FIVE POINTS ON MONEY.

First.—That there is not a free coinage country in the world to-day that is not on a silver basis. Second.—That there is not a gold-stand country in the world to-day that does not use silver as money along with gold. Third.—That there is not a silver-stand country in the world to-day that uses any gold as money along with silver. Fourth.—That there is not a silver-stand country in the world to-day that has more than one-third as much money in circulation per capita as the United States have; and Fifth.—That there is not a silver-stand country in the world to-day where the laboring man receives fair pay for his day's work—John G. Carlisle, Secretary of the Treasury.

Mr. Bryan, Li Hung Chang and Cheap Labor.

Li Hung Chang is the greatest living Chinaman. He is also a fair exponent of the industrial policy of that benighted nation. His views on the subject of labor, expressed to the newspaper reporters in New York Wednesday, will hardly touch a responsive chord in the hearts of Americans.

Li thinks we make a mistake to exclude cheap labor and cheap commerce from our country. He thinks that cheap labor is what we need and wants us to understand that we should invite the Chinaman here because he would give us a superior service for less money. He makes an especial drive at the Irish and thinks we should fire them from our shores and substitute the cheap Chinese labor for them.

All this will cause a broad smile at Li's expense throughout the country. His interview, however, suggests a thought. Li's country, which he claims is prospering because it gets its labor for almost nothing, is on a silver basis. It has the monetary policy which Mr. Bryan wants the United States to have. Down in Mexico they are also, use Li's country, on a cheap money basis. It is also claimed that Mexico is prosperous. And so it is in one sense, but it is with a policy which insures cheap labor.

China and Mexico both advise us to come their way and adopt their methods. Mr. Bryan and his supporters are urging that we do so. The only difference between the Chinese statesman and Mr. Bryan in this matter is that Mr. Bryan holds out to the workingman that he will be benefited by cheap money, while Li Hung Chang frankly acknowledges the corn and says cheap labor is the thing for this country, and being the virtual ruler of a cheap country, he knows how it works.

In China the laborer works for from five to ten cents a day, and is paid in depreciated money, and Li thinks we could get him to come over here and work as cheap, because the Chinamen can live on less than Americans can. Li has accumulated a fortune of three hundred millions of dollars on account of this cheap labor, and couldn't our employers hope to grow rich in the same way?

Another difference between Mr. Bryan and Li Hung Chang, in their way of advocating practically the same thing, is that Li thinks he is laying down a good business proposition, while Mr. Bryan is seeking votes and doesn't tell the whole truth.

In China the workingman, the cheap laborer he talks about, has no say in the matter because he has no vote. In Mr. Bryan's country every son of toll dogs have a say and he is going to exercise his right in November in a way that will be a strong protest against the United States adopting the cheap money, cheap labor policy of China.

If Mr. Bryan were to invite Li Hung Chang to join him on his stumping tour to tell how the rich grow richer and the poor grow poorer in a country on a silver basis perhaps he would gain some of the votes of the hated rich people he is trying to array the people against in his speeches. But what would the working people do? Perhaps the majority for McKinley would be more impressive.

Will Defeat Bryan.

The ticket nominated by the National Democrats at Indianapolis possesses sufficient strength, especially in the middle and western states to make its influence felt in the election. Both the nominees are men of high character and they will poll the vote of every Democrat in the country who believes in the national honor and an honest dollar, except those who will vote for McKinley and Habart direct.

The New York Herald has made a careful canvass of the situation and bases on its finding the estimate that the ticket nominated at Indianapolis will poll in the neighborhood of a million votes. The estimate is conservative, as the Herald says that its figures have been received from careful and conservative sources from every state. It distributes the vote as follows:

Table with 3 columns: States, Estimated Vote for Third Ticket, Total. Includes Alabama, Arkansas, California, Colorado, Connecticut, Delaware, Florida, Georgia, Idaho, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maine, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Mississippi, Missouri, Montana, Nebraska, Nevada, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, North Carolina, North Dakota, Ohio, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, South Carolina, South Dakota, Tennessee, Texas, Utah, Vermont, Washington, West Virginia, Wisconsin, Wyoming.

Total estimated vote for third ticket.....$96,000.

This estimate, says the Herald, does not include by any means, all the Democrats who will refuse to support the Popocratic Bryan and Sewall ticket. It does not include the many thousands who will vote directly for McKinley and Hobart, as the best means of preserving the national credit. Only those are counted who, it is believed by the leaders in the respective states, will vote the Indianapolis ticket.

In two or three of the extremely close states tickets may not be placed in the field, as the vote will be so close between Bryan and McKinley that no chances will be taken and the sound money Democrats will vote directly for McKinley. These states are Montana, Wyoming and North Carolina.

