WHEELING, OCTOBER 11, 1893.

Governor MacCorkle and the Senate.

Now comes the startling intelligence that in consequence of Governor MacCorkle's protest against the removal of the coal duty he may have trouble to get to the United States senate as the successor to Mr. Camden.

The startling feature of this announcement is the open declaration that Mr. MacCorkle has been laying his lines to oust Mr. Camden. Those who were informed knew that this was the gubernatorial programme, but it was supposed to be a secret. Joe Chilton wants the seat, and MacCorkle was to help him in return for Chilton's valuable service to MacCorkle in his campaign for the nomination.

It has been said freely by Democratic politicians that MacCorkle was looking out for himself and would endeavor secretly to make Chilton's success impossible, at the same time holding the friendship of the Chiltons and their followers. This was a difficult role that would bother a shrewd politician than Mr. MacCorkle to play successfully.

Mr. Chilton will not succeed Mr. Camden. Nor is it at all likely that when the time comes he will be found tooting for Mr. MacCorkle. Chilton may agree with MacCorkle on the question of the coal duty, may see as clearly that West Virginia must have protection for her coal, the Democratic platform to the contrary; but while his party stands where it does on the tariff question and he has political aspirations he will not appear before the ways and means committee to cry for mercy. He has the advantage of knowing what the governor did not know, that the Democratic party of West Virginia will not tolerate even one sound Republican principle in a Democratic politician.

It cannot be said that Governor MacCorkle has cooked his senatorial goose by protesting against free coal, for there has at no time been any probability of his being chosen as senator. His party has not been thinking of him in that connection. This truth is stated in all kindness and solely because it is a truth. If hereafter anybody shall declare, as a solemn warning, that Governor MacCorkle destroyed his chance for the senate when he protested against free coal, that will be far from the truth and will be a perversion of history.

The INTELLIGENCER thinks that, with a very slight margin for accidents, the caucus nominee to succeed Senator Camden could be named now; but this is not necessary and might destroy hopes which it is pleasing to cherish.

A WRITER with a taste for the minute discovers that Senator Gorman usually makes his lunch of cold lamb. We were about to say that perhaps cold lamb is the key to Mr. Gorman's little-understood character, but some purist might say that cold lamb can't be a key to anything.

A Great Chance.
Woolen manufacturers say they cannot pay the old wages under the new conditions, operatives strike and the mills shut down. This brings no encouragement to the wool-grower who has not yet found a market for his wool.

If the Democratic party will say that it will let the wool tariff alone, manufacturers will offer the old wages, operatives will be glad to resume work, and the wool-grower will find a market for his wool at a living price. Here is a great chance for the Democratic party to make a name for itself.

European steamships continue to bring us cholera. Their owners are interested chiefly in the passage money, not in protecting life in the United States. They need more and severer lessons that shall connect the health of this country with their own pockets.

Where Spain Has Trouble.
If a ship were to sail on a straight line to the east from Norfolk it would just about hit the Straits of Gibraltar and would soon come to Melilla, in Morocco, where the wild Rif tribes of Moors are making trouble for Spain.

These fellows, at home on the sea as well as in their mountains, their brothers and cousins of the other former Barbary states, are the artists who in days gone by were wont to cut throats, to loot and scuttle ships on the Mediterranean. Morocco is within easy reach of Spain, but the Moors who are making the trouble are not so easily reached if they want to get away.

Their latest demonstrations give evidence of a determination to stand their ground and fertilize it with Spanish and Moorish blood, a mixture by no means new in the history of the two peoples. Spain can hold her own at Melilla, but to come up with and punish the offensive Moors is another matter if they determine to strike and get away.

If the Moors stand up for a fight there will be frightful havoc, for they are absolutely reckless of life.

WHAT WILL CHICAGO DO NEXT?

An Echo of the Yacht Race.
Lord Dunsraven complains that the excursion steamers gave his cutter their wash and interfered with her speed, although he admits that the Valkyrie would have been beaten in any case.

The interference of the steamers, whether the same was more or less, was no greater obstacle to the British cutter than to the Yankee sloop, and this is the first complaint heard. The cold fact is that in two trials the Vigilant has shown herself the speedier boat of the two, and this record she is likely to maintain to the end.

Of course Dunsraven is greatly disappointed, for he hoped to go back to England bearing a trophy which others of his countrymen have contended for in vain; but he should bear his disappointment philosophically and build a boat as close to the American lines as possible.

By the time he shall have done this American skill will have devised a yacht just a little faster, and we shall have another pretty race and another pleasing triumph for the bird of freedom.

It was a great experience to be at the fair on Chicago day, even at a cost of blanketing the tired body with the starry heavens.

Too Big Even for Chicago.

Chicago day at the fair was rather too great a success. It brought into Chicago a crowd beyond the capacity of even that great city to house, so that many were unable to find shelter through the night. It drew to the fair grounds a crush of people which the transportation system of the city, the best in the world, was unable to deal with.

If the people had given the roads a chance they could have been transported from the fair within reasonable time; but they all wanted to be moved at once, after the night's doings were over, and a capacity of nearly 200,000 an hour was unavailing.

