for a more halcyon future? Murphy and the gang understand the conditions they are dealing with.

Road Improvement. At the Maryland road convention held last week in Baltimore one of the delegates said: "We demand better roads, we are willing to pay for them, and we will fight until we get them."

When a majority of the people of a state come to this conclusion that state will get good roads.

The first step is to convince the people that bad roads are not profitable to them; next that they can get good roads; further, that good roads are a good investment; and finally they must be determined to fight until they get good roads.

Advocates of good roads are confronted by indifference where they should find the heartiest co-operation. Farmers have so long been accustomed to bad roads that, in many cases, they seem quite willing to let bad enough alone. The matter of cost is the greatest obstacle.

Unquestionably it costs more to build a good road than to keep an old road in bad repair, a sort of road work which easily takes care of itself although money is appropriated for it. But a thoroughly good road, open to traffic at all seasons of the year, leading always to market, requiring comparatively little repairing, would soon pay for itself in any community.

When the people determine that this is the kind of roads they want the rest will be easy enough. They will shout their demand in the ears of their law-makers, and their law-makers will be glad to respond.

Mr. CAMDEN will see Mr. Capehart later, about the time Mr. Capehart is looking for another nomination to Congress.

Death of Dr. Bates. For half a century Dr. W. J. Bates has ministered to the sick in Wheeling. No man stood better in this community, and no physician ever had a stronger hold on the regard of his patients. He was a gentle, kindly man, of whom it may be said that his death leaves a real vacancy.

He died as he desired to die, in the harness. Almost up to the day of his death he was given strength to pursue his profession. Many a tear will be shed on the grave of this old and well-beloved citizen.

YESTERDAY not only took the prize for the season, but went ahead of any day for seven years, so far as Wheeling is concerned. Great courting weather.

Smith's Good Fight. The house committee highly resolves that O'Keefe, being a Democrat, is entitled to the seat from Ohio county. The house will adopt the report. The weakness of Smith's case is that he is a Republican. So it was with the gubernatorial contest committee. It knew its own. Mr. Smith has made a good fight from beginning to end. He has the satisfaction of knowing that he was elected.

Mr. GEORGE W. CHILDS, of the Philadelphia Ledger, says that he "would not accept the senatorship if the vote were unanimous." Nothing of this sort has been heard from anybody "prominently mentioned" in connection with either of the West Virginia senatorships. Not one of them has learned to decline the noun "senator."

GOVERNOR-ELECT MACCORKLE, being down in Richmond, tells them that "the recent election ended all talk of Republican supremacy in West Virginia." THE INTELLIGENCER desires to match opinions with Governor MacCorkle about four years from now.

COL. JOHN L. SULLIVAN having left town, it is perhaps safe to say that he need not put himself out of the way to come again. At the same time Wheeling wishes him well in his noble effort to elevate the stage.

AFTER reading some of the fervid southern comments on Ben Butler it is a surprise to see that these esteemed cotemporaries are no longer printed on wall paper.

We are forced to admit of our sunny southern climate that at this moment the orange is not in bloom and the yam giveth not of its abundance.

This isn't racing weather, but the Guttenberg gamblers have all seasons for their own. Is there no S. P. C. A. around Guttenberg?

Is it true that in the good old days the weather was much colder?—Or can it be, O, freeze the thought, that days were much bolder?

The bob-tailed senatorship is not so big a prize as the long term seat, but it isn't going begging.

If Crocker and Hill are out Cleveland may find a balm in Gilead.

PERSONAL POINTS. Dr. S. S. Laws, ex-president of the Missouri State University, has removed from Kansas City to Cincinnati. It is not generally known that Dr. Laws invented the ticker used in handling telegraphic quotations, and from that source realizes a handsome income.

Hudson Shaw, the Oxford lecturer on university extension, has arrived in Philadelphia. He will lecture in this country for three months under the auspices of the American Society for the extension university teaching.

Roger Q. Mills asserts that the immigration bill now pending in Congress "is not intended to prevent the spread of cholera, but to prevent the spread of the Democratic party."

William Henry Bishop, the well known American writer, who has been abroad for several years, is expected home shortly. He is now traveling through Spain.

Senators Daniel and Blackburn and Messrs. W. L. Wilson and Bourke Cockran will attend a Democratic banquet in Frederick, Md., on the 26th instant.

King Humbert and Queen Margharita will celebrate their silver wedding anniversary April 22. The occasion will be marked by a decree of general amnesty.

Ben Butler struck out the words "So help me, God," from the official oath which he took as governor of Massachusetts, remarking as he did so, "The constitution of this state has no reference to God."

Cleveland is receiving so many presents of such animals as coons, foxes and the like, that he will soon be able to start a menagerie.

BREAKFAST BUDGET. A burro loaded with $5,000 worth of silver bars is roaming at large in the mountains around the town of Pueblo, Mexico. It was one of a train of animals loaded with silver bars at the Animazone a few days ago and started for Durango. On the way the animal wandered unobserved from the train.

