

HER BOY HUSBAND.

She is Twenty-five Years Older Than He Is.

A RUSSIAN WOMAN'S ROMANCE.

She Married the Boy She Adopted and He Deserted Her After Two Years of Married Life—He Came to America and Wedded Again—The First Wife's Ceaseless Hunt for Him—He is Now in Jail.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., March 12.—For ten years Mrs. Rachael Markowitz searched for her young husband. Yesterday her constancy was rewarded by finding him in Canonsburg married to another woman. Ascher Markowitz is now in jail in default of $1,000 bail upon the charge of desertion preferred by the woman who says he married her eleven years ago.

When a young woman Mrs. Markowitz lived in a little village in Russia on the Caspian Sea. Her father died when she was young and left her a little sum of money. With this she managed to live in a comfortable way. When she was about thirty-five years of age she, feeling the need of someone for a companion, took a little boy named Ascher Markowitz, then ten years old, to raise. She became very fond of her boy, and although there was twenty-five years difference in their ages, this fondness developed into love. The kindness of his foster mother made a great impression on the young man's mind, and finally he became desperately in love with her. In 1882, when he was but nineteen years old, he decided to marry the woman who had cared so well for him. He was advised against this by his relatives, who thought the match could never be a happy one with such a disparity in their ages. Notwithstanding all this opposition it is alleged that he married his foster mother in the latter part of 1882.

A SHORT SEASON OF WEDDED BLISS. They lived happily together for two years, during which time Markowitz developed a temper that was none too mild. One day in his rage it is said he struck a looking glass with his fist and the glass cut his hand badly. He rushed out of the house, and his elderly wife heard nothing more of him until she was informed he had taken passage for America.

"I managed to get aboard the same vessel," said Mrs. Markowitz, when interviewed yesterday by a reporter through an interpreter, "and he was in a perfect rage when he learned of my presence. He threatened to throw me overboard several times. We arrived at New York and my husband was taken very sick. I nursed him to health, only to have him desert me again, taking with him some $450 I had along with me and nearly all my jewelry. I made a long search for him in this country with the aid of Mrs. Wolfe, a sister of mine who lives in New York, but without success. I returned to my home disheartened, but by no means did I despair of ever finding my husband. Sometime I have made three trips to this country to find him, but it was not until this last that I obtained any knowledge of his whereabouts. I had a friend in New York who corresponded with a man named Addison Brown, who lived in Canonsburg, Pa. One day, in reading one of these letters, he let the remark drop that Brown was not the man's right name. He said further that the man's real name was Ascher Markowitz. This took me completely by surprise, and I inquired further and finally told my friend that it was my long lost husband. He looked at me in a peculiar manner, and informed me that it could not be possible, as this Markowitz was married. I was always grasping at each thread of hope that offered itself, so I followed the clue this gave me.

ONLY WANTS HER HUSBAND'S LOVE. "After going to Canonsburg and satisfying myself that the man was really my husband, I went before Alderman Gripp and made information against him for desertion. I understand he is married, but I will have my husband or know the reason why. It is not for the sake of the money that I want him. Money is nothing to me, I have worked hard for it and I can do so again. What I do want is my husband's affection and love restored to me."

Mrs. Markowitz is a very short, stout, elderly lady with a decidedly strong German face. She is unable to understand or speak English, so all communications with her have to be carried on through an interpreter. She speaks a very peculiar dialect of the Hebrew language, and there are very few of her people who can understand her readily. In making the information before Alderman Gripp she produced a marriage certificate and license as well as depositions of two witnesses to the marriage ceremony who now reside in New York. All the documents were written in Hebrew. The witnesses said if the depositions were not satisfactory they would come on from New York and give their testimony. It is probable that a charge of bigamy will be made against Markowitz.

MARKOWITZ, who has been conducting the business of a tailor in Canonsburg under the name of Addison Brown, denies that he ever married the woman. He acknowledges the fact that she is his foster mother, but says she has no claim upon him. When arrested he was very much surprised, and when told he would have to go to jail he offered the officers a good round sum of money if they would take him back to Canonsburg to get his wife. Markowitz is in jail, and the woman who claims to be his wife is staying with a friend on Fifth avenue, near the market house. Markowitz lives with his wife and child in Canonsburg, and the effect of this exposure of her husband at this time may be very serious, as a little straggler is expected at the home hourly.

HAS A BAD RECORD.

A Counterfeiter and His Pal Held for the Grand Jury at Parkersburg. PARKERSBURG, W. Va., March 12.—The case of Madison Brewer and J. W. Webb, the Belleville agricultural implement manufacturers, charged with "shoving the queer," was tried before United States Commissioner Tavanner here yesterday and they were committed to await the action of the grand jury. Webb waived examination while the case was on and evidence was only taken against Brewer. It was shown that Brewer had served two terms in the penitentiary, and that after he was arrested he had thrown a lot of stuff in the stove at the Gilmer county jail, which, when gotten out of the fire, proved to be base metal. Evidence was also produced showing how the men had passed the money on numerous persons and the coins found on them were offered as testimony against them. Webb is a man of property, has always stood high in the community, and the evidence produced created a great sensation.

THOMPSON WAS DUPED.

Report of the Congressional Committee on the Panama Jumble. NEW YORK, March 12.—The congressional committee appointed to look into the conduct of the affairs of the Panama Canal, the Pacific Mail Steamship and the Panama Railroad companion made its report public yesterday.

Among other things the committee finds that the three great banking firms, J. & W. Seligman, Drexel, Morgan & Co. and Winslow, Lanier & Co., who were the financial agents of the Panama Canal Company in this country, the first named concern confessed to spending 40,000,000 francs. Neither of the others is credited with any expenditures to advance the interest of the Panama Canal Company.