The estimates on which the above table is based are derived either upon actual polls of localities, or upon reports made to state conventions by delegates from the counties. In almost every instance, the Herald article says, the gentlemen from whom the estimates were obtained expressed the opinion that they were under rather than over the number of votes that will be given the ticket in November. Particularly is this true of New York, where it is believed the vote for the ticket will eventually reach 100,000.

The Herald concludes as follows: In Colorado, Idaho, Montana, Nevada, Utah and Wyoming third party electors will not be nominated. Allowing for effective fusion between the Populists and Democrats, and also for the defection of silver Republicans, the votes which will be taken from the Chicago candidates by the Indianapolis ticket will insure McKinley practically every one of the doubtful states.

Delegates here from these states believe that McKinley will carry California, Delaware, Illinois, Indiana, Kentucky, Maryland, Michigan, Minnesota, Nebraska, North Dakota, South Dakota, West Virginia and probably Louisiana, Montana, Missouri, Virginia, North Carolina and Tennessee. These states, with those that are universally conceded to McKinley, would insure his election by an overwhelming majority.

These are not exaggerated elements. The size and earnestness of the Indianapolis convention foretell that they will be verified.

Who the Creditors Are.

While Mr. Bryan is trying to array the debtor class against the creditor class, he should pause to explain to his unthinking hearers that the creditors in this country are not a handful of bankers, but are in reality the "plain people" and that there are more than 20,000,000 of them. They comprise every man and woman who is a depositor in a savings, national, state or private bank, or who is a stockholder or member of a loan and trust company, holding in a loan association, the builders of life insurance policies, members of co-operative and mutual aid societies, &c.

All these institutions owe these depositors and other holders and members every cent they have paid in, which aggregates fifteen billions of dollars. It is easy to see who comprises the creditor class. Mr. Bryan knows it, but he is careful not to draw attention to it in his speeches. The debtors are really in the minority.

The creditors are in the vast majority and comprise the working classes and salaried people who are saving their earnings in the way indicated. Will they vote, to be paid back this hard earned money in depreciated dollars, or will they vote to be paid in the same good money they paid in?

Mr. Bryan's boyish metaphors will not induce the plain people of this country to thus impoverish themselves.

National Democratic Ticket.

The nomination of Palmer and Buckner as the sound money Democratic candidates for President and Vice President was an action which will add strength to the movement. Senator Palmer is one of the most distinguished and influential Democratic leaders in the country. He is a man of high character and has the respect of the Democratic party. His popularity in Illinois, where he was the popular choice of his party for the senatorship at the time of his election, is unquestioned, and will insure the state of Illinois to McKinley beyond all doubt.

He was one of the foremost leaders of the revolt against Bryanism and all the objectionable features of the Chicago platform, and was naturally looked upon as the Moses to lead the hosts of real Democrats in their effort to save their party from dishonor.

Ex-Governor Buckner, of Kentucky, the nominee for Vice President, will add great strength to the already strong movement in the south, especially in those states which it is hoped will be most largely affected by the third ticket.

In Kentucky Mr. Buckner is very popular and has great influence with the masses of the people. In Tennessee and West Virginia, also, he will take many votes away from the Chicago ticket. With a ticket so eminently respectable there is no reason why the National Democratic party should not poll even more than the million votes claimed by it.

Two Ways of Doing It.

Democrats who look to their party organ in this city for full reports of the sound money national Democratic convention at Indianapolis do not find them. The convention was one of the most notable and significant political gatherings ever held in this country. It has made history.

The Associated Press has furnished complete reports of the proceedings and the Intelligencer has been publishing them. Every first-class newspaper in the country, of whatever party, has realized that the convention was an important feature of the campaign and consequently the news feature of the day.

The Register presents its readers with a garbled report, with all the descriptions of the enthusiastic scenes and the significant speeches delivered cut out. It does not want its readers to know too much about the revolt against the Chicago platform. This is one way to publish a partisan newspaper.

During his campaign tour the Intelligencer has from time to time been publishing Mr. Bryan's speeches for the benefit of its readers, though it has not had the space for all of them. The Intelligencer has many Democratic readers and it has received some compliments from them for the fair way in which it has handled the news end of the features of the campaign.

In this remarkable contest, in which such vital issues are at stake, the people are entitled to know what is going on, especially those things which have an important bearing on the outcome.

The Shout of the Demagogue.

All this talk of the Bryanites about the sound money people advocating the domination of European influences over our affairs is the merest rot. The Republican party is not proposing to close up American mills and throw American workmen out of employment by admitting free the products of foreign mills and factories and foreign labor, any more than it is proposing to open our mints for the free coinage of the silver of the world.

The Popocrats, however, have very suddenly become intensely "patriotic" in their attitude regarding foreign influence. Four years ago every man of them, including Mr. Bryan, was howling about the "markets of the world" and preaching that we couldn't get along without them. In order to gain them we must throw open our gates to the importation of cheap products that came in direct competition with the products of our own labor.

