REED A WINNER.

The Man From Maine Will Have Things His Own Way

IN THE SPEAKERSHIP CONTEST.

The Alleged Opposition of Representative Cannon to Withont Foundation—The Illinois Man Desires the Appropriations Chairmanship—Senator Dubois' Embarrassing Position. Idaho's New Senator and His Past Experiences.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 10.—In the aftermath of Congress can always be found stories more or less apocryphal. One is now being industriously circulated to the effect that Thomas B. Reed made many enemies during the past session among his fellow Republicans and his road to the speakership of the Fifty-fourth Congress is full of rocks. This story had its inspiration in the fact that he refused to offer a resolution of thanks for the manner in which Mr. Crip had presided over the past Congress and had refused to vote for such a resolution when it was offered by Mr. Cannon, of Illinois. It is said that his course greatly angered a number of his colleagues, especially Mr. Cannon, and they are now looking around for a candidate to run against Mr. Reed next December. Mr. Hopkins, of Illinois, is spoken of as the probable man who will oppose Mr. Reed.

Outside the fact that Mr. Reed and half a dozen other Republicans did not vote for the resolution, there is no foundation for the story that there is any serious opposition to the ex-speaker's candidacy for his old place.

NOT OPPOSED TO THE MAINE MAN. Instead of opposing him, Mr. Cannon, of Illinois, will doubtless do all he can for Mr. Reed's election. He is an aspirant for the chairmanship of the house appropriations committee and has a pretty tight contest on hand, because Col. Henderson, of Iowa, the ranking Republican member of the last committee, is also a candidate. Mr. Cannon is not foolish enough to oppose a man who is as certain of election as Mr. Reed, when he expects some higher honor at that man's hand.

The re-election of Senator Shoup, of Idaho, may bring about somewhat strained relations between him and his colleague, Senator Dubois. Heretofore they have been the best of friends, but when Senator Shoup positively asserted that he would not be a candidate for re-election Senator Dubois took him at his word and turned in for Representative Sweet.

When Senator Shoup did enter the race it was to find his colleague arrayed on the side of his leading opponent and the situation became embarrassing. That embarrassment has not been lessened by the election of Mr. Shoup.

A NATIVE OF PENNSYLVANIA. Senator Shoup is a very quiet man and is seldom heard from in the senate. He is, however, a man of great force of character. He is almost a Pittsburger, having been born in Kittanning, Armstrong county, and educated in the public schools at Freeport and Slate Lick, until he was sixteen years of age, when he went west with his father in the year 1852.

His history would read like a wild romance. He has been a scout in the wild west in its wildest part at the wildest time; has had hand-to-hand conflicts with savages and has wrestled with the grizzly bear. He has fought the Indians with troops and by himself, and has had even more daring adventures with the outlaws who infested the region of the Arkansas.

He became a scout in the region along the base of the Rocky mountains in '61, and from then until '64 he saw some of the hardest service, with thrilling adventures and hairbreadth escapes that falls to the lot of any man, even during a war in a wild country.

A REPUTATION FOR DARING. During a period when civilization was almost lost sight of amid the scenes of savagery and thirst for blood and reprisals were the controlling motives, he had a reputation for daring coolness and cunning which made him the terror of the outlaws and Indians. He became lieutenant and later colonel in the army, and it was he and not Cheyvington who commanded a small body of troops who revenged themselves upon a band of murderous Indians with such terrible slaughter at what was known as the "Cheyvington massacre."

THE SUEZ CANAL.

Not One American Mercantile Vessel Flying the Stars and Stripes Passed Through. WASHINGTON, March 10.—Not one mercantile ship flying the United States flag entered the canal last year, although many cargoes destined for America passed through in British ships," says United States Consul General Penfield, at Cairo, Egypt, in a report to the state department upon the Suez canal traffic. During the year 1894 the number of vessels passing through the canal was 3,352 being ten in excess of the preceding year and the receipts from tolls amounted to almost $15,000,000. The number of ships using the canal in 1874-20 years ago was only 1,261. These figures compared with those of the present day show how completely the canal has revolutionized the traffic between the far east and Europe. The largest business year the canal ever had was in 1889 when 4,200 steamers passed through. The application of the electric light to marine purposes is now so general that nearly 95 per cent of the vessels using the canal last year were enabled to steam at night. Of the 3,352 ships passing through last year, 2,304 were British.

A Bad Year. WASHINGTON, D. C., March 10.—According to a report to the state department from United States Consul Tanney, at Belfast, the past year was the most disastrous year in trade ever experienced there. This was accounted for by the prolonged stagnation of trade in the United States and the shrinkage of values. The United States consumes from 50 to 60 per cent of the Belfast product of flaxen textiles. The shrinkage in values amounted to $5,000,000, eating up all profit and in instances creating a loss account. There was also a curtailment of production amounting to from one quarter to one-third of the capacity. These things were charged to the American tariff agitation.

OSCAR WILDE IN COURT.

The Judge Calls Him Down For His Supercilious Air. LONDON, March 10.—At the Marlborough street police court yesterday morning, before Mr. Newton, the marquis of Queensberry was formally committed for trial on the charge of having libelled Oscar Wilde in leaving at the Albermarle Club on February 28, a card upon which was written a disgraceful epithet. Bail was allowed in 1,500 pounds.

The marquis of Queensberry declared in court that he wrote the card "simply to bring matters to a head and to save my son. I abided by what I wrote." Edward H. Carson, Q. C., M. P., formerly solicitor general for Ireland, and who was counsel in most of the government prosecutions in Ireland under the Crimes act, defended the marquis of Queensberry. The court was crowded with well known people. Oscar Wilde, who wore a long dark blue overcoat with velvet cuffs, drove to the police court in great style in a carriage and pair with footman and coachman.

