LOCAL BREVITIES.

Matters of Minor Moment in and About the City. First district 'Dummies' meet here here-to-day. Monday evening the Auditorium club gives another of its series of hops at the Pythian club. The Kilmeyer will play. The criminal court was not in session yesterday. Both parts of the circuit court and the criminal court will be in session to-day. William Kraft, a well known Eighth ward citizen, whose mind is thought to be unbalanced, was taken to the county jail, to await a medical examination. The city council police committee met at the office of Chief Bennett last night and audited bills as follows: Police department, $79.60; city prison, $110.67. These were recommended to council for payment. The Knights of Pythias banquet at the Pythian club on Thursday night, was a swell affair and a success in every particular. Those from this city who attended are enthusiastic in their praise of the hospitality afforded. Grand Chancellor Prager, of Parkersburg, was present. About 11:45 last night a boy named Frank Coats, informed Lieutenant Supler that he had noticed a man trying to break open the letter box at the corner of Twelfth and Chapline streets. The lieutenant and Officer Conrad investigated, but discovered no signs that the box had been tampered with, although the boy said the man used a bowlder. Yesterday, in the circuit court, in the case of Poole & Purdy vs. John E. Clator and Dennis Williams, the matter at issue was partly tried, but on account of the illness of one of the jurors, Mr. Henry Dannenberg, the case was adjourned until Monday. Mr. Dannenberg was moved to his home in the Eighth ward and is not believed to be seriously ill. Edna Gray, one of Alley C's sold doves, and Jim Smith took a ride in a hack last night. The breaking of the windows of the hack and disorderly conduct generally caused the driver to ride at the city bastille, where the pair were registered on the disorderly docket. This morning that benevolent gentleman, Mayor Butts, will extract the particulars of the incident and extend some needed advice as to how to administer an allopathic dose of the salutary retirement from participation in the dizzy thoroughfare on the hillside. ABOUT PEOPLE. Strangers in the City and Wheeling People Abroad. B. S. Easton, of Mannington, is at the Windsor. J. T. Hervey and J. W. R. Fitch, of New Martinsville, are within the city's gates. Dr. W. Percy Goff, of Clarksburg, son of Judge Goff, was in the city yesterday, registered at the McClure. C. A. Hunter, of Moundsville, and Basil T. Bowers, of New Martinsville, were registered at the Stamm yesterday. Fritz Hinkleman, the South Jacob street saloonist, and wife, left Thursday evening on a visit to their former home in Germany. J. E. Hines, of Cairo, Charles Strinber, of Alvey, J. W. Hogar, of Gratot, and W. G. Potts, of Ross, are West Virginians at the Howell. MILLIONS of bottles of Cook's Imperial Champagne, extra dry, have been drunk, always leaving a taste for more.

POLITICAL ARENA.

Meeting of the First District Congressional Committee

WHEELING WILL BE SELECTED AS THE PLACE FOR THE CONVENTION—SEVERAL CANDIDATES ARE OUT FOR THE NOMINATION, INCLUDING COLONEL ARNETT AND JOHN O. PENDLETON—OVER-THE-RIVER COMMITTEE MEETS.

AND IT IS POSSIBLE THAT WHEELING WILL BE SELECTED AS THE PLACE FOR THE CONVENTION—SEVERAL CANDIDATES ARE OUT FOR THE NOMINATION, INCLUDING COLONEL ARNETT AND JOHN O. PENDLETON—OVER-THE-RIVER COMMITTEE MEETS.

This afternoon at the Hotel Windsor, the congressional committee of the First district Democrats will meet, the meeting having been called recently by Secretary Frank C. Cox, of this city. The indications are that there will be a large representation of the committee here to-day, and more interest is being taken by the enemy than has been shown since '94 when Johnny Howard was snowed under so deeply.

It is probable that the convention will be held in Wheeling, though some of the interior towns, among them Weston and Sutton, are in the field for the convention plum. It is intimated that the committee will give the convention to the metropolis again unless the interior towns give satisfactory assurance that they can furnish accommodations equal to the size of the convention crowd. Wheeling hopes the committee will decide to come here again, for First district Democrats are pretty good fellows before and after elections.

