

MYSTERIOUS POWERS.

Remarkable Faculties Attributed to a Boston Physician.

A PROMINENT LEGAL LUMINARY

Relates Some Startling Facts of His Own Investigation--The Experiment of a Washington Reporter.

From the Washington Post.

"Look back of you three seats," said my friend, Judge Goodspeed, just before the limited express from Boston pulled out of the Providence depot.

"You see that gentleman with glasses putting on his traveling cap?"

"Yes, I see him; he has a look between the eyes similar to that of Beecher, Bob Ingersoll and Edison. Who is he?"

"Well, sir, he is one of the best known men in New England, if not in the country. He is one of the most brilliant, brainy and remarkable men of his age."

By this time I was full of curiosity, and wanted to know first who he was, and second all about him.

The Judge, in a cool and contrary mood, replied: "I will first tell you about him, then I will tell you who he is. He is a young man somewhere about the forties. He is a practicing physician and enjoys, as is generally conceded, the largest practice of any physician in the world. In his university course he was admitted for the law, for medicine and the ministry, and a few minutes' conversation with him would satisfy you he was well qualified for either."

"As an orator he has no superior in the land. He is logical in his reasoning and irresistible in his appeals. He is the man of whom Hon. M. C. Kerr, ex-speaker of the House of Representatives, said, 'he did not believe an American jury could be found who would hang a man if he had the opening or closing speech.' When he appears before the Legislature for or against a measure it is a signal for a crowd that no hall in the State House could hold. He appeared against a measure before the Massachusetts Legislature a few years ago. The bill was represented by the ablest counsel in the State. The committee were known to be favorable to the bill, with perhaps one exception. When the bill came up for hearing numerous counsel for the petitioners responded. Then this gentleman arose, and stepping forward, said: 'Mr. Chairman and gentlemen of the judiciary committee, I appear for the remonstrants.' This remark was applauded for it meant to the audience an oratorical duel to the death. After the petitioners had presented their side of the case, and everybody thought the bill as good as passed, this gentleman for three hours argued against the bill. He presented his side of the case in such a light that it looked as though a disgraceful, infamous and outrageous law was being forced upon the state. His sarcasm at times was so severe that one felt pity for his opponent regardless of their feeling in the matter. One minute the whole house would be convulsed with laughter and the next every eye would be moistened with tears. Over many of his eloquent climaxes his bitter opponents would cheer loudly, forgetting what they were doing. I need only add that the committee voted against the bill without any delay."

"I started out to say," continued the judge, "that he was a physician disappointed and disgusted with the ordinary methods of practice that made a specialty of chronic diseases. He has broken away from the old methods, using, as he states, the good from every school and the good outside of all schools. He is a man of means, and consequently he has everything that money can purchase to aid him in his practice. He has enjoyed an extensive practice, and had an extended and varied experience. He is a man of travel, research and broad education. His specialties are said to be cancer, consumption, tumor, paralysis, rheumatism, heart and nerve diseases. These he seems to treat with wonderful success, and his friends affirm that he will cure patients of these malignant diseases who are given up by other methods of practice to die."

"I have understood from the most reliable authority that he averages upward of 13,000 patients under his care all the time. He has several physicians in his employ, and all the facilities necessary for a great and extended practice."

"Young as he is, it is safe to say he is the highest authority in the East on chronic diseases. There is nothing higher in all this country. If he says a man will die he is pretty sure to die, but the hope for the sick man who goes to him lies in this, that he seldom thinks a sick man incurable, and to him they seldom are; when other physicians pronounce their cases incurable, he will take them and cure them in the most astonishing and miraculous way. Many people in New England believe his cures are miraculous--though he stoutly denies that they are anything of the kind--while he refrains from saying how he performs these most wonderful cures."

"But, Judge, you have not told me who he is."

"He is Dr. R. C. Flower, of Boston."

"You don't mean to tell me that this is Dr. R. C. Flower, of Boston, who several years ago startled the world by curing, in apparently miraculous way, the president of the Pennsylvania railroad, also Joseph Jefferson, the great actor?"

"The same man."

"Why, I thought he was an old man!"

"Everybody thinks so?"

"But how old is he?"

