APOSTATE IN PERIL.

Exiled Capuchin Monk Tells a Story of Persecution.

PROTECTED BY AMERICAN CONSUL.

In Venezuela—People Stoned Him and Wanted to Put Him in a Mad House—May Return to South America as a Missionary—Has Joined the Methodist Episcopal Church.

NEW YORK, May 21.—The World has the following: On the steamship Philadelphia, which arrived Saturday from Venezuela, was an apostate, an exiled Capuchin father, a cadet of a noble Spanish house, who had renounced the Catholic faith at the risk of his life. While father superior of a Capuchin monastery he was known as Eduardo lo Pego. Now he is Signor Manuel Ferrando de Ortollak. He has accepted the creed of the Methodist Episcopal church, and will study here for the ministry.

The story of Ferrando's conversion was brought to the notice of the American board of foreign missions a few days ago by Joseph Norwood, an evangelist now traveling along the south and Central American coasts in a schooner yacht. Mr. Norwood and the Rev. Mr. Pond, of the Presbyterian church, turned Ferrando from the church of Rome. He is now in the Berachah home, No. 250 West Forty-fourth street. He told this narrative to a World reporter and secretly studied with that in mind.

"I am of a Castilian family of some moment in Madrid. It was my father's intention that I be educated for the bar. I leaned towards the church, however, and secretly studied with that in mind. In 1888, while my family were still against that course, I became a Capuchin monk.

"Four years later I was chosen father superior of the monastery of San Lucar de Barrameda, in Spain. This position brought me trouble for I had managed the affairs of the monastery only a short time when I was called on to petition that Mother Sacramento, of the Order of Adorators, be canonized. I refused, as I considered she had done nothing that raised her in any way to the elevation of a saint.

"Through this I was brought into correspondence with the pope. In 1893 the church of Spain became so distasteful to me that I asked permission to leave San Lucar de Barrameda. The permission was granted, and I left for Colombia, where I hoped to do work for the church among the Indians.

"A youth of Spanish birth, Father Sopana, accompanied me. We were assigned to the parish of Rosario, near Barranquilla, where for a year we labored. Sometime later Father Sopana was sent to the coast, the field of Mr. Norwood, and while working for the church of Rome he was brought into discussion with the evangelist.

"I heard of it, and privately sent Father Sopana to the Rev. Mr. Pond to learn something of the Protestant faith. Instead of sending the manuscripts I desired, the evangelist came to me at the parish of Rosario. He expounded the doctrines of his creed, and I, who had been disaffected with certain teachings of the Catholic church, listened to him with increasing interest.

"Eventually he prevailed upon myself and Father Sopana to cast aside the robes of our order and journey to Caracas, Dutch Guiana, where Mr. Norwood had just arrived in his yacht. There both he and I renounced the church of Rome and, at an evangelical meeting in a theatre, we told why we had done so.

"In the streets of Caracas, I was stoned, jeered at, and called vile names. Ex-President Rojas Paul, of Venezuela, implored that I assume my robes and offered $24,000 to be used for the good of my order if I would return to Barranquilla. I refused, and from the attacks of the people took refuge in the home of the German ministers.

"People of my race cried that I was insane. They applied to the Spanish consul to have me sent to a Spanish mad-house. He refused, and then they attempted to capture me. I eluded them, but Father Sopana fell among them. They labored with him, and offered him gifts if he would return to the church. He was not so strong as I, and he left me, to return to penances and the parish of Rosario.

"Then the German fathers were afraid to keep me, and in disguise I fled to Caracas, where I received shelter from the American charge d'affaires, Richard M. Bartleman. Mr. Norwood was a good friend to me. People offered him money if he would turn me over to those who wished to put me in a mad-house.

"He refused. Attempts were then made to have Crespo demand me from the American consulate. The president refused. Then an attempt was made to bribe the governor of Caracas to have me arrested. He refused. I know those things, because one of my order told me to fly for my life; that the people would kill me.

"To escape them Mr. Norwood took me to his yacht, and I boarded the Philadelphia. I will study to be a minister, and when I am ready I will return to Caracas, Caracas and Barranquilla to work for the Protestant faith." The Rev. Mr. O'Connor, of No. 142

West Twenty-first street, to whom Senator Ferrando came with letters of introduction from Mr. Norwood, confirms the story. He says threats of personal violence were made against the ex-Capuchin, and that he came near being lynched. Senator Ferrando is a young man. He wears a Van Dyke beard. He says should he return to Venezuela now there is no doubt an attempt would be made to poison him.

INCOME TAX DECISION.

Senator Morgan Says It Leaves Matters in a Peculiar Condition.

WASHINGTON, May 21.—The income tax decision, its effect upon the revenues and the probabilities of an extra session of Congress to provide means for supplying the deficit were the chief subjects of discussion in official and political circles to-day. Senator Morgan, of Alabama, one of the ablest constitutional lawyers in the senate, said the decision presented a very grave situation and he did not care to give an extended opinion of its effects, as the subject would probably come before the senate.

