A NOTORIOUS WOMAN

Charged With Smuggling Paintings Worth Over One Hundred Thousand Dollars. New York, Oct. 6.—The woman who is accused of smuggling into this country paintings valued at $110,000, is said by the custom house authorities to be the divorced wife of William Campbell, the millionaire wall paper manufacturer.

She is now the wife of an Italian named Di Caccaci, of Naples, Italy. Mrs. Campbell called at the custom house to-day in a very angry and somewhat excited state of mind, and said she had called to refer charges against Inspector Traiteur. The latter, she said, had charged her with smuggling in order that he might take possession of eighty-two paintings of the value of $110,000 which belonged to her.

His motive, she charged, was revenge, because she did not reciprocate his passion for her. She declared that he had pursued her to Saratoga and other places that he might make love to her. Deputy Collector Phelps took the papers, but did not give Mrs. Campbell much satisfaction.

The woman interested is well known. A few years ago she met the man who had been her husband in Central Park, and in the presence of about a thousand persons, went at him with a horse-whip. She has used a horse-whip on other occasions.

It was said at the custom house this morning that she would not be prosecuted nor arrested. The pictures will be taken in charge by Uncle Sam, unless she makes good her allegation that they were used in her house in Naples a year prior to their transportation to this country.

CANADA WANTS IN.

A Movement in Boston for Political Union With the United States.

BOSTON, MASS., Oct. 6.—The new movement looking to the political union of the United States and Canada, represented by Lieutenant E. A. MacDonald, of Toronto, who is at present on a visit to this city, received a substantial endorsement at a meeting of representative Boston business men held here to-day. Hon. Jonathan A. Lane, president of the Boston Merchants Association, presided and President Jerome Jones, of the Associated Board of Trade, President L. G. Burnham, of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, Collector A. W. Beard, Hon. P. A. Collins and other prominent men were present.

Lieutenant MacDonald made an address and outlined his plan of campaign, stating that political union was not only possible, but inevitable, and that the people of Canada were ripe for the great change. The subject was generally discussed, and all the speakers expressed themselves as in favor of the movement from a business standpoint and willing to assist individually in furthering it. It was also stated that this would be the general verdict of the entire commercial community. A public meeting will be held in Boston in a few weeks to further discuss the matter.

THE SHARON CASE ENDED.

A Final Decision Handed Down by the California Supreme Court.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 6.—After dragging through the courts for over eighteen years, during which time the defendant has died and the husband of the plaintiff has been killed by a deputy United States marshal, and the plaintiff has become so hopelessly insane that it was found necessary to confine her to an asylum, the notorious Sharon case is finally settled.

Yesterday when the supreme court of the state was sitting, Judge Clark handed down a decision dismissing the appeal that had been taken from the judgment rendered by the late Judge McShafter in August, 1890. The decision which had been appealed from was the granting of the prayer of the executors of the Sharon estate, that the so-called certificate marriage between William Sharon and Sarah Althea Hill be declared a forgery, and that the representatives of the defendants be authorized to collect costs from the plaintiff. The action was based upon a decision that had previously been rendered by Judge Field, of the United States supreme court, reversing the opinion of Superior Judge Sullivan virtually recognizing Sarah Althea as Sharon's wife.

TRIBUTE TO WEST VIRGINIA.

In closing General Woodford paid a most eloquent and affecting tribute to the state of West Virginia and its people. He recalled that for four successive campaigns he had addressed them, and now again he called on West Virginia to break the solid south.

The scene which followed his fervent appeal was indescribable. The great audience rose to its feet, handkerchiefs waved wildly, cheer followed cheer. When at last the tumultuous applause subsided, General Woodford asked West Virginians to vindicate the election of Goff. Then there was a fresh outburst of cheers. "Stand for a free ballot and a fair count, and have it. Mr. Cleveland proposes to give the spoils of office to the tiger and the American market to the lion. But he has not his needful allies, famine, hard times, drouth and destruction, and without them Democracy never won a national election."

Mr. Harrison beside the bedside of a dying wife is silent in his grief. Let us do for him what he can not do. He offers no bribes. He stands upon his record. Will you support him?" General Woodford concluded amid great applause.

MR. CAMPBELL'S SPEECH.

Chairman Adams then introduced Hon. A. W. Campbell, of this city, who received a most kindly greeting. He proceeded at once to contrast the scenes which he had recently witnessed at home and abroad. Such a meeting as this is impossible in any country in Europe. Such a meeting as that going on elsewhere in this city was everywhere possible in Europe.

