

A TERRIFIC STORM.

One of the Hardest in Recent Years in this Vicinity.

THE CITY ESCAPES THE WORST

But Across the River and out in the Country Some Damage is Done. Hail, Wind, Rain and Lightning Mangled Streets and Roads Flooded—Telephones Burned out and Several People Shocked.

A little before 6 o'clock last evening one of the severest storms experienced in this vicinity for several years set in, and it lasted for some time. In the city it was not nearly as severe as over in Martin's Ferry and out about Elm Grove. A little hail fell, but not enough to do damage. The heavy wind broke many branches off trees about town, and on the island a few fine trees were blown down. The most serious result was from a stroke of lightning which struck a telephone wire, and entering the exchange, burned out about 200 of the telephones. Among these were the ones in the county jail and police headquarters. The work of repairing the damage was begun at once, and by this morning they will be all right again.

The rain in town was not nearly so hard nor so long continued as on one or two previous occasions this summer. At other points, north, west and east of the city, however, it was said to be almost unprecedented in volume in as short a time. At Elm Grove there was a terrific hail storm, accompanied by rain heavy enough to flood roads and everything. The lightning was for a time almost constant. One unusually sharp stroke struck a tree about 7 o'clock, a few rods from the county infirmary, and split it into fragments. Some of the pieces were hurled quite a distance. Every inmate of the infirmary was affected by this shock, and some of them did not entirely recover for several hours. The hail did serious damage to vegetation, beating down grain, breaking corn off, and denuding some young trees of their branches. The exact extent of the loss from the effects of the storm could not, however, be even estimated last night. It was evident from the promptness of the reports of thunder after the flashes of lightning that many of them had struck in town, but inquiry failed to reveal any damage done beyond that stated. All the brooks and creeks in the country were running out strongly last night out in the country, some of them being out of their banks.

OVER THE RIVER.

The Worst Storm at Martin's Ferry for Six Years Past.

The most severe and destructive rain, wind, hail and electrical storm Martin's Ferry has experienced since the great cyclone six years ago was that of last night.

The storm came up shortly after five o'clock, and was at its worst between 5:30 and 6:30. Rain fell steadily from 5:30 until 8 o'clock, and hail stones of all sizes almost incessantly fell for forty-five minutes. The hail fell so fast that it covered the ground in many places and was seen lodged up against fences and buildings to the depth of several inches. More hail fell than during the entire time of the big hailstorm in April, 1882, but, for the reason that it came from the north, little damage was done to buildings. It stripped very small shade and fruit trees, vineyards and corn, and did much damage to vegetables and fruits generally. Only a few panes of glass were broken. The greatest damage in Martin's Ferry by the hail was on north of Jefferson street, not much falling in the lower end of town.

It has been a long time since as much water fell inside of an hour and a half as did, commencing soon after five o'clock. Streets were flooded, cellars were filled and in some places people were driven to the second stories of their homes. Water seemed to shoot down Walnut, Hanover, Hickory, Fayette and other streets, as never before. Officer William Bowman, who lives on Walnut, says that it seemed to him like the water from every street in Martin's Ferry ran into that street. New pavements and curbing were washed out in several parts of town and washouts were numerous. Several streams were on a taw, notably Clark's Run, and this flooded the Cleveland & Pittsburgh track from the Laughlin nail works to the Eleon glass factory. Large cobble stones were washed down Hanover street like marbles.

The new electrical railway experienced not a little damage and inconvenience. It was unsafe to cross the track with a team just after the storm. William Lipphardt was one of the first to try it, and his horse sank in clear up to its knees. Many persons say they never saw so much rain fall in an hour or two. The lightning was the worst for a long time, and it is surprising that more damage was not done by it. Several trees were struck, but not a single building that was learned of. An electric light pole near the Cottage house was shattered. Crack after crack was heard throughout town, and numerous telephones were burned out and some electric light property suffered, as also did the signal boxes of the electrical railway.

The wind was at times so severe that it shook frame residences and even made brick ones tremble. Passengers in the C. & P. passenger depot were frightened by the way it shook, and this is a very substantial brick and stone structure. A very large number of trees of all kinds were blown down or broken, some large ones and many small frame structures, fences, etc., blown down. The dark clouds, wind, hail and lightning caused much alarm, especially among people who were in the cyclone. Houses having windows up were considerably damaged by the rain. The water entered Schofield's Music Hall by this means and ran through both floors below. Mrs. A. W. Hail was struck by an upstairs window which was blown in and against her, and she was slightly hurt. The poll parrot of C. A. Esley, the C. & L. W. railroad telegraph operator, who resides on the corner of Hanover and Fourth streets, was left in an open upstairs window, and had a rough experience with the rain and hail. It is said that during the absence of the family he made the air blue with profanity.

Clean House only with

Because there is nothing which is harmless, that will make things perfectly clean with so little labor in so short a time besides, it is economical and makes the work easy. Do you suppose—that anything could attain such popularity as PEARLINE enjoys, and hold it, without wonderful merit—that people would use it year after year were it harmful to fabric or hands—that the hundreds of imitations are attracted by anything but its wonderful success? You'll do well to use Pearlina—see that your servants use it, and insist that they do not use the imitations which they are often induced to try because of the worthless prize accompanying it, or by the glib and false argument of some peddler. Remember PEARLINE is never peddled. JAMES PYLE, New York.