"Besides," he said, "I do not care to hold a post mortem. I am not a coroner. In a nutshell, I will say, however, that the decision leaves the taxing powers of the government in a state of wreck. It will require a long time for us to gather up the fragments. Principles of taxation which were considered well settled are torn up by this decision."

"How will the question come up in the senate?" "In connection with the question of refunding the $75,000 already collected, and the refund of the cotton, whisky, beer and tobacco taxes. All those taxes are as much direct taxes as the tax on personalty, and as unconstitutional according to yesterday's decision of the supreme court. The members of the court, as lawyers are too apt to do, were seeking around for precedents and ancient opinions. They did not hesitate to overrule recent decisions, and Justice Shiras did not hesitate to reverse his own opinion of a month ago, but old opinions and old decisions they held sacred as though the value of decisions like wine increased with age."

"What can Congress do?" "Of course," replied Senator Morgan, "Congress will have to accept the decision, but an amendment to the constitution is always possible."

EX-PRESIDENT HARRISON

On the Income Tax Decision—The Law as It Stood No Better Than Highway Robbery.

NEW YORK, May 21.—Ex-President Harrison in an interview upon the income tax says: "I have not had time to read the dispatches carefully, but I am convinced that the general effect of the decision will be good. I mean by that statement that it will be better for the country at large than the law as it stood after the last action of the supreme court—for it could not be worse under any finding."

"I am inclined to think that it will convince the people that they can expect some recognition in the administration of the affairs of the country. When the supreme court handed down an opinion some time ago, the law was left in a badly mangled condition. No more unjust, pernicious, unequal and unfair measure could have been adopted by studied application than was the income tax law as it stood under the recent ruling of the supreme court. It lifted the burden from the shoulders of the bondholders and coupon-clippers and placed it upon the toilers and the workers of the nation. It might have been just as fair for the government to have said to its revenue officers that they should go out and sandbag every third man they met and take his money from him."

"Even that would have been a more just and equitable measure than the law as it stood; for then each citizen would have a chance of escaping from the assault by not being the third man."

NEW ORGANIZATION

Of Steel Workers to Secure an Advance in Wages.

PITTSBURGH, May 21.—An organization embracing the skilled employes of five large steel plants in the Pittsburgh district is said to have been secretly formed within the past few weeks to secure an advanced and uniform rate of wages and an improvement of the steel workers' condition generally. The movement is represented to take in the Black Diamond steel works, Howe, Brown & Co., LaBelle steel works, Anderson, DuPuy & Co. and the Crescent steel works. Altogether they employ about 15,000. All these works are now running on a non-union basis and are said to be paying less than the Amalgamated scale. The new organization, so far as can be learned, will have no connection with the Amalgamated Association and has been named the Damascus Association of America. The membership is composed of steel smelters, rollers and hammermen of the various works numbering about 1,000. It is claimed that the only step yet to be taken to put the organization on a working basis is the election of officers, which will be held on Thursday night.

Mr. J. H. Cobb, publisher of the Mirror, at Brocton, N. Y., says: "For nearly two years the Mirror has been publishing the advertisements of Chamberlain's Remedies. A few days ago the writer was suffering from a bowel trouble and resorted to an old remedy, which did not prove efficacious; finally he tried Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhea Remedy and two doses did the business, checking it completely."

THE EARTHQUAKES

In Italy Did Great Damage—Spoleto Almost Destroyed—Anchorage Believing the Sufferers.

ROME, May 21.—Severe earthquake shocks were experienced yesterday evening at Spoleto, a town situated on an isolated hill, twenty-four miles north of Rieti, which is located about forty miles from this city. Although full particulars are not yet obtainable, it is known that much damage has been done, and that many houses have been injured. A Spoleto is connected across a deep ravine with a neighboring height by a bridge and aqueduct over 600 feet high, there are people who fear that this structure may have been damaged. Assistance has been sent to Spoleto from Rieti, and everything possible will be done to relieve the sufferers. The damaged town has a fine citadel, a cathedral, a Roman arch, the remains of a theatre and other antiquities. Its population is about 7,000.

Dispatches received here from Florence show that the authorities there are doing everything possible to repair the damage done by the earthquakes of Saturday last. The troops of the garrison have been actively employed ever since the disaster in succoring the sufferers in neighboring towns and villages, and the distress has in consequence been greatly lightened. A popular subscription is being raised for the relief of the suffering poor and the municipalities of the different towns and cities which have been affected by the subterranean disturbances are providing sums of money to assist those who are most in need of it. King Humbert has from the first, by his special request, been kept informed regarding the extent of the disasters and the measures of relief taken by the government and civil authorities, and has personally directed a number of the operations conducted by the military authorities. His majesty is understood to have subscribed liberally from his private purse for the relief of those thrown into complete destitution and he has in many other ways shown his sympathy with the sufferers.