Never had he heard a word in Europe favorable to Harrison. Always the sentiment was for Cleveland and Democratic success. This was only natural. Europeans believe that unless Democratic ideas prevail their markets are gone forever. The lesson this teaches is that no party thus supported should be successful here.

In London Mr. Campbell said he had been a member of the National Liberal Club. Out of its 6,500 members he was the only protectionist, the only well wisher of the Republican party. The same was true of every other London and English club.

THE RED RAG TO THE ENGLISH.

The McKinley bill is the red rag which arouses every Englishman. Mr. Campbell related a conversation which he had had with an English iron master concerning it and spoke of how it is in every man's mind there. He had felt called on to remind some of them that the McKinley bill was made on the banks of the Potomac, not on the banks of the Thames. If Great Britain and all Europe was sunk in the sea the United States would go on and be great and prosperous. We are dependent on them for nothing, not even good will.

England is the most selfish country in the world. As long as she could use protection she used it, and was most severely protective. Her aim has been to break down every country which opposed her. And we have a school of economists here who hold up England as an example to us.

WHAT FREE TRADERS WANT.

They claim we should furnish raw material to the world's markets and receive in return the manufactured article, just what England has been attempting throughout her history. She took from us last year $230,000,000 of cotton. She took it over the ocean, manufactured it into $360,000,000 worth of cotton goods besides clothing all her people. She certainly is benefited by that exchange of materials.

Cotton is on the free list, and if by taking the tariff off wool we shall be able to manufacture all our woolen goods, why don't we manufacture all our cotton goods? Mr. Campbell offered to give time to any Democrat to answer this question. There is not a country in Europe but would give all the other markets if it could control the American market. Our first duty is to ourselves. England herself is beginning to doubt the wisdom of entire free trade.

SALISBURY'S DOUBTS.

The late premier, Lord Salisbury, expressed this doubt in his recent speech. She does not yet dare to avow it openly, though her trade is declining month by month and her agriculture is at the lowest ebb. All the world has quarantined against her.

The most distinguished professor of history and political economy at Heidelberg said to Mr. Campbell that protection had lifted up Germany. England is at last the only conspicuous advocate of free trade.

The wisdom of protection is this, shall we do everything for ourselves, or simply be a conveyor of raw materials for the benefit of others. As it is America makes the best goods in the world. He gave an example of an English manufacturer who represented a cutlery establishment who sold American hardware because it was better than the Sheffield. American cotton goods are sold in England because they are better, though they cost more.

It has been diversification of interest which has made England. To an even greater extent this is and should be true of America.

AMERICA LEADS ALL COUNTRIES.

Mr. Campbell said he had returned from Europe convinced that there is no comparison between our own country and any other. Tin plate received the speaker's attention next. He said if it had not been for the back set which protection received two years ago there would be ten tin plate factories now for every one there is, great as is the growth. Exactly the same reasons were advanced a generation ago against the manufacture of lead, yet now lead is as cheap as pins. It has been true of every other manufacture. We have simply to decide for ourselves and our interests as against those of all the rest of the world. In England every person and newspaper is watching this election almost despairingly, hoping and praying for the success of Cleveland, afraid to speak their sentiments lest they be used for the benefit of the Republican party.

The large audience remained to the end, and warmly cheered Mr. Campbell as he took his seat.

General Woodford went on to show in gratified amazement waiting for the tumult of enthusiasm to subside, the complimentary interruption lasting for several minutes, is a scene sometimes witnessed in a national convention, rarely in an ordinary political meeting.

General Stewart L. Woodford, the gifted orator and Wheeling favorite from Brooklyn, had been holding his audience under the spell of his sound logic and persuasive eloquence. Drawing near the conclusion of his great speech he appealed to the men of West Virginia, by all their love of country and of home to break the solid south. Cheers broke out all over the house. Swelling up from the floor they caught the stage and swept that into the whirlpool of enthusiasm. Louder and stronger they grew. Major Aleck Turner's black face and massive form loomed up in the crowd. Men jumped to their feet all over the house. The platform responded to the floor, and soon the house was a mass of waving hats. There has never been anything like it in the city of Wheeling. General Woodford said he had never seen such a manifestation before in a political meeting. It was a great tribute to the orator and the cause he represented.

MR. A. W. CAMPBELL followed in one of his characteristic speeches, dealing calmly and forcefully with facts that have come under his observation and contrasting conditions on both sides of the Atlantic. It was a speech which every voter in the country should have heard. It was listened to with deep interest and brought out frequent applause. Not even the untimely ringing of drums in the street distracted the attention of the 1,600 people who had come to hear and be instructed.