Chicago went in to break the record of attendance at international exhibitions, succeeded gloriously as she does when she goes in to win, and if there was discomfort that will be forgotten in the glory of the achievement.

The Law of the Road.

An interesting bicycle case has just been tried in Pittsburg. It seems that a gentleman out cycling with his wife thought the driver of a wagon was trying to run them down, and by way of retaliating refused to let the driver pass him. There was not a very serious collision and a law suit.

The judge advised the jury that the bicycle has the same right to the road as the wagon, no more and no less; that nobody has exclusive right to a public highway; that the highways are to be used by persons so as to accommodate each other. The driver was found not guilty and the costs divided.

This judge makes the law of the road clear in a few words, and it is seen to be the law of common sense and common politeness. In a civilized community everybody should find a real pleasure in being considerate of the rights and the conveniences and the comfort of everybody else.

The World's Fair indebtedness is wiped out, not the least of the achievements of the management.

More Waiting for Ireland.
Mr. Gladstone's management of the Irish question does not suit Mr. Redmond and the rest of the Parnellites, and they serve notice that they will cut loose and go it alone. This threat, if carried into effect, means the indefinite postponement of remedial legislation for Ireland.

It is Ireland's misfortune that when she is not bedeviled by her enemies she is bucked and gagged by Irish hands. The Parnellites cannot hope to succeed alone, yet they break loose to try one more that plan of campaign. It is not strange that Irishmen who can solve the problem for themselves by coming to this country.

A PENNSYLVANIA farmer, who did not believe in banks, with the assistance of a plucky woman fought off robbers who came in search of his golden fleece. Then he straightway bled him to a bank and begged to be relieved of his dangerous hoard. Banks may not be more perfect than other human institutions, but they are far ahead of up the chimney, in the cellar, under the carpet.

BREAKFAST BUDGET.

An Irish whitethorn case, which was presented to Richard Brown, who commanded the America when she won the original cup in her trip around the Isle of Wight, is now in the possession of William H. Webb, a retired New York police sergeant.

While Louis Wescott was crossing an elevated railway trestle at Elizabeth, N. J., on Wednesday, he was struck by a train and hurled thirty feet away, landing below the trestle, a fall of eighteen feet. Doctors pronounce his injuries as not serious.

A personal in a Boston paper reads as follows: "To Philanthropists—I am a working woman; will someone buy and hold for me two shares of Sugar common, and allow me to pay in monthly installments? Address V. E. M."

Ava P. Morse, against whom a verdict of $40,000 was given by a Boston jury last week for breach of promise of marriage, is seventy-five years old. Mrs. Van Houten, the plaintiff, is described as a pretty widow, thirty-three years of age.

The value of a lake view has been fixed at $3,150 by a Lowell (Mass.) jury, which has awarded damages of that amount to a man whose view of the lake was shut off by a high fence and sheds erected by his neighbors out of spite.

STATE PRESS PICKINGS.

Their Place of Refuge.
Clarksville News.
How a school boy could stand to listen to some of the superlative nonsense used by senators in their speeches against the repeal of the Sherman law is a mystery. The task of listening must be a frightful one to the other senators, and they no doubt thank God devotedly every day for the refuge afforded them in cloak and smoking rooms.

Has Two Names.
Monroe Watchman.
The annual jamboree which costs the people of West Virginia $15,000, with a few hundreds thrown in for extras, is in grand progress this week at Kanawha City. They call it the "Encampment of the National Guard."

Don't Represent the Party, Though.
Kingwood Journal.
Nothing can be truly said of the West Virginia Democratic newspapers. They seem to be a unit for consistency on the tariff for revenue question, though it ruin their state. Their consistency is in striking contrast with that of their governor.

It Does Indeed.
Farmer's Advocate.
The Republicans of Ohio have the speech of Gov. W. A. MacCorkle before the ways and means committee, printed in pamphlet form and are using it as a campaign document. Over in Ohio it is "Billy McE." and "Billy McE." It don't rhyme but like the bedbug it "gets there."

His Explanation Don't Explain.
Harper's Ferry Sentinel.
Governor MacCorkle is having a serious time of it trying to explain to his riled fellow Democrats of this state his peculiar position before the ways and means committee. He hasn't explained, "as yet."

Glad to Hear It.
Morantown Independent.
The university is prospering. The unpleasantness of last year is, happily, a thing of the past, and all are laboring with an eye single to the progress of the school.

Very Well Put.
South Branch Gazette.
We have time and again made the statement that the people were quite satisfied with Democracy, to the extent that they had enough of it.

Reason for Inquiry.
Parkersburg State Journal.
The Democratic party of West Virginia may with good reason inquire where it is "at" on the tariff question.

PERSONAL POINTS.

"Old Hundred" has been variously ascribed to Dr. Martin Luther, Dr. John Dowland and William Franck. Dr. Lowell Mason wrote quite a treatise on the old tune in 1853, saying emphatically that it was written by Guillaume (William) Frank in 1543. But later musical historians and antiquarians, who have investigated more closely, say it was composed by Louis Bourgeois, born about 1500 and died about 1572.

