Some of the Curious Exhibits in the Fisheries Show.

WHALE SKELETONS, SEA LIONS, FISH

Of All Kinds, Crabs, Oysters, Clams, and Many Other Features of Life in the Deep—One of the Most Interesting Exhibits at the World's Fair.

Special Correspondence of the Intelligencer.

WORLD'S FAIR GROUNDS, June 3.—Mystery enshrouds so much of the life at sea that interest never flags in the captives as shown at great expositions. Captain J. W. Collins presides over a department at the Columbian Exposition that is a veritable congress of all that could interest any one in sea life. The department is so classified as to show everything pertaining to fish, including the fish themselves in endless varieties, the food of the fish, methods of catching them, animals and birds that prey upon them, boats, homes and schools of fishermen, implements and improved apparatus for catching them, and all the products of fish, as canned, smoked and pickled fish, glues and oils. One attractive section in this big building, not far from the magnificent aquaria of living fish, is the display made by Washington, the baby state of the union, recently christened the "Evergreen State," in recognition of the magnificent forests of fir, cedar, hemlock, spruce and yew, all of the family of cone bearers. This display is always surrounded by a crowd of interested people. One of the principal reasons for this fact is that the exhibit is crowned by a huge skeleton of a whale, suspended from the roof. The whale is of the species known to science as the Megaptera variabilis, and commonly known as the Pacific Humpback whale. This specimen was 47 feet long, and 48 feet in maximum girth. It was washed ashore in Pacific county, Washington, and was presented to the state by President Loomis, of the Ilwaco Railway & Navigation Company. The tedious work of preparing the skeleton was done by Professor J. Hudson, the taxidermist of the World's Fair commission, who has had charge of installing both the fisheries and taxidermy displays of the state of Washington. The fishery exhibit from this state includes mounted specimens of seven varieties of salmon, known to the trade as chinook or king salmon, steel head, silver salmon, nasli, blue-back, Alaska humpback and Quinault; several species of sturgeon, halibut, rock cod or groupers, buffalo cod, to cod, ling cod, sculpin and skate. These are all mounted by skillful taxidermists. There are also many of the smaller fish such as smelt, herring and trout, as well as shad, carp and eel preserved in alcoholic solutions. There is one beauty in a large glass jar. It is a Dolly Varden trout weighing fourteen pounds. The fish are arranged in groups, garnished with clusters of star fish, shells, crabs and other crustaceans. A large oil picture of the whale as it appears in life, a collection of fish eating birds and animals and a display of photographs showing the fishermen's homes, employment and methods of catching fish, showing the canneries and all surroundings and many other interesting features of the industry make the section attractive. Oysters, clams, mussels and other shellfish are shown in jars of alcohol. Some of the principal canneries, such as J. G. Megler, Pillar Rock Cannery, S. Schmidt

THE NATIONAL TREASURY.

Its Condition Without a Precedent—No Uneasiness Caused by the Invasion of the Revenue.

WASHINGTON, June 4.—With the close of the week the treasury finds itself in a condition that is without a precedent. The gold reserve has been invaded by the shipments of the week to an extent that has brought it considerably below $90,000,000, and nearly $5,000,000 below the lowest point reached a few weeks ago, when there was quite a scare on account of the drain, and when the condition was made a means by the bears of the New York stock market to hammer down all sorts of securities lower than they had been for years.

Now that the country and the treasury have got used to it the invasion of the reserve seems to occasion no uneasiness whatever, but, on the other hand, the exportation is watched with scarcely more than a feeling of curiosity to see the result of the movement. Large shipments, running into the millions, are expected to be made next week, and the country need not be surprised to hear one week from to-day that the reserve has been drawn upon to the extent of upward of $15,000,000, which would leave in the treasury less than $75,000,000.

What action will be taken by the authorities of the treasury department is not known. Secretary Carlisle anticipated the call for gold before he left for his three days' outing yesterday, but he gave no hint whether he would attempt in any way to build up the reserve. He will return to his desk tomorrow, and it is probable that he will at an early hour give some indication of his intentions.

Of course some anticipation of the probabilities may be had from what has been done in the past. It may be assumed, with much certainty, that there will be no talk of issue of bonds until the reserve is brought down far below any figure that is now thought to be possible. It is equally certain that if any note is taken of the drain of gold it will be in the form of a repetition of the request of a few weeks ago that the banks of the country turn in their gold to the government in exchange for legal tenders. It is probable that the bands will, in many cases, do this action without any request from the secretary, as it is to their interest more than to any other class of institutions to prevent a panicky feeling in the money or stock markets.

