

A GLOOMY OUTLOOK

For an Amicable Adjustment of Differences Between the STREET CAR COMPANY AND MEN.

The Power House Men Have Been Ordered Out—It Looks as Though an Extended and Bitter Fight is on Hand—What One of the Strikers Thinks—Last Night's Meeting.

The situation in regard to the strike of the Wheeling street car employes took a decided turn for the worse yesterday, and a long, bitter fight between the company and employes now seems inevitable.

The actions of the street car company officials point to the fact that they intend to fight the union. In support of this opinion, it need only be recalled that non-union men are being brought here from Beaver Falls, Pa., where Mr. Lyda, who is a large stockholder in the local company, controls the street car lines.

Several cars were running yesterday, manned by these new men, and one of them said yesterday afternoon when questioned that more men from Beaver Falls were coming, some of whom were expected to arrive last night and this morning, who were at once to go to work on the Wheeling road.

General Manager Jolly, when seen yesterday evening, said there was no change in the situation. The matter was in abeyance until the arrival of President Kimball. He said he did not know when the latter would arrive here, as he is a very uncertain quantity, hard to reach.

It develops that the union men employed at the two power houses of the street railway company, at Bridgeport and South Wheeling, have been called out by the street car employes' union and they will probably quit work to-night and stay out until a settlement of differences is effected. This action was taken yesterday afternoon, and was caused, so it is said, by the failure of Mr. Jolly and his associates to come to a decision about the strike.

One of the men was seen by an INTELLIGENCER reporter last night and said he did not think they had been fairly treated by the company.

"Mr. Jolly" said he, "promised us an answer Tuesday morning at nine o'clock, but when the arbitration committee of the labor assembly met him at that hour he claimed he could do nothing until President Kimball arrived, whom he said would arrive the next day. This afternoon we saw him again when he said Mr. Kimball had not come and he didn't know when he would arrive, but that as there is to be an election of officers next Saturday he would probably be here then, though he could not say positively. We know the company is bringing in men from Beaver Falls, right in the midst of our attempts to settle with them through the arbitration committee of the labor assembly. This we don't think is right, and consider his attempts at delay very flimsy. It has therefore been requested that the power house men come out to-night, and they will probably quit to-night. It looks to me as though there is going to be a bitter fight. Mr. Williams, whose complaint brought on the strike, saw Mr. Jolly Tuesday and asked him to take back the two discharged men. This, Mr. Jolly seemed willing to do, but he made the very significant remark that the men who went out on the strike, had discharged themselves, and that the question of taking them back is another question."

A wild rumor was circulated around town last night to the effect that a crowd of drunken strikers had assaulted one of a crew of a car down on Jacob street, near Thirty-eighth, and had chased the conductor up town. Investigation proved that there was some ground for the rumor, though not in the aggravated form it had reached when told up town. It seems that one of the cars in charge of non-union men stopped in a crowd of about a hundred people, some of whom were strikers, and some one, said to be a striker, pulled the trolley pole off the wire, so that when the motorman turned the lever, no power came on. The motorman went around the rear end of the car and reset the pole. In the meantime somebody turned off the connections with the dynamo. About this time the conductor became scared and abandoned the car, coming up town afoot. The motorman pluckily stuck to the car, and after making the connections ran the car on up town. One eye witness said no snow balls were thrown.

LAST NIGHT'S MEETING. The striking street railway employes met last night at Nolte's hall, Eoff street, South Side. There was a big attendance, and a member of the arbitration committee of the labor assembly was present. The sentiment of the meeting was almost unanimously in favor of continuing the strike. The ground was gone over, and the union is satisfied that its stand is right.

Immediately after the meeting the chairman of the working committee made the following statement to the INTELLIGENCER: "We want the grounds on which we struck distinctly understood by the general public, who can then determine whether or not we are right. Mr. Williams, of Forty-seventh street, who made the complaint, halted a car ahead of the one manned by Murrins and Schmittle, but as it did not stop exactly where he wanted it it had to not take that car. Murrins and Schmittle are both mill men, as is Williams, who once 'blackheeped.' Murrins was on a committee and offered Williams $5 a day to come out with the strikers. This, Williams refused to do, and there has since been enmity between the men. Williams admitted, however, that Murrins had always stopped for him before. We have a rule which provides that no man shall be discharged without sufficient cause, and this rule is in force up to September 1. The committee of the union waited on Jolly and Loftus. Previous to this Loftus had told the two men at the barn that they were laid off for not stopping. We tried to settle with Loftus, but he told us we must see Jolly and produce witnesses. The next evening we saw Jolly at the office of the company. Williams stated that he was not seventy-five feet from the car, and that he had waved and hailed the men, and that Murrins saw him. He also said the conductor saw him. When asked if he had signaled the conductor he said, no, but that he had cried out 'what do you mean?' The conductor stated under oath that he did not see Williams.