There is no lack of willingness on the part of prominent members of the unscrupled aggregation to walk up to the sacrificial altar next November. Colonel Arnett went down into the slough of crushing defeat two years ago, but he and his friends have spent eighteen months in working out the causes that brought about the effect, and they have brought up their minds that faint hearts are out of place in politics, so will try again in '98.

Ex-Congressman John O. Pendleton is already a ready-made candidate and it is likely that he will openly avow himself when the committee gathers to-day in this city. If he is going to run, he will of course take the opportunity of fixing up his fences while the committee is here. The intelligence risks the prediction that Mr. Pendleton will be an active candidate, and when the prediction is verified an interesting fight will be on in this county, between the supporters of Arnett and Pendleton for the Ohio county county delegation in the convention.

Among the candidates reported from other counties of the district are Sperry, the Clarksburg editor; Brannon, the eloquent Lewis county Free silver man; Lewis Bennett, of Weston, who has been in this city; Dr. W. P. Newlon and J. B. Fowler, both of Sutton. It will be noted that Ohio, Lewis and Braxton have two candidates each. This is a feature which could not possibly be more favorable for a dark horse to come in and carry off the nomination while the warring factions are scrapping. However, some of the present candidates may withdraw before the convention is held.

MEETING NOT CALLED.

Captain Dovenor, the First district congressman, is in the city yesterday and will remain here and at Pan Handle towns, where he has legal business to attend to, until Tuesday, when he will return to his seat in the house. Speaking of the congressional situation last night, the captain expressed confidence that he would be re-nominated this summer. He says the congressional committee has not yet been called to meet, but that the secretary of the committee will call a meeting in the near future.

Captain Dovenor spoke of the wonderful scenes in Washington that followed Dewey's splendid victory before Manila. Usually the national capital does not enjoy the same excitement as in the Philippines took everybody by storm at Washington.

SIXTEENTH OHIO DISTRICT.

The congressional committee of the Sixteenth (Ohio) district, met in Steubenville, Ohio, on Friday, and the following members present: Theodore Keller, W. Beall, Thomas B. Rouse, D. O. Ruten and F. K. McLaughlin. The decision of the committee was to hold the nominating convention in the city of Steubenville on June 15. The following names in the district are entitled to delegates as follows: Belmont, 65; Carroll, 25; Harrison, 23; Jefferson, 47; Monroe, 15; Hon. D. A. Hollingsworth, of Cadiz, who is expected to be elected, was selected temporary chairman, and S. F. Rose, of Monroe, temporary secretary.

Last evening, the local officials of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad received a telegram from Baltimore, announcing that ex-President Grover Cleveland would pass through Benwood Junction this morning, in a private car on train No. 7, en route to Sandusky, Ohio, from Princeton, N. J. Mr. Cleveland goes to the Ohio town to attend the funeral of his former private secretary, Mr. Thurber, who died on Wednesday at that place.

WHEELING MEN SECURE

An Engagement as Supervising Engineers at Bridgeport.

At a special meeting of the city council of Bridgeport last night, council considered the applications of a number of civil engineers for engagement to supervise the $60,000 paving contracts that are to be let in the near future by council, bonds to that amount having been authorized at the recent municipal election. The council, after a short session, engaged Mr. Elz & Hoge as engineers for the street improvement work. Elz & Hoge started next week, preliminary surveys being first.

MR. BRATTON DIES.

This morning at 1:15 o'clock occurred the death of Mr. William J. Bratton, of Bridgeport, who had been in the undertaking business there for more than twenty years. He had not enjoyed good health during the past year, and recently became worse, so that death was not unexpected. He leaves four sons, William, Charles, Edward and Harry, and two daughters, Lulu and Katie.

HERE AND THERE.

Got a commodore—sure thing! for Heyville ain't no more. It's still within the hills an' it doesn't 'pear to grow. But when it comes to fall in line, a-belm' up-to-date, I'll guarantee you Heyville ain't many miles from a score. But when I read the papers, he argued commodore.

Got a commodore—er SI was bound to have his way. An' talked a heap o' Dewey, an' 'bout Manila, he said there wa'n't no reason, ner no honor to the town. Addin' to the colonels so promiscuous around. Said Heyville orto' wake up an' deal in proper more.