A seat in the parquet of a London theatre costs $2 63 and one in the first balcony $1 75. Then a programme costs from two to six cents, and the fees of the attendants count up anywhere from a dime to fifty cents.

An English sparrow flew into a toy store at Port Carbon, Pa., and alighted upon an open money drawer. The voracious bird seized a dime and took wings for the outside world.

In one of the leading magazines for the current month there is a story which was written and accepted twenty years ago. Its author is dead.

More than one-fourth of the entire zinc output of the United States last year was mined in Kansas.

The revised German Bible has just been completed.

A diamond for cutting glass lasts about three months.

"THE MAN OF DESTINY." Interesting Coincidence. Springfield, (Mass.) Republican, (Mag.)

It is at least an interesting coincidence that the Democratic organs which opposed Cleveland's nomination are the best pleased with the nomination of Murphy for senator from New York—the New York Sun, that universal rascal's advocate, Atlanta Constitution, Richmond Dispatch and Waterson's Courier-Journal. The explanation is simple—they don't like Cleveland, Cleveland does not like Murphy, therefore they like Murphy.

His Touching Confidence. Albany Journal, (Rep.)

Mr. Cleveland's "confidence" in the vote-stealing and ballot-box-stuffing Democracy of New Jersey is touching. Perhaps he wishes now that he had had more confidence in the Democracy of the Empire state.

The Pap Must Count. Cincinnati Times-Star, (Dem.)

It is declared that he will attend to his own state and appoint competent captains for the army of enthusiastic friends. In short, he will distribute federal patronage in New York with a view to making it count in practical politics.

Burnt His Fat Fingers. Chicago Tribune, (Rep.)

Mr. Cleveland has met with a crushing defeat in the nomination of Murphy and at the same time has received a sharp rebuke for interfering in a matter which was none of his business.

Thugwumpery. St. Louis Post-Dispatch, (Dem.)

If Mr. Murphy used the funds furnished by Mr. Cleveland's friends in electing his own friends, he is truly guilty of thugwumpery.

Rough on Cleveland. St. Louis Globe-Democrat, (Rep.)

The place where Carlisle sits is likely to be the head of the cabinet table, no matter what other men are in the cabinet.

THE SENATORIAL SITUATION. Gov. Elect MacCorkle on the Situation. Richmond Dispatch in Baltimore Sun.

Governor-elect MacCorkle, of West Virginia, who came here to put his wife under the treatment of a surgeon, was asked to-day about the senatorial contest in his state: "The fight," he replied, "is very warm between Senator Faulkner and ex-Senator Camden. We West Virginians are given to much political fighting. This contest is not an exception, and it is hard to say how it will end. Mr. Kenna's death will lend additional interest to the contest. He was a splendid, strong and honest man, and during all of the fierce campaigns in which he was engaged no one ever questioned his honesty or political sagacity. His loss will be felt. I belong to the section of the party with which he was identified. If he had lived he would have gone back to the senate, and during all of his illness we have been loyal and true to him, and even when we knew that his mortal illness was on him we took no steps toward deciding upon his successor. Now that he is dead there will be a contest for his place, and we hope his successor will be as honest and able as Mr. Kenna was. It will be difficult to fill his place. The state is in splendid shape politically, and Senator Gorman says no state in the union is better organized, and our recent fight ended all talk of Republican supremacy in West Virginia."

This one for Faulkner. Webster Echo, (Dem.)

The success of the Democracy of West Virginia this year was greatly aided by Mr. Faulkner, who made one of the most effective canvasses in the history of our state. Of course he should be returned to the senate, and a majority of our people demand it.

Yes! there are more yet. Glenville Pathfinder, (Rep.)

The list of candidates for United States senator from West Virginia is said to be composed of Charles J. Faulkner, Johnson N. Camden, John J. Davis, E. Willis Wilson, Alfred Caldwell, J. W. St. Clair, Joseph E. Chilton, A. Brooks Fleming, Robert S. Carr, Okey Johnson, John Brannon and C. Wood Dalley. Did any of them get away?

What there should not be. Hampshire Review, (Dem.)

The senatorial fight is on earnest. Mr. Camden is a very lively candidate and the outcome is very hard to predict. Whatever the result may be there should be no kicking, no extra session.

Who has the Pole? Welburg Herald, (Rep.)

Hustle is good, but it is to be observed that it is not so frequently the man who wants it most, gets the persimmon, as it is the man with the longest pole.

Bets on Faulkner. Kingwood Argus.

We are betting on Senator Charles James Faulkner remaining in the senate from this state for several years yet, if he lives.

A Point for Camden. Weston Democrat.

It would be a difficult matter for our legislature to overtop Mr. Camden for the work he has done for this state.

We're a-frozin' an' a-snoezin' an' a-snoezin' fit to kill.

The Real Banana Belt. Louisville Courier-Journal.

At New York the mercury has been below zero in but one year of the last ten, while here it has fallen below in five different years. These figures establish the fact that extreme cold is more common to Louisville than in New York city.

Old-Fashioned Like. New York Advertiser.
