Gas Works Strike. A rumor was current last night that the gas works strike would be settled. The rumor arose from a meeting of the gas board, which went over a statement of probable receipts and expenditures so as to find what could be done in the matter. A member of the board said no conference with the men had been arranged. Seven of the nine reports are being worked at the gas works by a force of colored men and the strikers still remain out for all their demands. It will be remembered that they were granted twenty cents advance on the day.

THREE MENTIONED For the Office of Coadjutor to the Episcopal Bishop of THE WEST VIRGINIA DIOCESE Most Prominent Among the Trio Being a Wheeling Clergyman, Rev. Jacob Brittingham, of St. Luke's Church—He is Eminently Qualified for the Higher Church Office his Friends Would Like to See him Secure.

Throughout the Episcopalian diocese of West Virginia there is general interest in the special diocesan convention, which is to be held at Clarksburg or Parkersburg, more likely the former, during the coming month for the purpose of electing a coadjutor bishop of West Virginia, who will assist Bishop Peterkin in conducting the diocesan work.

Three clergymen have been prominently mentioned for the office. These are Rev. Jacob Brittingham, rector of St. Luke's church, Wheeling Island; Rev. B. M. Spurr, rector of Trinity church, Moundsville, and Rev. Dr. S. Scollay Moore, rector of Trinity church, in Parkersburg.

The claims of each of the trio are being persistently forwarded by their friends. Of the three, Mr. Brittingham will probably command the most support. He is eminently qualified and fitted for the work that would come to him as Bishop Peterkin's coadjutor, and his multitude of friends in the four Wheeling congregations of the Protestant Episcopal church would be delighted if he were fortunate enough to be elevated to the higher office. As rector of St. Luke's during the past ten years, his has been a record to be envied by any clergyman of his denomination small in numbers and of modest financial strength, it has in the decade just ended shown rapid growth numerically, has become strong financially, and in parish work has been an example of enterprise and good management. This general result has been due to Mr. Brittingham more than to any other man, and that he would enter the coadjutor's chair well equipped for the work of a more extended field none will gainsay.

Mr. Spurr, too, has many friends who would like to see him elevated to the coadjutorship, and they point with pride to his record in charge of Trinity parish at Moundsville.

Dr. Moore's claims are warmly urged by his friends, especially those in Parkersburg, where he has seen long and honorable service at the head of one of the largest and most influential parishes of the diocese.

Neither of the three is an avowed candidate for the coadjutorship, in fact it is not likely there will be any avowed candidates, such a course being generally considered beneath the dignity of a clergyman.

The coadjutor will be elected by the clergymen of the diocese, and before the election is complete the choice of the clergy must receive the confirmation of the laymen. In the past the clergy and laity have seldom clashed, but only recently in Delaware the laity held out against the clergy, insisting upon the election of Bishop Clayton, and after a long struggle they carried their point.

Some amusement has followed the break made a few days ago by two Wheeling supporters of Mr. Spurr. One said he would be willing to spend $500 to secure his candidate's election, and the other was willing to go $500 better. When asked how they would go about using this money in a convention of clergymen, one of the pair (who, by the way, is known prominently in the political field), said "he guessed the preachers had to pay railroad fare, and he would send them railroad tickets and a request that they support his man." Some of his friends enlightened the gentleman to the extent of letting him know that Episcopalian conventions were not on the level of political conventions.

William J. Bodley Injured. Yesterday morning, William J. Bodley, the brick-laying contractor, fell from the roof of a house he owns near Market and Twenty-fourth streets, and sustained severe injuries. Mr. Bodley was pointing the bricks in a chimney, and losing his footing on the scaffold fell to the paved walk beneath, a distance of about thirty feet. His right hip was broken and there were two fractures of his right arm above the wrist, while his head was cut. Mr. Bodley was removed to his home, 1517 Jacob street, in the city ambulance, and his injuries will confine him to his home for some time.
