A SAD TRAGEDY

Over the River Last Night That cut Short the Career of

A WELL KNOWN YOUNG MILLMAN

Ely John, of Aetnaville, struck and Instantly Killed by a Cleveland & Pittsburgh Passenger Train—He was Walking to Bridgeport to Attend a Masonic Lodge Meeting When the Grim Reaper Overtook him.

The Grim Reaper cut short the career of a well known young man of Aetnaville last evening at 6 o'clock. It was another lesson of the danger of using railroad tracks as a public highway, but it seems to be a lesson that hundreds of people in the Greater Wheeling district find it difficult to commit.

Ely John, the victim, was a young man twenty-seven years of age, who was employed at the Aetna-Standard mills as a rougher. He lived with his parents in Aetnaville, and was an excellent young man. After leaving his day's work last evening he went to his home, ate supper, and then started down the Cleveland & Pittsburgh railroad tracks, with the intention of attending the meeting of the Bridgeport lodge of the A. F. & A. M., of which he was a member.

Below Aetnaville it is supposed he stepped from a wide track onto the main line under the belief that he had done just the other thing—from the main track to a side track. At any rate he was struck by the south-bound Cleveland & Pittsburgh passenger train No. 357, due at Bridgeport at 6 o'clock, and was instantly killed. His body was horribly mangled and torn. The train was stopped at once, the body taken on board and carried to Bridgeport, where it was taken in charge by Bratton, the undertaker.

The funeral arrangements had not been announced last night. The deceased was a member of the Masonic and Odd Fellow fraternities.

FRIGHTFULLY BURNED

Was Miss Lola Howell, at Martin's Ferry Yesterday.

Miss Lola Howell, the seventeen-year-old daughter of Mr. R. J. Howell, proprietor of the Bellevue Hotel, at Martin's Ferry, was horribly burned yesterday morning about 9:30 o'clock. Miss Howell was working in the third story of the building and standing with her back toward an open grate, when a large piece of paper, which her infant sister had thrown in the fire, rolled out upon the floor under her clothing, igniting it, and in a second her garments were a mass of fire from head to foot.

Her shrieks for help attracted the attention of her father, who was in the office at the time, and who hastened to her rescue. The rescue from what seemed certain death can be attributed to the presence of mind displayed by Mr. Howell in pushing her into a heap of loose laundry which was lying in the corner of the hallway, and in this manner smothering the flames, but not before her clothing was nearly all burned from her body.

Her entire left side and back were burned in a ghastly manner, while her face and hair were slightly burned.

Mr. Howell, in his heroic efforts to save his daughter, had both hands badly burned and left side of face scalded. Miss Howell, while suffering the worst of agony last night, was, as stated by the attending physician, Dr. W. E. Hervey, getting along as well as could be expected under the circumstances, and her recovery is expected.

A PECULIAR ACCIDENT

At the Riverside Occasion of a Narrow Escape.

A peculiar accident occurred at the Riverside blast furnace yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock, and the victim, Fred Bushi, a Hungarian, may congratulate himself on the density of his cranium, otherwise he would have been a deceased citizen. A chunk of iron ore fell from the trestle at the blast furnace alighting on Bushi's head, which, fortunately, was somewhat bushy. He was standing on the ground beneath 25 feet below the trestle, loading a buggy.

Bushi was knocked senseless from the blow, and the wound in his scalp bled profusely. At first, it was thought he was dead, but Dr. Alley, who was immediately summoned, ascertained that while he was seriously injured there were chances for his recovery. The scalp wound, which was several inches in extent, was sewed up, and Bushi's other wounds dressed. He will not be able to work for many weeks, but considering the nature of the accident, his escape from death is miraculous.

EARLY MORNING FIRE

At Fulton Calls out the Vigilant—The Loss was Small.

At midnight Chief Cline, of the fire department, received a telephone message from Fulton, calling for assistance in fighting fire in the large dwelling house owned by Fred Weimer, the butcher, located on the National road at the western edge of the town.

The chief sent out the Vigilant engine, which soon had the blaze extinguished. The fire was confined principally to the roof, and the loss will not be large. The house is two stories in height on the pike, and there are two lower stories on the hill side.

The house was occupied by Mr. Johnson, watchman at Schenck's pork packing establishment. The fire originated from a defective flue. The loss is caused principally by the water that was used in extinguishing the blaze.
