his party and keeping up with the free trade procession. Mr. Harter is no less frank and courageous. He says:

I would abolish every custom house in the land. I would rather vote for the establishment of an institution to spread the cancer of a whole field in which to propagate cholera, or a school in which to teach vice and crime, rather than vote for a protective tariff of any kind.

This is a strong way to put it, and it represents conviction and determination of a strong degree. Judging by the signs of the times the party to which Mr. Watterson and Mr. Harter belong, and of which they are acknowledged representatives, will not soon be in position to execute its destructive design against the industries and the welfare of the country.

A Thoughtless Critic.

Sir,—Don't you think your head lines about the Fire Island people's objection to cholera patients were somewhat lurid? Why is it right to keep them out of New York and not wrong to subject the Fire Islanders to confinement? And then, forsooth, "cholera passengers must be safeguarded and "steerage folks" may rot. A good percentage of these cabin passengers belong to the Four Hundred—their relations, perhaps, in Gotham, but oh! we must not expose McAllister's blign circles to contagion, but as for clamfishermen, their lives do not high toned society ever how very quietly the blue pencil gallops along.

Wonder would Wheeling like to shelter them under the circumstances? At all events your head lines sound mighty like blood and thunder. Just show clearly why New York should exclude and the poor Fire Islanders receive them, and then your congenial epithets may have force. Certainly Miss Lou Collins came to amuse the New Yorkers, not the clamfishermen.

Wheeler, Sept. 14, 1892.

The writer of the above communication will pardon the INTELLIGENCER for suggesting that he is somewhat hasty with his criticism. The head lines he complains of were justified by the contents of the dispatches which followed them.

Those who make haste to sympathize with the citizens of Babylon and Isip for their lawless interference with the right of the state of New York to land the well passengers of the cholera infected steamer at Fire Island, should bear in mind that the hotel at which the passengers were to be quarantined, and which had been purchased for that purpose, was five miles from the nearest settlement, and that the people who were forcibly preventing the landing of the passengers were in no more danger than if the quarantined persons had remained five miles at sea.

The object was to furnish delicate women and helpless children needed comforts, and no danger of infecting the inhabitants of the villages of Babylon and Isip was involved. Better, even if there was danger, that the risk should be run, than to risk infecting New York, with its two million inhabitants, which might be the start of an epidemic that would sweep over the country.

The News From Maine.

This is the first year the Democrats have been thoroughly organized in Maine since 1882, when the Republican majority was only 9,004. This year, with a falling off in the total vote of 12,000, and the best Democratic organization ever known in the state, the Republican majority is over 12,000.

The Democratic committee itself says that the full democratic vote was out. Then the 12,000 stay-at-homes, (remaining there because certain of a victory anyhow) must have been Republicans.

Republicans have every reason to be satisfied with the Maine election. The "slump" Democrats are talking about is in their imagination only.

If the tariff really cut such a figure in the slight reduction of the Maine Republican plurality over that of former off elections, as our Democratic friends are claiming, does not the fact that the returns show that the Republicans gained in the country districts and lost in the cities (where the liquor question was the principal issue), knock into smithereens the Democratic claim that the tariff is unpopular with the farmers?

The Democratic national committee congratulates the Democratic party on holding Arkansas and not being worse beaten in Vermont and Maine. Is there no cause for felicitation to be found in Alabama? And are Rhode Island and Oregon not worth so much as a minor mention in this official bulletin of jollification?

Cholera in New York.

In spite of the efforts to keep cholera out of New York the health authorities are now convinced that five recent deaths are due to that cause. It would have been a miracle if that great port of entry had escaped entirely. It will be scarcely less than miraculous if this proves the end of the story.

All which shows that the precautions that have been taken, hard as they have pressed on the passengers of the quarantined ships, have been none too great. The whole country is in a sense the next-door neighbor of New York.

In view of this intelligence the health authorities of Wheeling should leave nothing undone to put the city in good sanitary condition. That will be a gain from all points of view. More than this, every individual should contribute his share to the public welfare and his own by looking to the sanitation of his premises and himself.

The report that Mr. Cleveland is going to hedge on his party's free trade declaration, is decidedly interesting. This will give him an opportunity to show his ingenuity. Is he going to hedge, also, on his "tariff-for-revenue-only" message of 1887?

The Hungarian plan of dealing with cholera is good—burn everything that comes under suspicion. That which has been burned will never infect anybody.