THE CHILDREN'S BUILDING.

Description of One of the Most Interesting Features of the Fair.

CHICAGO, June 4.—The children's building, to which the public will henceforth be welcome, is a distinctly attractive place. The reception-room on the north front of the first floor is one of the least important rooms in the building, but is in perfect character with the other apartments. It has a plain frieze of tablets and fountains around the walls, and in the tablets were the names of the following friends of children: Nathaniel Hawthorne, the Brothers Grimm; Thomas Hughes, Pestalozzi, Thomas Arnold, Horace Mann, Carl Reinecke, Mother Goose,

Walter Crane, Edward G. Howe, Uncle Remus, William L. Tomlins, Hans Anderson, Elizabeth Peabody, Froebel, Baroness von Bulow, William T. Harris and Susan Blow. The library immediately over the reception room, in charge of Mrs. Bates, is intensely interesting. It contains 150 volumes of children's books, every one of which was given by the author with his autograph and a friendly sentiment on the fly-leaf. Oliver Wendell Holmes sent his "Brother Q," Thomas Bailey Aldrich his "Story of a Bad Boy," the late Louisa Alcott, by her sister, her "Little Women." Some of the books are from Boyesen, Stockton, Dodge, Trowbridge and Oliver Optic, and many of them from England. There are on the wall also ten fine likenesses of children's authors, contributed by themselves. Harper Bros., Lothrop, the Century and the Youth's Companion contribute a full line of original drawings. In the hall is a beautiful showcase full of Japanese toys for children, given by the Japanese minister, and some admirable children's books. One is a magnificent edition of several of Mother Goose's stories with photographs of real children living in Chicago for the characters in the stories. Another is a book of autographic tributes to childhood by prominent people, including President Harrison, Dr. Jewett, of Oxford, Rudyard Kipling, George W. Cable, Oliver Wendell Holmes, Cannon Farrar, David Swing, the Shah of Persia, and fifty others. Another is called "Children I Have Met," by James Payn, the English novelist. The painted decorations in the children's building, with the exception of those in the room occupied by the New York kitchen garden, and the work of George L. Schreiber and Charles Francis Browne. A frieze extending entirely around the large room at the east end of the building is composed of a series of panels and medallions. In some panels are scenes from such nursery tales as "Cinderella," "The Three Bears," "Little Red Ridinghood," and Grimm's fairy tale of "The Golden Goose." In others are painted inscriptions or quotations relating to children. In the medallions are figures of nude children representing the signs of the zodiac and scenes showing children at various sports and occupations. A portrait of Froebel, the father of the kindergarten, is in the medallion in the centre of the west wall. In one of the rooms on the second floor there is a ceiling decorated by the same artist. A group of figures of children in the centre is Mr. Schreiber's conception of the "Pleades," suggested by the quotation from Locksley Hall:

Many a night I watched the Pleades in the dim and mellow shade, Glimmer like a swarm of fireflies Taught in a silver braid. The arrangement of the figures is agreeable and the color throughout the entire decoration is pleasing. On the lower floor there is also a small room decorated with a frieze, composed of a succession of shields bearing the names of writers, instructors and artists who have worked for the advancement or entertainment of children. On the exterior of the building there are eight medallions, in which are shown children of different nationalities. Panels in the New York Kitchen-Garden are painted somewhat in the style of Kate Greenway's illustrations for children's books, and represent the children of the Kitchen-Garden institution at work and play.

ANOTHER BANK FAILURE.

A Crash at Chicago—Supposed Suicide of One of the Owners.