"I don't know. I told you I thought he was about the forties. He may be a thousand for aught I know, but he only looks like a boy."

"Well, Judge, how do you come to know so much about Dr. Flower?"

"Well, sir, I will tell you. There was a time I disbelieved everything I heard about him, being prejudiced, I presume against him, but I had a friend, one very near and dear to me, who was taken down with quick consumption. He was a man of ample means and tried the best physicians the world produced, but he grew worse rapidly. His physicians told him finally there was no hope for him--to set his house in order, that he could not live more than six or eight weeks at the best, and as most of his family had died with consumption, we accepted their opinion as the ultimatum. As a last resort, to pass away the hours of the death watch, he went to see Dr. Flower. The doctor told him that it was his opinion that he could cure him, though it would take several months to do so. So favorably did the doctor impress my friend and his wife that they returned home believing he would get well, and, strange to say, that man, almost in the throes of death, a feeble skeleton, arose into health as if touched by a charmed scepter, and today he is a well man."

Shortly after this occurrence my step-daughter had a cancer come in her left breast. It developed very rapidly. Her family physician sent her to a specialist in New York. He pronounced it malignant cancer, and that he could do nothing for her. She then visited Dr. Agnew of Philadelphia, who told her husband that he could cut it out, but it would come again and that there was no cure for her. As a last resort she consulted Dr. R. C. Flower. The doctor told her he would rather not take the case.

"That means," said the woman bursting into tears, "that you do not think I will get well."

This remark seemed to disturb the doctor. "Is your life of very great importance or consequence to your family?"

"I have a sick husband and four little girls--my God! To leave them without a mother and almost orphans, nearly kills me."

This was more than he could stand; big tears filled his large, gray eyes. "Don't cry, my poor child, I will cure you of this disease. I will stand between you and death until your children are grown--By the help of God and the power I possess, I will cure you."

He said this as if he meant it, and I guess he did, for at the end of nine months that woman was a well woman and has been so to this day.

About this time I joined a society for psychological and scientific research. Some of Dr. Flower's cures were so suggestive of the occult, and his examinations so strange that it was decided by our society to investigate his claims and practices. I was made the chairman of the committee appointed to make the investigation. After months of research we arrived at the following conclusions: First, that Dr. R. C. Flower possesses an intuitional power or gift which enables him to diagnose any person's disease in detail and accurately without asking any questions. Second, that he possesses an ability in the treatment of chronic diseases which is phenomenal. Third, that his methods are different from those of ordinary practice and peculiarly his own.

Here is what some of the most prominent people of the East say about Dr. Flower, being a part of our investigations.

Mrs. Mary E. Young, of 92 Harlow st., Bangor, Me., says on the 14th of December, 1891, my little girl was given up as incurable with typhoid fever. After every hope was abandoned, and she sinking through the last change, I telegraphed Dr. R. C. Flower the situation and asked him to save her. He telegraphed that he would do so, that he would stand between my child and death, and for me not to fear--and he did--in the most wonderful way she improved, just as he said she would. We all feel that she was brought back to life. I don't know how he performed the cure, I only know he did so."

Hon. J. D. Hopkins, of Ellsworth, Me., a prominent politician as well as business man, said, "I regard Dr. R. C. Flower, of Boston, the most remarkable, brainy and brilliant physician of this age. My wife and I consulted him some months ago, since which time we have been treated by him and cured. I need not go into the details of our troubles; they were serious but he has removed them. I can't say when I have felt better than I do now, not only cured but I seem to have returned to my youth. Dr. Flower cured a neighbor of mine in the same wonderful and marvelous way, when given up to die of a very ugly internal cancer. I know many of my patients and they all hold him in the same high esteem we do."

"When Mrs. Hopkins and I went to see him he told us our disease in detail without asking a single question. It is just as easy for him to read the inside of a man and tell him all about himself as it is to read a book. It would seem as if he had a book to thus examine his patients was nothing less than a divine gift."