Accompanying Mr. Wilde was Lord Alfred Douglas, son of the marquis of Queensberry. Lord Alfred is a pale, fair-haired, smooth-faced and rather good looking young man. By direction of the magistrate, Lord Alfred was not allowed to remain in court during the examination of Mr. Wilde, and the young man left the court room looking rather surprised and crestfallen.

Mr. Wilde was immediately placed upon the stand and began his evidence with an air of languid listlessness. When he was asked if he was Oscar Wilde, the author and dramatist, the witness replied, "I think I am well known." This remark made Mr. Newton interpose sharply, saying, "Answer the question, please." Thereupon the plaintiff replied, "Yes." The reproof of the magistrate caused Mr. Wilde to assume a less important air.

Replying to questions put to him by his own counsel, plaintiff said that he first became acquainted with the Marquis of Queensberry in 1893. He remembered lunching with Lord Alfred Douglas, who is the marquis' second son, and who was born in 1870, in the Cafe Royal during the month of October, 1892, when the defendant entered the room, and by invitation of his son, sat down at the same table. Mr. Wilde said he did not see the Marquis of Queensberry again until 1893, when he and Lord Alfred Douglas were again lunching in the same cafe. The defendant upon that occasion shook hands with both Mr. Wilde and his son, and the witness invited the marquis to join them.

At this stage of the proceedings counsel for Mr. Wilde handed him a letter and the witness was asked if such a document had been placed in his hands by Lord Alfred Douglas shortly afterwards. The magistrate shortly remarked that he thought this document should not be put in evidence. Mr. Carson, counsel for the marquis, interposed, saying he did not object to this letter being put in evidence. On the contrary, he preferred that it should be brought before the court, as he wished to show that the Marquis of Queensberry was acting in the interest of his son.

To this Mr. Newton said that he could not then enter into that question. Mr. Carson objected to this, and asked that the document be put in evidence, in order that the matter might be investigated in the fullest manner possible.

Counsel for Mr. Wilde said that it was not intended that the letter should be read in court, as the names of exalted personages were mentioned, and he did not think it right that their names should transpire. Counsel also explained that the mysterious letter was introduced with the view of charging the marquis of Queensberry with additional libels, but as Mr. Newton insisted that in that case the letter should be read in court, counsel for the plaintiff withdrew the letter.

Mr. Wilde then continued his evidence, testifying as to how he was handed the card of the marquis of Queensberry, upon which was written the offensive words, by a porter at the Albermarle Club.

Mr. Carson then cross-examined the witness in regard to his acquaintance with Lord Alfred Douglas, saying he wished to show that the object of the Marquis of Queensberry was to end the acquaintance of his son with the plaintiff. The magistrate said he considered this defense to be a plea of justification and did not allow Mr. Carson to proceed.

FROM MORGANTOWN.

News Notes and College Matters from the West Virginia Athens.

MORGANTOWN, W. VA., March 10.—The annual public performance of the Columbian literary society was held in the society hall yesterday evening and drew a large audience. The entertaining programme was splendidly executed. It consisted of declamations by J. S. Wade, "How Luby Played," and by W. Russell Standford, "Laloyette," essays by P. M. Ireland, "Idle counsel," and by H. H. Moss, "America's Greatest Enemy;" orations by W. Edward Patterson, "Beneath the Surface," and by P. M. Hoze, "Our Latest Son," and a debate of the question "Resolved, That labor unions are a necessary part of the industrial system of modern society. L. L. Friend handled the affirmative and C. Wilson Maxwell the negative. Besides the literary there was a musical feature consisting of four selections by the West Virginia University quartette, a song by Miss Gertrude Zearley and a violin solo by Professor Mannor.

Rev. Dr. S. Hamilton Day, pastor of the M. E. Church at this place for four years, and one of the ablest members of the West Virginia conference, has asked the official board of the church to terminate his pastorate here at the end of March. He has accepted a call to the pastorate of the church at St. Augustine, Florida, and the pastor of that church will fill Dr. Day's pulpit until a meeting of conference. Dr. Day has built up a very large membership in the church, having added forty to it within the past month. He is very popular with his congregation, who regret exceedingly to give him up.

The Parthenon literary society elected officers for the spring term last night, as follows: George W. Alderson, president; W. C. Bambrick, vice president; H. L. Swisher, secretary, and W. T. Ica, critic.

An effort is being made by the sportsmen of Morgantown to restock the surrounding country with quail. Seventy-two pairs have been bought and will be set at large.

S. P. Jacobs, of Ohio county, who was elected by the faculty to represent the university in the inter-collegiate oratorical contest in Pittsburgh, May 30, has declined the honor.

Edgar Stewart, of Martinsburg, and Floyd Strader, of Beverly, will be the editors of the University Daily this year.

A Farmer Succeeds.

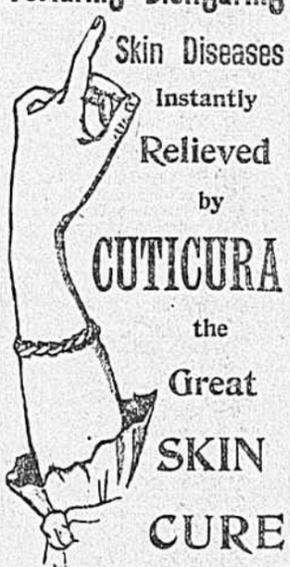

WOODSFIELD, O., March 10.—Peter Koehler, a highly respected farmer residing six miles west of here, committed suicide yesterday morning by hanging. Koehler was about fifty years of age, married and well to do. He leaves a wife, but no children. No one can tell what caused him to commit suicide.