"The next afternoon at the barn Williams contradicted himself, stating he had signaled the conductor. After this Williams went up to try and have Schmittle reinstated, but Jolly said the matter was in Loftus' hands. The latter when asked about it said that both men were discharged. When asked if Schmittle was included in the discharge he answered, 'Yes, both are discharged.' Jolly has since stated to the arbitration committee that a discharge was not intended, only a suspension, yet he was present when Loftus made the discharge. It has been said we did not give the company any notice of the strike, but this is untrue, as we notified them Friday. With these grounds we think we were justified in striking."

A member of the arbitration committee said that the committee had held three conferences with General Manager Jolly, who said Sunday evening that he would give a decision Monday morning. "He failed to do this Monday and put it off, saying he would have to consult with Kimball, and that he would probably be here to-day at 11 o'clock. We went to his office at that time, but were told he was out of town. We have since learned he was there five minutes before we arrived. We called again to-day at 3 o'clock in the afternoon, saw Jolly, who said Kimball might be here Saturday, but he didn't know. It looks to us like a big game of bluff, and that they don't want to settle."

Said one of the speakers last night "This company is an enemy of unions. At Lima, Ohio, they pay 11 cents an hour, Washington, Pa., 12 cents, Rochester, Pa., 11 cents and at Beaver Falls where they broke up the union 16 cents." Here in Wheeling 20 cents is paid.

The carpenters' union has signified its willingness to call its men off the work on the new power house of the company on the South Side, whenever the street railway employes desire it.

ROBERT JOHNSON, a well known colored citizen of high repute, died yesterday, aged 52. A son died suddenly some time ago, and the father never recovered from the shock. Mr. Johnson was highly respected and much liked by all who knew him.

LAST night about twenty small boys attacked a young man with snowballs, and when he retaliated by washing the face of one of them with snow, they used bricks. His face was badly cut. He thrashed a few of the kids, and then a man who did not understand the situation interfered in their behalf. A big crowd was collected. All the boys ought to have been kicked hard.

THE Terriers held another of their enjoyable dances last evening at the rooms of the old Wheeling Club in Rogers' block. Killmyer furnished the music, and the hop was kept up to a much later hour than was originally intended, which was 8:30 p. m. until 12:30 a. m. About twenty couples were present, the ladies adding much to the pleasure and brightness of the occasion by the handsome toilets they wore.

Refused the Injunction.

CINCINNATI, O., Jan. 25.—A decision was rendered by Judge Sage, of the United States court, to-day, refusing to grant a temporary injunction to restrain the Lippincott Glass Company from infringing the patent of the George McBeth Company for making lamp chimneys. The court withheld final judgment on the validity of the patent until a final hearing of the case, but refused the temporary injunction on the ground of a failure to make out a clear case of infringement. The same question has been before the courts at different points seven times and this is the first instance where the injunction has been refused.

EVEN TEMPERATURE.

Yesterday's Variation of Temperature Only 2 Degrees.

SITUATION AT THE RIVER FRONT.

The Ohio is Still Closed Here, But a Break is Expected at Any Time. What Has Been Done Toward Cleaning the Streets—A Suggestion—The Predicted Blizzard Did Not Come.

THE TEMPERATURE YESTERDAY.

Table with 2 columns: Time and Temperature. 7 a.m. 28, 8 a.m. 28, 9 a.m. 28, 10 a.m. 28, 11 a.m. 28, 12 m. 28, 1 p.m. 29, 2 p.m. 29.

The warm weather spell continues, and it can now be said with certainty that the recent big blizzard, which will go into history as one of the most severe, prolonged and extensive ever known, is a thing of the past and no more.

Yesterday was a remarkable day for evenness of temperature, and probably has not been equaled in this section, famous for radical and unlooked for changes. Starting in at 7 a. m., there was only a variation of two degrees up to 6 p. m.

At the river front the situation is still unchanged. The break up of the ice has not yet arrived, and may not reach here for a week, though the high temperature is fast doing its work, melting and weakening the river ice. Despite the repeated warnings people continue to cross over the weak ice, though not at the foot of Twelfth street, where the crew of the Cleveland, Lorain & Wheeling transfer steamer have cut up the shore ice. Up about the Union bridge, however, the ice was being used by pedestrians for crossing, though it is a well known fact, accentuated by the sad drowning of two young boys, Tuesday night, that the ice is unsafe. A number of young men and boys were skating during the afternoon on the shore ice, a very dangerous practice, and if kept up will surely end in more distressing fatalities.