Dr. Brooks, of Brooks & Evans, a prominent dentist of Portland, Me., said: "I am an admirer of Dr. R. C. Flower. I consider him the ablest physician of the age. Why, sir, he can tell a sick person his disease without knowing anything about him or asking him a question, just as easy as he would read his name. He has most successfully treated and cured me of a very serious and dangerous internal trouble which threatened not only my immediate health, but life. I was almost incapacitated for work, was wasting away and rapidly losing my strength. Under his treatment I sprang into health, and gained in strength and flesh, and am now young again. Dr. Flower is to me a marvel, an unsolved wonder. He is the most fascinating and genial man you ever saw. He is quick and brilliant, and it makes one feel well and young to talk with him."

Mrs. Fry, of 198 Oak St., Lewiston, Me., said: "You see that little girl. For several years she was troubled with a growth in her nose which had been gradually filling it up. We frequently had to have it partially removed so she could breathe. The last year it grew rapidly worse and assumed a malignant phase. We were advised to have an extended operation as the only thing that could save her health and life, and with no certainty that it would be successful. Dreading such an operation, my husband took our daughter to Dr. R. C. Flower. The doctor looked at the child a moment, put his hand on her nose, then turning to her father said: 'Your child will get well now; she will never have any more trouble.' And sure enough," continued Mrs. Fry, "this monstrous diseased growth faded away, entirely disappeared, and the little girl has been in perfect health ever since."

Some six years ago Dr. Flower permanently cured Mrs. John L. Horne, of Norway, Me., of an internal fibroid cancerous growth, after the second operation, and she had been pronounced incurable by the leading physicians of Portland, Boston and New York and had gone home to die. The Horne family are so prominent in Maine that a cure like this speaks well for the ability of the physician."

Several years ago Mrs. A. G. Thompson of the Fifth Avenue Hotel, New York City (now of Pittsfield, N. H.), was treated and cured by Dr. R. C. Flower of a blood trouble, of which the leading specialist of New York City said it was not only incurable but that no human power could give her relief. She has been in perfect health ever since.

In the same wonderful way did Dr. Flower cure Mrs. Bond, wife of Hiram Bond, a prominent manufacturer of Haverhill, Mass., after she had been pronounced incurable by the leading physicians and surgeons of Boston, and after unsuccessful operations.

Ex-Gov. Bishop, of Cincinnati, says: "Dr. R. C. Flower is the greatest physician on this earth. If there is such a thing as a man being inspired, he is. You cannot talk to him without feeling better. He cures the most desperate cases in a mysterious and wonderful way."

Hon. J. Willard Rice, of Boston, brother of ex-Gov. Rice, says: "Dr. R. C. Flower is the most interesting and fascinating gentleman I ever knew, and the greatest doctor in this world. I have known him to cure several in the most wonderful and speedy manner, when by other physicians they were pronounced incurable and in the throes of death."

A. A. Rowe, Esq., a prominent business man of Boston, was cured eleven years ago by Dr. K. C. Flower in a speedy and almost instantaneous manner of nervous prostration when all hope of his restoration had been abandoned. He has enjoyed good health ever since.

Dr. Flower removed from the breast of Mrs. Brewster of 29 Thompson street, Springfield, Mass., (her husband is a prominent business man of New England), ten years ago, a monstrous cancer without the knife, and without drawing blood. No sign of the disease since, and the woman in perfect health."

F. N. Turner, of New Britain, Conn., says: "I had been given up to die by five physicians, who pronounced my disease incurable consumption. I was directed to Dr. R. C. Flower by a young lady whom he had cured. As soon as he saw me he went back into my life and told me all the phases of my trouble. When I went to him I did not expect to get well, but when I left him I felt in my soul that I should be cured. He inspires the sick with hope, as nobody else can. Well, I placed myself under his treatment, I began to improve at once, and in a few months was well."

Mrs. Edwin Norton, of Essex, Conn., says: "Dr. R. C. Flower cured me of the most dreadful stomach and heart trouble woman ever had, also of nervous prostration. I had been a dreadful sufferer for over 12 years, had doctored with numerous physicians without benefit. Began to improve immediately under Dr. Flower's treatment and in a few months was cured."

"A wonderful array of testimony I must admit, judge."

"Yes sir," replied the judge, who had settled down to read his book. "The evidence is unanswerable, sufficient to acquit or convict in any court in the civilized world."

"But, Judge Goodspeed, I see these people say that Dr. Flower can tell any one his trouble without asking them a question."