Another finding of the committee is that the three banking houses named above received apparently for the loan of their names, and for nothing else, to this enterprise, the minimum sum of $1,200,000. Four hundred thousand dollars apiece, or $30,000 a year was paid those houses, without the knowledge of ex-Secretary of the Navy R. W. Thompson, chairman of the American committee, created to popularize the Panama Canal scheme. Thompson had all the time supposed that he was the most important factor in the enterprise, and was himself receiving but $25,000 a year for his services. When the canal company went into liquidation, his salary was chopped to $12,500, he remaining in complete ignorance that the members of the committee, of which he was still chairman, were each receiving $50,000 a year.

"What influence," the report says, "was exerted upon the financial public opinion of the United States by the names of those three great banking houses, what indirect credit and popularity was given to the enterprise through their numerous correspondents and connections throughout the country, it is perhaps impossible now to estimate; but to effect this was the object of the formation of this American committee, a committee which testifies that it had no regular meetings, and some members of which were never present at a meeting, or know of any kept by the committee, while each of these houses were receiving $400,000. This fact, if it is a measure of the general conduct and management of the Panama Canal Company, may possibly explain why it was compelled to go into liquidation as soon as it did."

The report also states that "Your committee has examined the matter sufficiently to be able to say that, so far as the treaty of 1840 with New Granada is concerned, and so far as the concession granted to and contracts made with the present Panama railroad corporation, there is no clear ground for the assertion that any exclusive right to cross the Isthmus was ever in terms granted or by implication secured either to an American corporation or to citizens of the United States, to the exclusion of citizens of any other country."

"Your committee reports that it has not found any evidence to show that corrupt or improper means were used to stifle the investigation or discussion of these resolutions in fact, in spite of the arguments of Mr. Thompson and the counsel employed by him to assist, the Crapo resolution was reported back to the house in a somewhat modified form, but with a report ringing with ultra-American patriotism and a manly, yet conservative, assertion of the Monroe doctrine as it is generally understood in the United States.

"Your committee can not refrain from calling attention to what seems to be an obvious deduction from the facts shown, that it is in the interest of the United States that the American people should absolutely control some outlet across the Isthmus, at some point which shall be used for the benefit of American trade in general, as an open and continuous competitor, affording no opportunity for entangling subsidies from great competing lines or chance of falling into the grasp of any monopoly through stock manipulation."

BELLAIRE.

All Sorts of Local News and Gossip from the Glass City. The Republican city convention meets at the city hall this evening to nominate candidates for water works trustees and for members of the school board. The following gentlemen are the delegates to name these candidates: Col. C. L. Poorman, William Heslop, Harry Thurber, Patrick Scallill, J. H. Hoffman, John Motler, Charles H. Bluffman, John Strobel, E. C. Michael, Henry Bonarius, John Armstrong, Robert McVey, D. C. Shephard, M. List, James Wilkinson, T. C. Nicholson, Harry McGregor, Alex. Gallaher, Fred Squiggins and Joseph W. Heatherington. This is a splendid lot of delegates and they ought to be able to name a strong and winning ticket.

Rev. Samuel Cochran and family, of County Tyrone, Ireland, who have been sojourning in this country for about a year, are now guests of the family of Mr. Joseph Clements, in this city. Rev. Mr. Cochran was pastor of the Dorvaghroy church at Mr. Clements' old home in Ireland, and when his health began to fail he came to this country in hope of benefiting it. During his stay in the northwest he received a call from the Presbyterian church at Wellsburg and he accepted it and will go to Wellsburg this week to see his American parish for the first time.

The deal for the Bellaire street railway was closed last week, J. Felix, of Boston, turning over all the property, rights and privileges to A. R. Leyda and others, in consideration of $15,000. This looks as though there was not any doubt of an electric road here, for no one would pay one-third that sum for things as they now stand. The committee and city solicitor, together with the projectors of the electric line, had a meeting the other night and will probably have an ordinance ready for its first reading to-morrow night.

The Republican township mass convention was held at the city hall Saturday afternoon and was organized by electing ex-Sheriff W. C. Cochran and M. F. Heasley. The ticket to make was a short one and David B. Long was nominated for trustee by acclamation, as was John W. Liller for treasurer and W. F. Unterbrueck for assessor of the country district. Just ten minutes was consumed in making the ticket. Everett Triplett, of Batesville, accompanied by an officer, came here last week in search of his daughter, Julia A. Triplett, a girl nineteen years of age, who he said had eloped with her uncle, David Watson, a man about thirty-five. Triplett traced them to this city, he said, but here he lost all clue to them, and he left town Saturday, saying he would inform the officers at Marietta. The Scotch Preserving Company, just organized here with a capital stock of $30,000, does not in any way interfere with the Perfect Fruit Canning Company, organized some time ago, and which has already contracted for about all the tomatoes in the neighborhood for this season. The new company will make a specialty of high class preserves.

The Democratic city convention on Saturday evening nominated for water works trustees George S. Jennings and P. J. McDonough; for members of the school board, James T. Kelly, John Stegar and Isaac Cotta.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank P. Barber, of Canton, N. Y., are visiting here and may locate in this city. Mrs. Barber was formerly Miss Minnie Heinze, the daughter of a German minister here.

Thomas Flood, who obtained $16 worth of groceries from D. E. Payne under false pretenses, will be sent to St. Clairsville jail by Mayor McGowan this morning.

The old homestead of the late Rev. James McKeen was sold Saturday and was bid in by one of his sons, Emmet McKeen, of this city.

Mrs. James Wilson entertained the Gravel Hill reading club at her home at its last meeting.
