The Intelligencer WHEELING, JUNE 28, 1895.

The Passing of the Pull. The police commissioners of New are determined to enforce the excise laws, including that which requires saloons to be closed on Sunday.

This expert may be right, but the police commissioners are determined to show to him and to those who think with him that they are wrong.

Circumstances gave them an early opportunity to come to the front with an earnest of good faith. An officer who was set upon by an ex-assemblyman who owns three saloons and was caught in the act of breaking the law in one of them, defended himself with the butt of his revolver and took his man to the lockup.

In Tammany times an officer so forgetful of his welfare would have had his head taken off. This officer was called before the police commissioners, commended for his devotion to duty and his gallantry, and assured that his superiors would stand by him to the end.

It may be that the Sunday law cannot be enforced, but the abolition of the political pull certainly removed one hitherto insurmountable obstacle.

A FASHIONABLE New York marriage was performed under the trees, a novel and very agreeable hot weather departure.

The City and Incandescent Lighting. When the city was asked to let a private corporation sell electric light within its limits, thus breaking in on the city's monopoly, the INTELLIGENCER predicted that the day would come when the city would regret that it had permitted a competitor to enter the field and would desire to regain that with which it was then about to part.

It now becomes necessary to enter into negotiation to ascertain on what terms the desired object may be accomplished. Will the city have to buy back, in effect, the franchise with which it parted without consideration? Or will the city be able to buy the electric light plant at its value as such?

These questions will come up and will enter materially in the negotiations.

Senator Bruce as well as Senator Quay has a fine hot weather job on his hands. He is looking a little to the better control of some machinery himself.

About Mr. Camden. A writer in the New York Press tells of meeting his "old friend Senator Camden, of West Virginia, at the Fifth Avenue Hotel," and then goes on to reveal how little he knows about Mr. Camden. He is under the impression that Mr. Camden served but two years in the United States senate, during which time he "accomplished less than Tabor, of Colorado."

The city man looks on a good rain after a long dry spell as a good thing to clean the streets and flush the sewers. The suburban man has in mind his lawn. The farmer thinks of his thirsty, wasting crops. It all depends on the point of view, and we all depend on the rain.

Ir Japan and Russia go to war over Korea it will be a different affair from that between Japan and China, but Russia will not have a walk-over in a day. There will be real fighting on both sides. Perhaps Europe will not permit it to begin.

Republicans are very glad to have one of their own in his place, but they are willing to admit that in the senate Mr. Camden was a good representative of the level-headed business element. There are more showy men in the senate who are of much less use there.

SENATOR QUAY has sprained his heel, but not his intellect. His mental apparatus seems to be in top working order.

Treasury Legend. The treasury department is doing its level best to improve the bad showing for the fiscal year which closes with this month. By a clever feat of ledgerdom the year's deficit will probably be held down to $45,000,000, $27,000,000 greater than the secretary of the treasury thought it would be.

to hold without regard to the appropriations. Public works gives employment to the people, but in order to improve a bad showing the work has not been permitted to go ahead.

A Weak Silver Note. General Adoniram Jonadab Warner has heard of the defeat of the silver men in Kentucky and takes the floor to make some comments thereon. In the first place the result is not unexpected to him and his fellow bimetalists.

Of course nothing could take those patriots unawares, but they might consent to be honest enough not to call themselves bimetalists. That they are not. They are monometalists with a yearning for silver to the exclusion of everything else. Bimetalism means two-metalism, and their aim is one-metalism. Real bimetalists want to use all the silver that can be kept going on an equality with gold. Most of the people of this country feel this way about it.

Looking to next year General Warner says that all the silver men will get together and elect their ticket. "Of course concessions will have to be made to bring about such a union, but without it success will be impossible." This is the first time that the Warner clarion has sounded a note of weakness.

Only a few weeks ago a suggestion of concessions to anybody for any purpose would have been met with a high and resentful disdain. Then the one-metal folks were eager for the fray, asked no quarter and did not intend to give any. They could scarcely wait for the day when the country would be handed over to them bucked and gagged.

This readiness to concede away something of a vital principle for the mere sake of winning, looks like a yearning for the fleshpots of office. It may be that the digestion of the Warner-Sibley party is temporarily deranged.

Almost an inch of rain fell in Wheeling on Wednesday night and yesterday morning. About the same dose daily for a week would be a welcome gift.

A Mistaken Statesman. Senator Dubois, of Idaho, is explaining in a way to suit his side what happened in the Cleveland convention. The refusal to make any declaration touching the issues of the day he regards as a victory for the free silver men. It was well understood that they would make this claim, yet if the silver question had been brought before the convention it would have been voted down by a tremendous majority.

Sensor Dubois says: "There were strong free silver men in almost every delegation present." The Idaho senator is very much mistaken. The fact is that those who took the trouble to investigate with a desire to know the truth were surprised to discover how weak the free silver cause was in that convention. If the Republican national convention of next year shall be of the same mind free silver will not have a ghost of a show.