"Certainly he can; that is just what I have been telling you."

"Do you suppose he could tell me my trouble without asking me any question?"

"Certainly he can."

"I believe I will ask him to examine me."

"I should advise you not in a public car."

"Well I am going to ask him anyway. He never saw me, and it would be a great test if he could do so," and without waiting for the judge to introduce me I touched the doctor on the shoulder and said: "I believe this is Dr. Flower."

"That is my name."

"I have been told, doctor, that you can tell a person his trouble without their telling you anything? I have a difficulty, and would like to have you tell me."

"I guess it is curiosity," was his reply as he slowly raised his eyes up into my face.

"I assure you, doctor, it is not curiosity. I am in dead earnest."

"Taking my hand in his for a moment he said: 'Young man, some years ago you got your prodigal or fast life you injured yourself; the disease settled in your left hip, and whenever you are tired or take cold, you become lame and suffer severely in that hip. This happened,' he continued, 'about 14 years ago. Since then you have lived a proper and beautiful life, and it is unfortunate that you should suffer so much for that youthful indiscretion.' By this time I was fairly shaking, for everything he had told me was true. 'Anything else the matter with me?' 'Nothing,' and this was true also.

"Do you know who I am?" I asked.

"Certainly not," was his reply, as he fixed his eyes sternly upon me, and then said, "If you stand there much longer I will know who you are. You are a newspaper man, I would say."

"You are right; but how did you know it?"

"You have a newspaper pulse," was his careless reply, as he turned to his book. "Good afternoon sir."

"I will give it up judge," I said. "That man is a supernatural wonder. You have investigated him, tell me a little more. Where do his patients come from?"

"From every section of this globe."

"Is he high in his charges?"

"I should say he was, but you know such talent and skill will always command high prices. He would not have to doctor anyone but millionaires if he so wished, for the wealthy who seek him are without number, but he is very considerate to the poor. I have known of his receiving thousands of dollars for one consultation, and I have known of his giving the most important consultations for nothing. I presume he does as physicians and lawyers generally do in such cases."

"What is a few hundred dollars when a man's life is in the balance. I am glad for the sick world that there is a Dr. Flower, and I hope for the sake of the suffering he may live long to carry on his good work."

"I think it safe to say as the result of the thorough and scientific investigations made by our society of all chronic incurables who go to him that Dr. Flower will cure fully ninety per cent. I don't know how he does it but I know that he does."

"Dr. R. C. Flower has a brother, Dr. A. H. Flower who is fast becoming famous. They are associated together, but are never both away from the office at the same time."

"His younger brother, B. O. Flower, is editor of the Arena, that able and progressive Boston Magazine."

"The brilliant and fascinating elocutionist and humorist, Elizabeth Flower Willis, is his sister. She has recently forged to the front, and by critics of the stage is pronounced the greatest humorist of the day. Dr. Flower's father has been for years a distinguished clergyman. So you see the entire family are the representatives of brains, skill and progression. If you would know more of Dr. Flower I advise you to send to his office, 559 Columbus avenue, Boston, Mass., for a pamphlet."

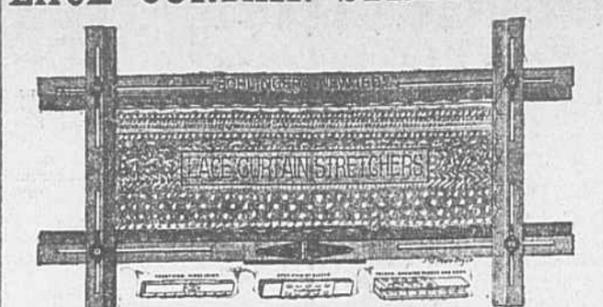

Mrs. Annie W. Jordan. Of 165 Tremont St., Boston, was in very poor health, from bad circulation of the blood, having rash of blood to the head, numb spells, and chills, and the physician said the veins were almost bursting all over her body. A collision with a double runner brought on neuralgia of the liver, causing great suffering. She could not take the doctor's medicine, so took Hood's Sarsaparilla and soon fully recovered, and now enjoys perfect health. She says she could not have taken Sarsaparilla all day and then not say enough.