CHICAGO, June 4.—Another bank went to the wall yesterday when the private firm of Herman Schaffner & Co., the largest house of the kind in the city, assigned. J. B. Chapman, cashier of the American Trust and Savings Bank, the assignee, put up the following notice: "This bank is in the possession of the American Trust and Savings Bank. Mr. Chapman to inquirers said: "I cannot tell you what the assets and liabilities are until I get a statement from the books. The cause of the failure? Too much commercial paper. They were the biggest dealers in commercial paper in the country. They handled $35,000,000 of it last year. There was no sale to speak of this year, and that is the cause of the failure." Some months ago, it is said, Schaffner & Co. got caught in the Deibel Brothers failure for over $100,000, in the Dalsell newspaper failure for $25,000, and in the M. E. Page failure for a large amount. The deposit business of Schaffner & Co. is said to have been only moderate. Regarding the firm's transactions in commercial paper, it is stated that Schaffner never sold any with his own indorsement, but always on its merits. In the course of his business, when he did not have any money of his own, he borrowed from the banks and pledged the commercial notes as collateral. It is said Mr. Schaffner was caught in the recent slump on the local stock exchange.

In the absence of a statement by the assignee, it is given out, but not authoritatively, that the liabilities will not exceed $500,000, and the assets more than cover the amount. Schaffner & Co.'s failure caused one of the most exciting scenes ever witnessed on the floor of the Chicago stock exchange. From the opening to the close the bidding was spirited, and an immense number of deals were put through. Stocks declined with surprising rapidity, and for a time the oldest brokers were at a loss to estimate how long the slumping would continue. As a result of the day's trading, many of the small holders of the West Chicago railway and North Chicago street railway stocks have serious trouble in meeting their margins.

To add to the excitement it was reported that Schaffner had committed suicide. The assignment was undoubtedly caused by the disappearance of Herman Schaffner, the senior member of the firm, of which the other member is A. G. Becker. For several days the bank, it is said, has been in trouble, and the impending disaster appeared to have a most depressing effect upon Mr. Schaffner. Yesterday afternoon he left the bank, and since then has not been seen. The worst is feared by his friends and business associates. During yesterday afternoon he did not appear at his usual places, and all during the evening a vigorous search was maintained by his family and friends. At midnight he was still missing, and at 1 o'clock this morning Julius Rosenthal, his brother-in-law, went to the home of the Chief of Police McClaughey and told him all the facts in the case.

Among bankers the mysterious disappearance of Mr. Schaffner, leaving out the insanity theory, was explainable only on one ground. Said one: "I do not see why he left if he had not been indorsing commercial paper too heavily." Mr. Schaffner's partner was so much moved over the disappearance of his associate that last night he became ill and he is now at home suffering from the worry. The gravest fears are entertained by Mr. Schaffner's friends for his safety. It is said that acute mental aberration is not unknown in his family.

MAY BE NO SPLIT.

Dr. Van Dyke Says There Will Be None if the Conservatives Refrain from Force.

NEW YORK, June 4.—Rev. Dr. Henry Van Dyke, pastor of the Brick Presbyterian church, whose attitude on the Briggs question is well known, returned to the city yesterday. He said: "I hope and trust there will be no schism. Moderate and conservative men realize that there are too many denominations already. Christian progress moves along the lines of unity and mutual toleration. The true church must be comprehensive. But if an attempt should be made to enforce the dogma that the original autographs upon all Presbyterians, a large and respectable body of ministers would resist it to the uttermost by every lawful means. They would suffer any hardships rather than profess to believe that of which they know nothing. A new denomination would be created. But it would be composed of those whose devotion revolves around the vanished original manuscript. The true Presbyterians, loyal to the Bible as it is and the church as it ought to be, would continue to exercise the ministry of reconciliation and to teach and preach Christ Jesus as the true light that lighteth every man that cometh into the world."

The Whisky Trust.

CHICAGO, June 4.—President Greenhut, of the whisky trust, left for Peoria last night, saying he had accomplished his mission in securing proposals for the sale of the $1,000,000 bonds. Contrary to expectations, he did close the sale, and from the fact that the proposals will be submitted to the meeting of the board of directors at Peoria, Monday, it is believed that the amount bid is less than expected.

Twenty Years' Experience.

C. D. Frodricks, the well known photographer, 770 Broadway, New York, says: "I have been using ALCOCK'S PONSUS PLASTERS for twenty years and found them one of the best of family medicines. Briefly summing up my experience, I say that when placed on the small of the back ALCOCK'S PONSUS PLASTERS fill the body with nervous energy, and thus cure fatigue, brain exhaustion, debility and kidney difficulties. For women and children I have found them invaluable. They never irritate the skin or cause throat, coughs, colds, pains in side, back or chest, indigestion and bowel complaints."

A TURKISH WORLD'S FAIR.

The Sultan Proposes to Have an Exposition at Constantinople.