Now, when the Republican party advocates a money standard that is good the world over, in order that we may hold our own with other great commercial nations, these same demagogues are talking about European influences and appealing for votes with that cry. It is the shout of the demagogue and, since the American people are not ignorant fools, it will not be effective.

The remark of the Nebraska delegation at Indianapolis that Nebraska had already presented one candidate too many for the presidency expressed what a great many thousand Nebraska Democrats are thinking to-day.

VERMONT'S VOICE.

If the election in Vermont is a straw showing which way the tide is moving, there is significance in the overwhelming Republican majority of yesterday.—Chicago Inter-Ocean, (Rep.)

And let no man of all the disappointed hosts of silver hug to his breast the belief that this is a "sectional" defeat. This is not sectionalism. This is not economics. This is not finance. This is not politics of any sort. This is morality. Vermont has gone for the Eighth commandment. The conscience of this people is awake!—New York Press, (Rep.)

Vermont is always safely Republican. This year it is overwhelmingly so. A variety of causes contributed to this result, but chief among them were the steady growth of Republican sentiment, a wide-spread disgust with the Chicago monstrosity that kept hundreds of Democrats away from the polls, and an unusual determination among the Republican leaders to get out a full vote in order to administer a fitting rebuke to Bryanism and thus aid the general movement for sound money.—New York Advertiser, (Rep.)

If the cheap money virus hasn't poisoned the citizenship of any other Republican state in any greater ratio than in Vermont, Bryan will be the worst beaten man that ever ran for ROYAL BAKING POWDER Absolutely Pure. A crown of finer baking powder. Highest of all in leavening strength.—Largest United States General Trade House. ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., New York.

(The presidency.—Philadelphia Times, (Dem.)

In the returns of yesterday's election in Vermont the silverites cannot help but read a sure indication of what the end must be. They need no Daniel to interpret the handwriting on the wall. The state, of course, was expected to elect the Republican ticket. It has never failed to do so since that party was organized. But it is the size of the majority and the character of the population from which the vote comes that are significant. It is customary to say that a Republican majority of 25,000 in Vermont points to national defeat for the Democratic party. What kind of a defeat is portended, therefore, by a Republican majority of over 35,000?—Baltimore News, (Dem.)

If the country shall vote as the first reports indicate the voting has been done in the towns of Vermont, the Republican plurality will be something phenomenal. As an opening sunrise gun in the sound money fusillade the result in the Green Mountain state leaves nothing to be desired.—Philadelphia Record, (Dem.)

Vermont is not a very significant state. Yet its election may fairly be counted a straw showing which way the wind blows. In the state of Vermont the Republicans made important gains yesterday. In so far as the Vermont election is significant at all its teaching is that the east is for sound money, wholly apart from all other issues.—New York World, (Dem.)

REPUBLICAN WOMEN.

An Address Issued to Them by the National Association.

CHICAGO, Sept. 4.—The following circular has been issued by the Women's Republican Association:

TO REPUBLICAN WOMEN:—The honorable recognition given to women by the National Republican Committee should be acknowledged by them in embracing the present opportunity to serve the Republican party and the country.

Never were there more powerful and obvious motives for persistent and united effort among women than now. Morality and unity, the indispensable supports of the Home and the Nation, are being assailed.

Where is security for the future honesty of our sons if they are now taught the lessons of repudiation?

Where is security for our national union that cost us suffering and blood, if partisan misrepresentation and intrigue alienate the south and west from north and east?

In the name of good faith and honesty, of union and prosperity, we urge women everywhere to help maintain the nation's honor and unity. This can be done most effectively by united effort in forming woman's Republican clubs, or McKinley and Hobart clubs, or sound money clubs, where women can meet and discuss the great issues of the campaign and can consult as to plans and methods of influencing voters.

In connection with and under the supervision of the national Republican committee, the woman's branch of the work has opened headquarters in the Auditorium Annex, Chicago, where all communications to me should be addressed.

I shall be pleased to communicate with any person relative to any phase of the work and to furnish campaign literature and constitutions for the formation of local clubs.

I shall soon be speaking on the Republican platform for McKinley and Hobart and hope to meet many of you personally. Yours sincerely, J. ELLEN FOSTER, President.

The piano is in perfect condition, having been very carefully used and shows no sign of wear. It can be seen at our store, 1310 Market Street. F. W. BAUMER CO.

SINCE 1878 there have been nine epidemics of dysentery in different parts of the country in which Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy was used with perfect success. Dysentery, when epidemic, is almost as severe and dangerous as Asiatic cholera. Heretofore the best efforts of the most skilled physicians have failed to check its ravages, this remedy, however, has cured the most malignant cases, both of children and adults, and under the most trying conditions, which proves it to be the best medicine in the world for bowel complaints.

It doesn't matter much whether sick headache, biliousness, indigestion and constipation are caused by neglect or by unavoidable circumstances; DeWitt's Little Early Risers will speedily cure them all.
