A Bad Dog.

Yesterday a Mrs. Horner complained to the police that last June a dog belonging to a man named Beckendorf bit her. At the time the owner refused to have the dog killed. Yesterday the same brute attacked her, but did not succeed in biting her. The Eighth ward officers were ordered to kill the dog or bring action against its owner.

A Mistaken Impression.

There was a mistaken impression in Bridgeport yesterday afternoon regarding the shutting off of the water supply of the city. It was generally understood that the cut-off was caused by the contractor of the over-the-river street railway water pipe line, but this was a mistake, as the break was caused by the repairs being made on one of the fire plugs by a plumbing firm.

Will Lose his Arm.

Stidger Hinerman, who was shot sometime since in the right arm while engaged in a drunken row at Glendale, will have to have his arm amputated. It cannot be found out who did the shooting. Various reports are afloat, but none as yet have been definitely confirmed. He is a poor man, and is going around soliciting aid, in order to get enough money to pay for the amputation.

West Liberty as a Summer Resort.

West Liberty, which once enjoyed the honor of being the county seat of Ohio county, has lately blossomed out into a summer resort of considerable popularity. The Doyle house seems to be the favorite resort, and among the Wheeling people stopping there are Mrs. George Johnson and two children, Mrs. Ott Werner, Mrs. Thomas McKeever and two sons, Mr. Peter Phillips, Mr. Lott Joy, formerly of Wheeling, and Misses Bier, Miller and Oberman.

Mrs. Haller Dead.

Mrs. Martha A. Haller, wife of Councilman William H. Haller, of the East End, died yesterday forenoon at the family residence, in her fiftieth year. She was an old resident of Wheeling, a good wife and mother, and had the esteem of a wide circle of friends. Her death, while not unexpected, shocked her friends greatly, and the bereaved family has the sincerest sympathy. The funeral will be from her late residence, No. 1321 McCulloch street, Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

Incendiary Blaze.

Thursday evening about nine o'clock some one started an incendiary blaze in the barn of R. V. Arkle on South Jacob street, Eighth ward, and had it not been for its being seen almost as soon as it was started, would have probably ended in a disastrous fire. The Wheeling No. 4 engine-house boys across the street were at once notified and hustled around into the alley with the hose wagon and soon had a stream on the blaze, which was soon extinguished. There is no clue to the fire bug.

Prostrated by the News.

Mrs. P. T. Mayne and daughter, of Salt Lake City, Utah, who have been visiting Mrs. Mayne's sister, Mrs. F. H. Blake, at Moundsville, for some time past, received the sad intelligence on Tuesday evening that Mr. Mayne had dropped dead at his silver mine in a canyon near Salt Lake City. When she left her home he was in perfect health, and on receiving the sad news she was so prostrated that she was not able to undertake the journey home. She is still at Moundsville, and will remain until she recovers.

Seats for Sale To-day.

The sale of reserved seats for Dockstader's minstrels, at the Opera House next Tuesday night, opens at C.A. House's music store this morning. The company opened at Pittsburg Thursday night, and yesterday's Times says: "Dockstader's aggregation put a wide and deep puncture into the gloom last night, which relieved the depressed spirits of the big crowd present to the extent of several tons pressure. Dockstader delivered in his own peculiar and mirth-provoking manner numerous new jokes and songs. He explained that the scarcity of gold was due to the seductive bargain cards the d y-goods merchants have been displaying. He made some pungent remarks about the World's Fair, and sang a song about the people coming home from Chicago with one leg longer than the other."

A NARROW ESCAPE.

Joe Spear, His Milk Wagon and Horse Were Yesterday

INVOLVED IN A SERIOUS WRECK,

From Which Spears Came Off With but Slight Injuries—It was a Miraculous Escape from Instant Death. Struck by a Baltimore & Ohio Engine—Other Accidents Yesterday.

It isn't often that a narrower escape from death or terrible injury is recorded than that of Joe Spear, a Boggs' Run milkman, who escaped almost miraculously yesterday morning at 8:15 o'clock at the Thirty-eighth street crossing of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad in this city, South Side. He was coming across the tracks from in the direction of the hills, when a B. & O. engine, coming up from Benwood, struck the rear end of his milk wagon, just as it was nearly across and out of the way of injury. The results were startling, and at first it was thought Spear had been killed. The body of the wagon was detached from the wheels and with Spear was thrown into the gutter fifteen feet away, while the frightened horse, with the rest of the outfit, one wheel badly smashed, broke into a run down Woods street, but was caught a square below.

Neighbors ran to the scene of the accident and picked up Spear, who shortly after recovered consciousness fully, and was assisted to the home, near by, of a relative, George Paulis, after which Dr. Pipes was summoned and soon appeared. He announced that Spear's injuries though painful were not serious. They consisted of cuts and bruises mostly on the head, and a hole in his forehead. The wrecked vehicle was still lying on the scene of the accident yesterday afternoon.

This accident emphasizes the need of a railroad gate at this point. More travel comes over Thirty-eighth into the city than across Thirty-sixth, where the railroad company is compelled by city ordinance to maintain a gate. Some of the South Side people claim that there is an ordinance compelling the maintenance of a gate at Thirty-eighth, but this is a mistake.

A Broken Arm.

Thursday evening while returning with a crowd of young people from upper Benwood, in a picnic wagon, Mrs. Whitman who lives in that locality, fell out onto the ground and sustained severe injuries, including a broken arm. As Mrs. Whitman is an aged woman, the accident is somewhat serious.

Butchered His Hand.

Yesterday morning Louis Heller, the butcher, whose shop is located at the corner of Twenty-fourth and Chapline streets, on the South Side, while cutting meat accidentally let the knife slip and cut his left hand badly. The wound was fixed up at Irwin's drug store.

Hurt by a Windlass.

Newton Whipkey met with a painful accident the other day while digging a well on the M. M. & M. Company's lands at Moundsville. He was drawing the bucket up and the windlass slipped, striking him in the face, breaking his nose and cheek bones. Dr. Richardson was called and dressed the wounds.

Minor Accidents.

Ernest Wolf attempted to jump on the Morgan's ferry float, when he fell against a big beam and broke several ribs.

One of the most unique accidents on record happened to Elin Miller, of Alley C. While cutting ice, a sharp piece flew up and cut a gash in her face under her eye. A physician put nine stitches in the cut.
