An Object Lesson.

In consequence of the heavy reduction in the duty on tin plate an order for 2,000 boxes of that commodity which would otherwise have gone to the Morewood works at Gas City, Indiana, goes to Wales.

Without the aid of any professor of political economy the people of Gas City, particularly those engaged in the tin plate industry, can easily appreciate the meaning of the new and lower duty on tin plate.

They know also that if they wish to compete in price with the Welsh product they will have to put themselves in position to compete in cost of production.

The alternative for their employees is to see foreign workmen doing in Wales the work which they were doing in this country before Prof. Wilson and the rest of them began to deform the tariff in the interest of foreign producers.

By this time Mr. Hill realizes what it is to be chief engineer of a Democratic machine. The position has its embarrassments.

Refutation at Long Range. Speaking of the banquet given to Mr. William L. Wilson by the London Chamber of Commerce and the West Virginia free trader's speech on that occasion, the Pittsburgh Post says "it was the place of all others to refute the allegation that the American Democracy had been legislating for England."

China on the Ragged Edge. Japan is keeping China on the ragged edge. The little country is up to mischief, and the big country does not know where the blow is to fall.

It is a pitiable plight for China. With her vast population she has thus far been unable to cope with a nation of about a tenth of her population and which she has permitted herself to despise.

The best time and place for refutation of that allegation was when the Democratic party began its tariff butchery in Congress, and the best way was to legislate for the people of the United States.

Enthusiasm to Order. In the judgment of the Democratic congressional campaign committee, headquarters in Washington, Mr. Wilson's home-coming should be celebrated with a big send-off in his district, and the said committee is busy looking after the details.

The Democrats of the Second district are to allow themselves to think that their enthusiasm has bubbled over without any stinting from Washington, London or elsewhere. It will of course be a memorable occasion, and Mr. Wilson may be expected to seize it to explain the London banquet and the speech that went with it.

CAPT. DOYENER is having fine meetings and interesting the people without any prize fight side show. Mr. Howard might make a note of this.

Mr. Camden in Ohio County. Senator Camden's presence in Wheeling has filled his followers with something akin to delight. They have looked for him and longed for him, eagerly awaiting his coming to know about some things.

The Ohio county legislative ticket is a Camden ticket. But what is the use of nominating a ticket in Mr. Camden's interest without ample resources to back it? His friends nominated the ticket and they expect him to do the rest.

It is rough sledding at best. This is not a good year for Democratic tickets and Mr. Camden is not in high favor. He has consented to meet the requirements of the situation as he understands it, but his understanding is not yet quite up to the point of local demands.

Mr. Camden has an unusual amount of business on hand this year, and Prof. Wilson's folly is making a bad situation worse for the senator. His friends should bear with him and cultivate a patient hopefulness.

That London banquet has given the Democratic campaign managers a wretched attack of indigestion.

While Senator Hill is considering whether he will accept the Democratic nomination for governor of New York the Anti-Hill Democrats are considering whether to nominate an independent Democratic ticket or to quietly knife the regular ticket at the polls.

The New York Evening Post, which greatly desires Hill's defeat, advises that instead of running an independent ticket the Anti-Hill Democrats vote for Morton, the Republican nominee, so as to make sure of snuffing Hill under by an immense majority and so ending his career.

If the desire be to make an end of Hill this is beyond question the way to do it. For Democrats it has this additional advantage, that the result could not be claimed as altogether a Republican victory.

So it was when Judge Maynard, Hill's creature and tool, was defeated by an overwhelming majority. This was a great popular triumph, and Democrats shared with Republicans the honor of the achievement.

Prof. Wilson has no use for Herr Doyener's bullet-proof coat. What he is looking for is a bullet-proof armor.

Hazing Playing Out. Princeton was one of the colleges in which hazing was carried so far as to keep young men from entering there. Now the undergraduates resolve that there shall be no more hazing in that institution.

If lads of college-going age do not object to the barbarism of hazing a great many parents of such lads do object and will not send their sons to institutions that have a bad repute in this regard.

It is a hard fate for one engaged in the industry. It is also one of many striking object lessons of the time.

At all events there is a disposition to try, and Princeton has taken the hint.

HAVERMEYER and Scaries, of the sugar trust, having at last been indicted for refusing to testify before the senate committee, it will be interesting to note with what fidelity or lack of fidelity the indictments may be followed up.

It is a pitiable plight for China. With her vast population she has thus far been unable to cope with a nation of about a tenth of her population and which she has permitted herself to despise.