The ideal? Where was the town without a commodore? Got a commodore—oh, it didn't stop with SI. A doctor fingers next day, a-reachin' for the pie. But we thought it best to tarry, for history's allus policy, to leave well enough alone. An' though in comin' years they'll likely be galore, Heyville's restin' easy now with SI fer commodore. J. W.

On the other side of Mannington, travelers on the Baltimore & Ohio railroad may notice a large barn, from which the sign painter's handiwork gleams forth in all the glory of immense black and white letters. The inscription reads, "St. Jacob's Oil Conquers Pain." There was a circus here in Wheeling this week. There is war now between this country and Spain.

The above sentences are merely to introduce two rural characters on the scene. A man and his wife who came to see the elephant. The woman, all eyes, was for reading the advertisements, and taking in the sights along the railroad. Her husband, who was thinking of the war, before Mannington was hailed, she broke in on his reverie by reading of the medicine sign on the barn, "exclusively mentioned" above. Spelling off the letters she read: "Conquer Spain!" blurted out her better half. "Say it agin' till I telegraph Bill McKinley."

Manly then explained the sign, and he was so mad that he "fowed it was out to be low in so, and what they'd better have a care when they struck the city."

Visitors to the side show at the circus here on Wednesday were struck with the "wild man of Borneo." A circus without a wild man from this region might as well shake the clown. This particular individual acted his part as well as could be expected of a citizen whose eyes first saw light in the Carolinas, and no Borneo aborigine could have worked harder in a cage for the same salary. The management wisely separated the cage far from the maddening crowd by a rope, and then only withdrew the canvas covering from the cage at the influx of a new crowd, this cage for a few minutes. The Ethiopean, therefore, was given needed respites to practice gnashing his teeth and clawing at the bars of his cage. False teeth for tusks, and a flowing wig helped him out wonderfully. Warnings and chickens were prohibited from his sight, hence he wasn't handicapped in any way. A gentleman from West Liberty, who seldom misses a circus, took great delight in the wild man's antics, he spelled the romance as he turned to go, by remarking: "Fehar! this coon ain't as good a man from Borneo as they had last time."

It must be a trying situation a young man, not married over a year, finds himself in, when he goes home after the midnight hour hath passed, in a condition not compatible with that due to a settling member of the church. In other words, he has had a long and a longingly on the flowing bowl. Of course, after he has capitulated to the siren song of the tempter and imbibed, he thinks he can square himself with his young wife. In theory it may be easy, but in practice very probably the reverse. Such a predicament it was, in which a young benedict of the Island discovered himself, as he sighted the door of his domicile a few nights ago. Tolders are supposed to be temperate, have no saloons in the ward, and water on both sides. He, sad to chronicle, had spent the best part of the shadowy hours on the city side of the river, and his legs wobbled woefully over the floor. He tried to explain, but he had for in his throat. Minus the foamy accent, he said his trouble was "paralysis of the legs."

"But," she cried aloud, "if it makes you walk so funny, how did it get in your throat? That makes you makes your eyes blink like an owl?" "All paralysis, my dear, nothing more. I used to have it before, it's just an old trouble come back. Attacks me when I'm out late in the damp night air, and leaves me in the morning. See if it don't leave me to-morrow morning."

Ah, the trusting simplicity of the young wife. She took him at his word. But it was not so. The next day her neighbor afterwards; "he was as active a man and walked as straight as ever next morning."

The war has been a missionary for the cause of geography. Who knew of the Philippines two months ago? If any there be let him take the bun, and forever after hold his head in pride. And Manila? Its connection with wrapping paper and tags, of course, is debared from this interesting attempt to annihilate nearly a column of space. And lives there a man with mind so read that to himself till late has said: "Of Cape Verde I've often heard?" There may be such a man, who knows? But articles in the procession come: Manzanos, Cavite, etc., all in one grand harmonious tangle, yet the citizens who couldn't get a 100 per cent in any geography examination, in which the location of these points were asked for, must be few indeed. War costs lives, it costs money, but it brings many an old geography down from a dusty shelf.