BREAKFAST BUDGET.

A discovery of buried treasure has been made in a remarkable manner near Hampstead, England. A boy aged three years, the son of a railway contractor, was amusing himself by digging with a wooden spade in the fields, when he discovered buried in the soil several articles of solid silver, manufactured, it is supposed, 200 or 300 years ago. The articles comprise two pilgrims' bottles, two candlesticks and a cup, and weigh together nearly sixty ounces. The articles are valued at about £100.

Henry Young, of Greenbush, Maine, was out blue-berrying near his clearing, and got on to a large hemlock tree to walk along over a rough place. The tree lay about four feet above the ground in the middle, and at this point Mr. Young slipped off the tree and fell on to a large bear that was taking a nap. It would be hard to tell whether the man or the bear was the most frightened, but neither stopped to show fight.

An Irishman who was to return to his native land by a certain steamer arrived on the pier as she was starting and some twelve feet away. Taking a short run he jumped on board, but happened to alight on his head. Being slightly stunned by the shock he did not revive until the boat was some 200 yards off, when he looked back, scratched his head and exclaimed: "Be the powers, and it's a fine jump, it was!"

The Maine fishermen spread a table on board their vessels that would surprise the average person. Barrels of cabbage, turnip, sweet corn, fish, meats, canned goods, etc., are included in the outfit. In fact, all the articles necessary for a first class hotel are found in the pantry. Though they handle immense quantities of fish, neither on board nor at their homes does it often appear.

"As the happy pair left the sacred edifice they were pelted with boiled potatoes." So runs the report of a wedding at the parish church at Lurgan. By this demonstration the populace expressed its opinion of an affair of heart between a woman of eighty and a boy of twenty.

A cannon ball fired from a piece of modern ordnance would reach the moon (240,000 miles distant) in twelve years; Mars in 64 years; Jupiter in 54 years; Saturn in 108 years; Neptune in 390 years and Alpha Centauri, the nearest fixed star, in 3,000,000 years.

The largest number of men enlisted from the thirteen states of America during the revolutionary war was 89,761 in 1776. The aggregate of troops furnished the union army in the war of 1891-65 was 2,320,382.

John Griffin, who was sentenced to the Missouri penitentiary for fifty years for murder, had his sentence reduced to twelve years on condition that he will never drink liquor again.

The Portland (Me.) Argus appeared on the morning after the big fight with a portrait of Sullivan upside down. Fully $10,000 changed hands in Portland.

"Pawpaws are ripe. Pawpaws are useful to afford people the novelty of tasting the first one; they never taste the second."—Topeka Journal.

John Kearney, of Hastings, Ont., was killed by lightning at his home last week while kneeling at family prayers.

When the Trap is sprung.

Upon us, as it sometimes is, in a most unexpected manner by disease, we appreciate the fact that it is a most insidious foe, and that not only is it necessary to combat it by the most potent medicinal agencies, but to prevent its manifestation at all by counteracting the causes that produce it. Thus exposure in wet weather, the enforced wearing of damp clothes during a storm, a thorough draught, unaccustomed diet and water, bodily or mental overwork, and breeders of disease, but Hester's Stomach Bitters will prevent their inducing it. This medicine fortifies the system against the assured effects such causes would otherwise produce. To the mariner, miner, the outdoor laborer, the slave of the desk and pen, and the overworked generally, it is of the utmost advantage. Dyspepsia, kidney trouble, malaria, biliousness, all yield to it.

SPRINGLE A Little Bugine in the cracks and crevices around the kitchen sink, and if there are any roaches or other bugs there they will swarm out and drop dead. 25 cents.

Procure it Before Leaving Home.

Three years ago, while I was visiting relatives at Higinzville, Mo., I was suddenly taken with colic and severe pains in the stomach. My relatives sent to the doctor for medicine, and he sent me a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, telling the bearer that if that medicine did not cure me he could not prescribe anything that would. I used it and was immediately relieved.—Henry A. Thofern. NEW

OF PROFOUND INTEREST.

Something Which Startled Our City.

Right at Home in Our Midst, Where We Know all the Parties.

What is More, the Parties Stand Ready and Willing to Tell all About It.

(From the Rochester Democrat and Chronicle.)