LONDON, June 4.—A correspondent at Constantinople writes that the sultan has heard of the glories of Chicago, and has thereby been strengthened in his resolve to have an international exhibition in his capital. Selim Effendi Melhame, to whom the preliminary work was intrusted two years ago, was summoned to the palace a few days ago, and required to give an account of his stewardship. The recital did not take much time. He managed to get hold of a small building last year, which he had filled up with various products of the Ottoman empire, bought or requisitioned in the bazaars, and then he was brought to a standstill through lack of funds—a kind of stoppage which is not unusual in Turkey. The Imperial Ottoman bank was willing, he said, to advance him money if he would find adequate security, and he respectfully suggested to his royal master that taxes on tramways, steamers and railways might be so manipulated as to yield an additional $100,000 a year, which the bank could collect. The sultan thought there might be something in this scheme, and authorized Selim Effendi Melhame to go ahead with it.

Selim is very proud of the little museum which he has already established and speaks of it confidently as the nucleus of the vast show to come. His vanity is pardonable in the circumstances, for he has worked very hard for an Oriental, and, stranger still, he has really devoted what money he could get to the purpose for which it was given. The Imperial Ottoman Bank directors are prepared to take the scheme out of the hands of the over-worked Selim, but they want ample guarantees to cover every pinster they may have to spend—an attitude which not only shows lack of confidence in the sultan, but is likewise extremely awkward, seeing that almost every source of revenue is already hypothecated.

RECEIVER WANTED.

A Suit Began Against Lewis Baker's Paper at St. Paul.

MINNEAPOLIS, MINN., June 4.—An action has been brought against the St. Paul Globe Publishing Company, the St. Paul Trust Company (as the executor of the estate of N. W. Kittson), Lewis Baker, minister to Nicaragua, Lewis Baker, Jr., the Daily Globe Building Company, C. W. Eberlein, and George L. Hilt, by John P. Oswald, P. B. Winston, and Theo. Basting. The allegations are: At the time the Globe Building was erected in this city, the Globe Publishing Company leased it entire for an annual rental of $15,000 a year for twenty years, and that at the time the Globe Publishing Company vacated the building—May 1, this year—it owed the building company $38,807.57. The plaintiffs ask that a receiver be appointed and that a settlement of the affairs be made by the court. John P. Baker says most of the stock in the Globe Building Company is owned by the Globe Printing Company and the Kittson estate, and that the plaintiffs above named have but a small holding of stock. At best, he says, they could not obtain judgment for more than $5,000 or $6,000 upon their own statements.

THERE is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in acts from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O. Sold by Druggists, 75c.

Do You Ever Wash Your Hair Brush?

This is the best way: Put one teaspoonful of Pearlina into a basin of warm water; wash the brush thoroughly in it; rinse in clean water, and set it aside, bristles down, to dry. This is only one—a small one—of the numberless uses to which you can put Pearlina. Once you have it in the house, you will find something new for it to do, every day. It does your washing and cleaning better than soap. Try it on anything for which you've been using soap, and see.

Peddlers and some unscrupulous grocers will tell you, "this is as good as" or "the same as Pearlina." IT'S FALSE—Pearlina is never peddled. If your grocer sends you an imitation, be honest—send it back.

BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS

BERVILLE, Mich., April 13, 1889.

MESSES. FOSTER MITCHELL & CO.

Dear Sirs:—I write that you may know the good I have received from the BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS. I am now on the ninth bottle of your wonderful Bitters, and must confess I have received prompt cure of a long standing disease—SCROFULA. I have used dollar after dollar's worth of medicines and received no relief, but the third bottle of B. B. B. I found great rest. I have also used three bottles of BURDOCK PILLS; they are the best medicine I ever took. I cannot praise them too highly. I do owe my whole life to them and can recommend them to every living soul that is afflicted with that dreadful disease, SCROFULA. I was afflicted with lumps as large as an egg in my right side and large lumps on my throat, and my limbs were covered with a burning and itching rash, which very greatly annoyed me when near the warm stove. I had spent a great deal of money trying to get relief, and consulted the best medical treatment in the State, but all in vain, they did me no good whatever, and I had about given up when I thought I would try your medicines, and, thank God, they have cured me. I am a well woman to-day. Your ever true friend and well wisher, MRS. CHAS. HUTTON, Berville, St. Clair Co., Michigan.