Down on the river front north of Fourteenth street, the ice, snow and slush hauled off the streets has been piled, and a glance at the small mountain of stuff gives a very good idea of the tremendous amount of snow and dirt hauled away, although to look at the streets one would think nothing had been done. To clean all the streets would be a truly herculean task.

The work of cutting channels along the gutters was still in progress yesterday. In case of a sudden thaw these would be very useful. After this work is done, it would be a very good idea to turn streams from all the fire plugs into the streets and wash the mud and slush into the sewers. That would be the quickest and most thorough way to clean the town.

The river men assert that it will take at least a two foot rise to create the expected breakup. As the warm weather has not yet really started the melted snow into the river the breakup will not come until the melted snow runs into the river. Though very high water is sure, nothing approaching the stage recorded in '84 is expected.

The United States weather bureau, which has lately acquired a reputation for sure and accurate predictions, broke its record night before last. The prediction sent out was for a big blizzard on Wednesday, but on the contrary it turned out to be the mildest mannered sort of a day seen around here for some time.

Directors Elected.

The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Riverside iron works was held last evening at the office of the company on Main street, to elect directors for the ensuing year. The old board was re-elected—Messrs. J. N. Vance, W. L. Hearne, J. D. Calbertson, F. J. Hearne and C. P. Dewey.

A NEW GAME LAW.

Provisions of the Bill Which Wheeling Sportsmen Formulated.

The second meeting of local sportsmen who are interested in the passage of a new law to prevent the too rapid extinction of game and fish in this state was held last evening at the McClure House. Among those present were Capt. C. J. Rawling, who presided, F. L. Hoge, John Garden, Charles Berry, Thomas Darrah, G. O. Smith, Dr. A. E. Gamble, Will Miller, Peter Bosley, John L. Rice, Charles Senanney, John Miller, W. H. Tallman, Harry McClure, J. A. Penn, E. M. Statler, G. R. Hoge, William Brand, George R. Peabody and others.

The committee selected at the last meeting to draft a bill to present at this session of the legislature made a report, which was adopted by sections. The following gentlemen drafted the bill, which is almost a complete amendment of the old law: Judge G. E. Boyd, C. J. Rawling, Thomas M. Darrah, F. L. Hoge, Charles H. Copp, J. A. Penn and S. L. Brice.

The earnestness of the effort now being made by the sportsmen in this end of the state was shown by the careful manner in which each section of the bill was gone over before adopting it. Each is aimed directly at the root of the evil. The bill contains a number of good points, which are big improvements over the old law. This has been a law only in name, and hardly ever enforced, the illegal depredations on game and fish being committed almost every day in the year.

The new law provides that no person shall hunt, chase, kill or wound a deer from December 15 to September 15 following. This exempts owners of private deer, and allows three months for all. Rewards are fixed for any one caught killing gray or red foxes, 50 cents; wild cats, 81; weasels, 25 cents, each hawk, 25 cents; owls, 25 cents.

A heavy fine is prescribed for any illegal killing of fish except by hook and line, rig or spear, from April 1 to December 1. It is also lawful to destroy traps and other obstructions along streams. It is made unlawful to destroy game birds between December 20 and October 20 following. This allows two months of good shooting. The use of ferrets in rabbit hunting is prohibited. Among the other important features is the appointment by the governor of an officer who shall be styled a game and fish warden, whose duty in shall be to see that the laws are enforced and to protect the game and fish throughout the state. A salary of $1,000 a year and ten cents mileage is to be paid to that official.

The bill also requires the sheriff and deputies of each county to inform against and prosecute all who break these laws. Failure to do so will subject them to a fine. The bill also deals severely with any one using large seines and dynamite to destroy fish. It also touches upon the wholesale manner in which game is trapped in large quantities and shipped to other markets, the new bill making it illegal to ship game in large amounts out of the state. Bills are being offered against the last offense in a number of states this year on the same subject, to keep the game within their boundaries.

Mr. G. O. Smith and Dr. E. C. Myers were selected to secure some prominent member of the legislature or attorney to push the bill through this session.

The state association, formed at Martinsburg last October, will co-operate with the movement. Mr. J. A. Penn will also open up correspondence with all the sportsmen in all of the large towns in the state, trying to get them to do likewise. The Sportsmen's Association of Charleston has already taken the initial step, and is asking that the Kanawha valley be restocked with game. It is hoped the bill, which is a good one, will meet with success.