The name of Dan Rice, of 75 Plymouth Ave., Rochester, N. Y., is well known throughout the country. His wife, while enjoying a less wide fame, is the favorite of a large circle of friends and acquaintance, who became very much alarmed at the condition of serious ill health in which Mrs. Rice has been for some time past. She grew terribly nervous, weak and prostrated, frequently dropping upon the floor unconscious, until all were in despair of ever seeing her in health again.

Of late, however, there has been a great change in her condition. Where before she was so terribly run down in health and strength as to make life a burden, she is now strong, healthy, vigorous, and enjoys life thoroughly again.

Her acquaintances are not only surprised and pleased, but greatly mystified as to the cause of so sudden a return to health, when, as everybody knew, she had been so very low and prostrated.

To a friend, however, she explained the secret of her sudden restoration to health. "I had a heart and nerve trouble of long standing. I had fainting spells, sometimes as many as nine or ten in a day. The neighbors frequently found me unconscious. I could not sleep, many times never went to sleep all night.

"I had a great deal of pain in my side and stomach, and I could not sleep on my left side at all. I had an attack of numbness in my right side, which made it difficult for me to speak or swallow.

"I used Dr. Greene's Nerve Blood and Nerve Remedy, and when I had taken two bottles the numbness had left me and I have not fainted but four or five times in the last six months, and I have not had any fainting spells for two months. I can now sleep and rest well.

"My friends are more than surprised at my improved health."

Her friend and neighbor, Mrs. A. Borne, of 15 Brook avenue, Rochester, had often found Mrs. Rice unconscious in these terrible numb and fainting spells before she took Dr. Greene's Nerve Blood and Nerve Remedy, and is delighted, as well she may be, with the effects of this wonderful medicine.

We have for years advertised this remarkable remedy in our columns, and our readers can readily turn to such advertisement in almost any issue of our paper. We know of a great many similar cures effected by this deservedly popular medicine—cures from nervousness, weakness and exhaustion, insomnia, malaria, poor blood, dyspepsia, indigestion, biliousness, kidney and liver complaints, constipation and the weakness of general debility. Many of us are in a weakened and nervous state, lacking our old time strength and vigor. Dr. Greene's Nerve Blood and Nerve Remedy is the very best thing to take to tone up the system and restore our strength. Most everyone needs a medicine to strengthen the nerves, to invigorate the blood and start up the action of the liver and kidneys, and this is the greatest and best of all remedies. It is purely vegetable, too, and perfectly harmless. All druggists keep it at $1.00 per bottle.

We assure sufferers from disease that they cannot do better than to use this really wonderful medicine.

Dr. Greene, of 35 W. 14th street, New York, its discoverer, is a specialist in the cure of nervous and long-standing diseases, who has the largest practice of any physician in the world, and can be consulted personally, or by letter free of charge. Call or write him about your case, or send for a symptom blank to fill out, and a letter, fully explaining your disease, giving valuable advice, etc., will be returned without charge.

This remedy, being the prescription and discovery of this great physician, is not a patent medicine, but on the contrary is a remedy which all doctors recommend and endorse, because they know it will cure.

MORNING SMILES.

The old man had gone over to a neighbor's to find his wandering hens, and he was in such bad humor that his language was, to say the least, not polite. "Don't swear so," pleaded the neighbor, a pious person. "Don't you know curses, like chickens, come home to roost?" "Well," exclaimed the old man at the end of another string of emphasis, "if they are like my chickens, they won't."—Detroit Free Press.

Mrs. Velox—"The landlord was here to-day for the rent." Mr. Velox—"Well?" Mrs. Velox—"Well, I paid him the money and showed him the baby." Mr. Velox (who is rather weary of the fuss made about the infant)—"Bah! Why didn't you give him the baby and show him the money? You women have no sense."—Drake's Magazine.

Dressmaker—"I have taken the liberty of calling on you about your wife's account." Colonel Biderwick (angrily)—"Why don't you see my wife about it and not come to me?" Dressmaker—"I have several times, but every time I call she does nothing but order new clothes."—New York Herald.

Mr. Gruffengrumb—"Did you hear about that western woman who set a bear trap last week and caught a young man?" Mrs. G.—"No; but I've heard of a woman who set a young man trap and caught a bear."—Detroit Free Press.

Bilkins—"I'll go with you, but I'll have to wait till my office boy comes in." Wilkins—"How soon will that be?" Bilkins—"I sent him on a ten-minute errand half an hour ago. He'll be back in about fifteen minutes."—Good News.