The meeting was one of the most remarkable, and to the Republican cause, one of the most profitable ever held in West Virginia. Many Democrats were present, and by none was there a stronger manifestation of interest than by them. Great as was the enthusiasm, the close attention was even more gratifying to the speakers and to those who are interested to note the effect of the strong arguments and appeals for the cause of protection to American labor.

THE PRELIMINARIES. On the stage among many others were William L. Hearne, esq., Hon. W. P. Hubbard, Hon. Augustus Polack, J. C. Brady, B. S. Allison, State Chairman Dawson, S. O. Boyce, esq., Dr. G. I. Caddie, William B. Simpson, L. J. Bayna, C. B. Hart, Joseph Faria, Dr. Frank Hupp, C. R. Tracy, William H. Travis, O. C. Dewey, W. F. Peterson, Prof. J. McH. Jones, Dr. R. J. Reed, D. J. McKee, Frank Stanton, George K. McMechen, Prof. Bell, Capt. John McClure, Dr. C. E. Ulrich, Barney Zook, A. B. Caldwell, J. C. Heinlein, Joseph Seybold, Alex. Mitchell, J. J. Jones, Col. Hugh Sterling, Joseph Graves, J. D. Culbertson, T. C. Moffat and W. J. W. Cowden.

At 8:40, when County Chairman Hall rapped for order, the hall was simply overflowing and the crowding around the doors was something terrific. Mr. Hall announced that the meeting would be opened with a song by Mr. Wm. M. Clemens, "We'll Vote for Our Dear Benny." The announcement was greeted with applause. Mr. Clemens was assisted by the Young Men's Escort Club. Chairman Hall then appeared on the stage escorting the speakers and the chairman of the evening. They were enthusiastically received. George Adams, Esq., was introduced as chairman of the meeting. In a few well chosen words he introduced Gen. Stewart L. Woodford, characterizing him as a man known wherever freedom of thought and ballot were known.

GENERAL WOODFORD'S SPEECH. General Woodford, after waiting a few moments for the applause to subside, said that he would speak to-night to free traders. Republicans might stand by and help him.

Everything necessary to life can be grown or made in this country. There are more people in this country speaking one language, serving one allegiance than in any country in the world. They can do anything that is to be done better than any other people. They should have one national American policy. That they have not is no fault of Republicans.

It is an expensive business to conduct a government of such size. A large revenue must be collected. Democrats and Republicans scarcely disagree as to a dollar in the amount of this revenue.

THE BILLION DOLLAR CONGRESS. To prove it: The Fifty-first Congress appropriated $1,000,000,000. The cry went up of a "billion dollar Congress." A Democratic house was elected. It went to Washington pledged to reform. It did the best it could, and that was $40,000,000 more for the first year than the preceding house, which must be just the proper amount, and the Republicans appropriated just $40,000,000 too little. All revenue is raised from two sources—internal revenue and customs—and these two only. The simple question between the parties is, upon what articles shall a tariff be imposed and how? Republicans fight for no ambush, they shrink behind no bush. We tell you frankly what we propose to do. We believe that whatever can be raised, grown, made or produced in America shall have the American market and the preference in all things.

DEMOCRATS FOR FREE TRADE. As to the Democrats, the Chicago convention declared for free trade. Henry George, who is stumping New York, says he supports Cleveland because he is for free trade. So does Henry Waterson, so does the Georgia Democracy; the Connecticut Democracy believes in incidental protection to Connecticut products. Hon. D. B. Hill supports everything but Cleveland. Cleveland believes in the party if Hill and Tammany can be kept in.

It is the same old story. In 1846 he remembered how Folk and Dallas in one part of the country supported free trade, in another protection. Then the Democracy betrayed her trust and gave the country over to free trade. You workmen were fooled once, you suffered for it. If you are fooled again now it will be your own fault. By the memory of that former terrible mistake and its consequences, I plead with you workmen not to allow yourselves to be deceived this time.

Then the speaker proceeded to show how a tariff may be levied sufficient to supply the needs of the government and still afford no protection. It might be levied exclusively on non-competing products.

ONLY HARRISON IS SAFE. This is the aim of the free trader. This is the present aim of Democracy. But if everybody who believes in protection will vote for Harrison he would have an overwhelming majority. The trouble is many Democrats can't believe that Cleveland is a free trader. They vote for him because their fathers or relatives were Democrats. They want protection; they don't want free trade. Yet, still they vote for Cleveland. It has always been thus. For thirty years they have been permitting Republicans to save the country while they stood around and talked.