A Chicago newspaper tells of a policeman of that city who threatened to arrest a man who was rehearsing the Declaration of Independence for a Fourth of July performance. The policeman said the man was getting off an anarchistic speech, and they weren't going to have any more Haymarket business in Chicago. The story is probably a joke, but the Declaration of Independence is not so familiar to the people that every guardian of the peace is to be expected to recognize it when he hears it.

The other day a Chicago 4 per cent loan was subscribed three times over at par. The treasury of the United States placed its last loan at a premium which brought the rate well below 3 per cent. A 5 per cent loan of the city of Wheeling should bring a premium. Nobody doubts that Wheeling is good for all she owes and will meet her obligations. This should give the city first rate standing among money-lenders.

Cyclists have found a way to outfit those Pennsylvania turnpike companies which charge them toll when they ride their wheels. When they approach a toll gate they dismount, mount the wheel on their backs and march through in triumph, the wheel going free as luggage. They can't down the wheel.

The sound money Democrat in Kentucky put a soft money man on a hard money platform. Probably the nominee for governor will not desire to pay much attention to the platform, but if Colonel Bradley comes up with him during the campaign he will have to fish or cut bait.

The city man looks on a good rain after a long dry spell as a good thing to clean the streets and flush the sewers. The suburban man has in mind his lawn. The farmer thinks of his thirsty, wasting crops. It all depends on the point of view, and we all depend on the rain.

LITERARY NOTES. "Billy Bellow" is the title of a novel by W. E. Norris, announced for publication at an early date by Harper & Brothers. Mr. Norris has chosen for his central figure a young man of a singularly unselfish nature, whose relations with two women form the theme of the story. The scene is laid first in London, but after a few pages is shifted to northern Africa, and includes a colony of health-seeking Europeans. With a deft hand Mr. Norris touches their foibles, their transplanted intrigues, their sunburnt English features, their unconventional attire, their conventional social views.

Sir Walter Bosant is the author of another volume which the same house is on the point of bringing out. The volume includes eleven short stories with the following titles: "In Deacon's Orders, "Peer and Heiress," "The Equal Woman," "The Shrinking Shoe," "Quarantine Island," "In Three Weeks," "One and Two," "A Night with Tantalus," "The Solid Gold Beef Company, Limited," "To the Third and Fourth Generation," and "King David's Friend." "Diplomatic Disenchantments," a novel by Edith Bigelow, is also announced.

IN JAPANESE EYES. Curious Extracts From a Life of Gen. U. S. Grant, Published in Japan.

In the July Century is printed a translation of portions of a quaint Japanese life of Gen. U. S. Grant ("Gurando Kuen"). The following extracts will show the character of the work, and how our great military hero's boyhood career is presented to the youth of Japan.

A year and a half later a circus rider entered his village. Desiring to see the show, Gurando Kuen, on his father's arm, entered the place. Pointing to the horse, he insisted on riding it himself. His father consequently asked the circus rider to let his boy ride. Gurando Kuen, showing in his face perfect satisfaction, rode on the neck of the horse and appeared as if he was persuading the horse to go. One day, when he was older, he was playing ball by his own house, he accidentally broke a glass window of his neighbor. Having regretted what he had done, he made up his mind and went into the neighbor's house and excused himself to the lord of the house, saying, "I accidentally broke the window of thy honorable house. I have no word to excuse myself. The only thing I can do is to my father tell, a new glass window buy, this loss repair. Please excuse." This house lord, having been much pleased by this child's unusual thoughtfulness, without any condition excused his sin. Indeed, Gurando Kuen's heavenly nature is like a serpent which has its own nature when it is but one inch long.

In the spring of his seventeenth year he expressed a great thought to his father, and addressed him, saying: "I have in my mind the thought that, when four years from to-day have passed, I shall not be doing this kind of labor." The father, thinking it a strange thing, said, "Do you have your father's hereditary trade? Do you hate to become a leather-maker, and spend your life thus? What profession, then, do you expect to adopt in future? Do you expect to go into the fields carrying a sickle and a hoe? Do you expect to sell and buy things in the market? Or do you fix your eyeballs upon books of 10,000 volumes, and desire to speculate reasons and promote moralities, and become a man of wide knowledge?" Gurando Kuen, replying to these questions, said, "To cultivate the field and become a farmer is well, but to spend my whole life as a hireling is not well. To take a Soroban (counting-machine) and become a merchant and gain profit is well, but along with it to make bad practices is not my desire. Contrary to all this, our ancestors, in the war of independence of this country, showed great merit. I hear, I also, entering a military school, will have to show my arm in the time of great things. O Father Kuen, how is it?" The father, being exceedingly glad, did as he wished.

TAKEN FOR AN ANARCHIST.

The policeman didn't recognize the Declaration of Independence When He Heard It. Chicago Record.

Last week a man went to the lake front to make a speech. He had been appointed by the committee in charge of the forthcoming celebration of July 4 at Sharpshooters' park to declaim the declaration of independence. He had spent almost a week in committing it to memory and he had already given several rehearsals in the privacy of his own apartments. Now he wanted to have a dress rehearsal, as it were, and so he chose the lake front.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from ten drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer $100 for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address: F. J. CHENEY & Co., Toledo, O. Sold by Druggists, 75 cents.