The Democrats of the Second district are to allow themselves to think that he? Because he wanted to please his British hearers, and he knew that they would take to that sort of stuff. "It is an ill bird that foals its own nest."

"McPHERSON'S Hand Book of Politics for 1894" maintains the high reputation of that valuable work so indispensable to the politician and to all who desire to have within easy reach exact information on the questions of the day.

This volume covers two years of great importance in the history-making of the country, the coming into power of the Democratic party, the struggle over the silver question, the heated controversy over the Hawaiian question, the great railway strike and the attitude of the national government towards it, the great battle over the tariff bill in all its stages, and many valuable statistical tables.

It is to be said for this standard work that it is to be relied on as authority. Published by Robert Beall, 495 Pennsylvania avenue, Washington, D. C.

Mr. Wilson and his British friends would like the people of this country to remember that they are consumers and forget that they ever were or ever need be producers. This is where England steps into a good thing and regains in the 70,000,000 of American citizens vastly more than she let go when she lost 3,000,000 of colonists. Your Cousin John Bull is no fool.

EX-SPEAKER REED On the Democracy—The Real Issues of the Campaign.

From "Issues of the Coming Campaign," by ex-Speaker REED, in North American Review for October.

The ox is a most valuable animal, and so is the mule; but yoked together they make a most incongruous team, neither speedy of foot, beautiful to the eye, nor restful to the mind; nevertheless either is a hard-working, reputable animal made for better things.

We ought to frown upon all this use of hard language as to individuals. It is not seemly. Besides this, it obscures the real issues. Suppose the President does feel bad because of coal and iron, is that any reason why he should attack Senator Gorman, who feels well about it? If Mr. Wilson's scheme for a tariff has gone to water, is that any reason why he should be unkind to Democrats of older standing than himself?

Only a few years ago he was clamoring for protection to coal, himself. Why not give the erring brother time to repent, as he also has repented?

Besides being unseemly, savoring, as it were, of those "selfish feelings" which the President assured us were to be banished from the millennial world he inaugurated, March 4, 1893, those bickerings obscure the real issue, which issue is: Has the Democratic party those qualities which fit it to govern this country at this time? Let us not get ourselves lost in those little minor issues as to the relative blackness of pot and kettle.

We might assume that both were black and very smutty if it were not for the dictates of politeness, which forbid people to be disagreeable to each other. We have had this country under the government of that party for a year and a half, and what has been the result? I am not going to tell. There is such an embarrassment of riches that one hardly knows which way to turn.

If you examine the question of finance from the point of view of the relation between the income and the expenditures of the country, and find as great expenditures as when the country was at the height of its prosperity, you see that even the one virtue the Democracy have striven to adorn by their example does not abide with them, and that as economists they have attained failure so great that it would be conspicuous had there not been worse failures everywhere else.

A RESULT OF THE TARIFF. Wales Taking Tin Plate Orders Away from American Factories.

An incident happened here which forcibly demonstrates the evil effect of the new tariff law on American labor. Since the first of the year the E. P. Breckenridge Company of Toledo has purchased 20,000 boxes of tin plate of the Morewood Company at Gas City, Ind.

It has paid for them over $125,000. When the Wilson bill became a law Mr. Breckenridge opened negotiations with the Morewood Company for more tin plate. He asked them to sell him plates on the basis of the new law. They said that they could not as they were obliged to pay their labor at the old rate.

At that time a representative of a Wales tin plate factory called upon Mr. Breckenridge and asked for the order. He stated that after paying the duty his company can sell at a less price than the plate can be manufactured for in this country.

The result was that Mr. Breckenridge placed his order with the Wales company for 2,000 boxes. Their cost was $2 45 per box, and the duty amounted to $1 08. Consequently the plate delivered for $3 53 per box.

At that time the price per box for American tin plate was $4 45. "The point to this," said Mr. Breckenridge, "is that we are paying English makers the difference between the duty and cost, in-tand of paying it to our own government."

"The prices on both sides of the water since I purchased the tin plate mentioned have changed. The English people have run the price so low there is no money in it, and they will now make a small increase in price.

"American dealers will reduce the wages of their men in order to compete with the foreign product. "Within ten months I expect to be able to purchase American tin plate at the same price offered by the foreign dealers—but it will be at the expense of American labor."

Its Chief Use. Chairman Wilson's speech at the free trade dinner in his honor in London on Thursday evening was carefully prepared beforehand and sent to this country several hours in advance of its delivery. The chief use of Mr. Wilson's address will be as a Republican document in the present campaign.