Calvin T. Sampson, who died last week, was the first to introduce Chinese labor into Massachusetts, if not into a larger region of country. He was a shoe manufacturer of North Adams, who could not come to satisfactory terms with his striking employes, whereupon he succeeded in procuring thirty or forty Chinese to take their places.

The statement has recently been made in several newspapers that the Garfield farm at Mentor, O., is to be cut up into town lots and put on the market. The Garfield home, however, will remain unchanged. There are 200 acres in the farm.

Mrs. Dr. T. W. Bull, formerly the wife of the junior James G. Blaine, was thrown from her carriage in New York on Wednesday and sustained a severe shock, though she is believed to have received no serious injuries.

Miss Clara Barton, now at Beaufort, S. C., in her official report to the executive officers of the Red Cross association, makes a strong plea for assistance for the South Carolina cyclone sufferers.

One critic places a pretty high estimate upon Miss Munroe's Columbian ode. She places the amount of damages she asks for its unauthorized publication at $25,000.

Buffalo Bill has bought a $10,000 residence in North Platte, Neb., very near the spot where he killed his first Indian, and there he intends to spend the rest of his life.

In order to furnish sport for a shooting party on his Moravian estate, Baron Hirsch had 8,000 partridges transported there in cages and liberated.

KNIGHTS OF PYTHIAS.

Special Dispatch to the Intelligencer.
MARTINSBURG, W. VA., Oct. 10.—Delegates to the grand lodge, Knights of Pythias, and visiting lodges have been coming into the town for the past twenty-four hours until the hotels and boarding houses are all overflowing. The grand lodge met this morning at 10 o'clock for business. The officers are W. T. White, of Terra Alta, grand chancellor; F. A. Long, of Wheeling, grand vice chancellor; Manor Jenkins, of Piedmont, grand secretary; W. H. Baker, of Fairmont, grand master-at-arms; W. G. Raleigh, of Parkersburg, grand master of exchequer; A. R. Evans, of Wheeling, grand orator and sentinel; G. E. McDonald, of Huntington; grand inner sentinel; J. W. Mather, brigadier general of uniform rank, and his staff is composed of Paul Prueus, colonel, W. G. Raleigh, W. T. White, Frank H. Smith, of New Cumberland, B. W. Conway and W. H. Baker.

The town has put on a real holiday attire; the houses on the principal streets are all handsomely decorated. Mayor McSherry appeared at the meeting of the grand lodge this morning and presented the visitors with a large wooden lock and key and the freedom of the city.

At 4 o'clock this evening a competitive drill between the Piedmont and Martinsburg divisions took place in the public square, which was witnessed by several thousand people. The prize, $100, was awarded to the Piedmont division. The Piedmont knights are accompanied by the noted Gilbert band, which is greatly admired. There was a flambeau drill given to-night in the public square and the streets for blocks were crowded as though the whole town had turned out.

AN EDITOR ON TRIAL.
For Libel—The Jury Only Out Ten Minutes and Return a Verdict of Guilty.
Special Dispatch to the Intelligencer.

MARTINSBURG, W. VA., Oct. 10.—The trial of F. Vernon Aleer in the circuit court, Judge Dailey, of Romney, presiding, came up and was heard to-day. U. S. G. Pitzer appeared for the state and J. N. Wisner for the defense. Aleer was until last week editor and proprietor of the Martinsburg Daily World, and the crime for which he stands convicted is the libeling of Hon. George F. Evans. Over a year ago a negro boy in Evans' employ shot James Dailey, a showman, who was passing through the premises of Evans. Aleer, through his paper, charged Evans with complicity in the shooting, and also of participating in the lynching of a negro here in 1874. The jury was out but ten minutes, when they returned a verdict of guilty. Aleer's counsel made a motion for arrest of judgment and a new trial.

WANTS A COAL TARIFF.
Our Own Democratic Mine Inspector Reports in Favor of It.
Mining Inspector Harr, of this state, has made one of the most favorable reports ever issued on the coal mining industry of the state. The mines are in excellent condition, and the operators are generally complying with mining laws. Coal production has largely increased in the past year, and the coke industry shows a slight increase.

Last year's strike nearly ruined the coal and coke industries in Brooke, Marshall and Ohio counties. The total production of coal in the first district for the year was 2,762,970 tons, against 2,427,882 tons last year, an increase of 335,308 tons. The coke output was 397,378 tons, against 348,225 tons last year, an increase of 16,148 tons. At the King mine, near Benton's Ferry, a system of taking coal out of the mine by means of buckets has been adopted.

Mr. Harr is a Democrat, but is against the repeal of the duty on coal, and believes with Governor MacCorkle that if the duty is taken off it would be the death of the coal industry in West Virginia.

Coal Miners' Riot.
PITTSBURGH, PA., Oct. 10.—A Greensburg, Pa., special says a riot occurred at Suterville last night between the Hungarians of the Black Ball and Blythesdale coal mines, in which clubs, stones and knives were freely used. Two Hungarians were fatally, and a number of others seriously hurt. Their names could not be learned. None of the participants have as yet been arrested.