KOREAN IDEAS OF WAR. Stories from a Japanese Paper Showing Their Simplicity.

Among many fancy things told of Koreans, by native papers, the following may be given as showing their primitive simplicity: CONDOLENCE TO JAPANESE FRIENDS.

When Japanese troops arrived in Korea, many Koreans visited their Japanese friends to express their condolence in this way: "Troops of your country have now come in great numbers, and I suppose you have to pay out all you have for them. I wish to express my sincere regret and deep sympathy in your present misfortune."

This is quite natural with them, since Korean or Chinese troops usually take whatever they want from private persons, being little better than bands of robbers.

Most Koreans never dream that the provisions of Japanese troops have been sent from Japan, but think they were either plundered or bought in Jinsen and its vicinity. To get all the provisions for such large numbers of men, across the seas, in their opinion, an impossibility.

When Chinese troops were in Gazan they plundered the people there of their pigs and fowls to provide food. A Japanese asking his Korean friend how he felt when he had thus been plundered received the reply: "It is quite usual and justifiable for any troops to take whatever they want."

When the Japanese army paid out wages to Korean coolies, the latter were so much surprised as to exclaim "What! You warriors pay us." The fact is, Korean or Chinese coolies have usually to work for nothing for their army in time of war. Chinese soldiers obtaining goods at Korean shops never pay. They simply take whatever they want, and laughingly walk away. Japanese soldiers, who of course pay punctually for whatever they buy, are laughed at by Koreans, who say "They pay because they are not so bold as the Chinese."

CURIOSITY AND INDIFFERENCE. When Japanese troops besieged the palace at Seoul, an immense concourse of Koreans assembled to witness the scene, some of them smoking leisurely with their long pipes, just as country folks stand curiously looking at a passing train. None of them looked sad or indignant. Public fear or anxiety is unknown to them; they are indifferent as to the safety of their king or their country.

DISMAYED AT BEING UNMARRIED. A Korean soldier envying the lot of Japanese troops who are excellently fed and dressed asked his Japanese friend, whether he could not be enlisted among them. The Japanese, after explaining the way in which soldiers are provided for, told him that those who have wives were not admitted as soldiers. The Korean soldier, on hearing this, exclaimed: "How can men get along without wives? Fed and dressed, however, excellently I may be, I would not submit myself to such cruelty."

IMMOVABLE GUNS. Koreans say "Japanese guns are formidable, but when the enemies come from an unexpected direction they are of no use." They think that Japanese cannons are fixed and immovable.

A PLUCKY WOMAN. And What She Was Able to Accomplish.

She and Her Daughter Have a Remarkable Experience. She Was a Hard Working Person and This Will Interest All Workers.

All kinds of diseases and weaknesses leave their marks on the system. It is very easy for the stomach, liver, bowels and kidneys to become deranged, and when they do, the person soon feels tired, languid, weak, low-spirited and gloomy.

The nerves become weak, and insanity or paralysis may follow. The blood gets bad, there is coated tongue, bad taste in mouth, constipation, the complexion grows sallow and life looks dark. All persons complaining of any of these troubles will read with wonder the following letter from Mrs. James Hoake, a well-known lady living at 143 Washington street, Peekskill, New York:

"About fifteen years ago I was taken very sick. After seven months I got over that, but have never been well since. I have suffered terribly with pains in the chest, back, kidneys and head. There was a disagreeable feeling in the eyes and I would be very sick in the morning.

"My mind was always gloomy and I felt very low spirited. I had terrible numb spells and would have to be rubbed some time before I could get around. Some of these numb spells were so severe my friends thought I would not recover from them.

"I tried doctors and medicines but got no better. Finally I began the use of Dr. Green's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, as my husband had been most miraculously cured by it. After using it a short time there was a most wonderful improvement.

"I continued to steadily gain in every respect until I was cured of all these terrible ailments. This wonderful medicine had now cured my husband and myself of the most fearful suffering, but this was not all. I now want to tell about my little girl.

"She has never been well since she was born. No doctors have known just what ailed her. She was out of her mind most of the time and had constant pain in her side. She has had spasms continually, from six to seven a month.

"She is the smallest child of her age that can be found. All medicines could do nothing for her until I gave her Dr. Green's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, and then she was cured in a short time. I cannot say enough in praise of this wonderful medicine. It has done so much for me and my family. I heartily advise everybody to take it."
