THE INTELLIGENCER. WHEELING, APRIL 17, 1900.

A Word to Council.

The council committee on petitions and remonstrances, after a thorough investigation of the complaints that were lodged against twelve saloon-keepers, has recommended that council refuse their applications for a renewal of their licenses. Heretofore such recommendations of the committee have been negatived by council, but the Intelligencer believes that council, at the special meeting to be held to-night, will endorse the adverse report made by the committee. If it does not it will be making a most grievous mistake. It cannot be possible that any councilman will attempt to excuse himself from voting against a renewal of the licenses of the applicants who have been cited by the committee on the ground that he is ignorant of the character of the places sought to be closed. Such a plea will be the supremest folly, for all of them are notorious in the violation of the privileges granted them under the ordinance licensing saloons.

There will, no doubt, be many strong influences brought to bear on the members of council to annul the good work of the committee, but while pleas are being made for the licenses that are under the ban of public reprobation, they should remember that those gentlemen who conduct their places of business within the spirit and letter of the law are as much opposed to this class of saloons as is the indignant public, for reasons too obvious to mention. Therefore, the Intelligencer looks to the action of council this evening with every confidence that it will uphold the committee in refusing to further license the twelve designated places to ply a trade that is without the purview of the privileges the city grants to applicants to sell wines and liquors. Morally and politically the council cannot afford to do otherwise.

A Mock Sorrow.

As the Intelligencer has pointed out before, the object in passing the Puerto Rican tariff bill was first for the real benefit of the inhabitants of that island, and second, but by no means, an inferior reason, for the purpose of preserving the protective tariff system, which is the chief bulwark of the Republican party. The free trade scheme with which the Democrats tried to trap the Republicans in Congress, was beautiful in theory, but entirely impractical, as are all the theories of that party. It is therefore quite amusing to read of the profound sorrow expressed by the free trade and mugwump newspapers over "the fall of the Republican party" because of its passage in Congress of the Puerto Rican tariff bill. Those newspapers, which have never omitted any opportunity to oppose the Republican party by wilful and malicious misrepresentation of its course on every public question, and which have charged it with committing about every crime known in the political history of the universe, are now on their knees weeping and wailing because the poor old party has at last "dug its own grave" by passing a just measure, soon to go on the statute book for the relief of the people of Puerto Rico.

In enjoying the really humorous phase of the situation, the Philadelphia Press is moved to say: "What a touching sight! To be sure, there is one relieving feature. The agony is not quite so great as when the Republican party passed either the McKinley or the Dingley tariff laws. But while the free trade pain and sorrow may not be so acute, the efforts to afford relief are fully as ineffective as on either of these sad occasions. Why is it that the Republicans are oblivious to the warnings sounded every day by these loving enemies? "The Republicans are seemingly just as happy as they were when they brought relief and prosperity to the nation by the passage of the Dingley law. They actually are smiling, confident of the future, regardless of the tremendous anxiety over their future by their friends, the enemy. They see great prosperity for Puerto Rico under this new legislation, as they saw such prosperity for the United States when the Dingley law went on the statute books. "Such blindness to free trade and mugwump warnings seems likely to make the free traders and the Dryan-its real sick. Is there no relief to be found for our friends, the enemy? Their case is a pitiful one."

And Trade Goes Marching On.

March has piled up a record for exportations that eclipses any corresponding month in the history of the country. The total exports for the month as divulged by the treasury bureau of statistics amount to the remarkable sum of $134,312,348. But one month in the history of the export trade of the country was as large, December, 1898, and that month is usually the heaviest export month of the year.

Not only are the March 1900 exports the heaviest in the history of our foreign commerce, but the total for the nine months ending with March is also greater than that of any corresponding nine months in the history of our exports. The total exportations in the nine months ending with March, 1900, are $1,053,832,676, against $974,919,405 in the corresponding months of last year, $925,905,326 in the corresponding months of 1897, and $515,499,635 in the corresponding months of 1896, having thus doubled in fifteen years and increased over 83 per cent since 1896.

The steady increase in exportations is the more remarkable in view of the fact that exports of agricultural products of last year, the notable increase of more than $100,000,000 in the nine months in question being largely in manufactures. In the eight months ending with February the exports of agricultural products were practically the same as those of the preceding year, while those of manufacturers showed an increase of $61,000,000.

These astonishing figures of the March exportations make it apparent that the total of the fiscal year 1900 will exceed those of any preceding year in our history, since for the nine months of the fiscal year for which the figures are now at hand, the total exports are $105,000,000 greater than those of the corresponding months of any preceding year. It seems probable that the total exports of the year will reach $1,300,000,000 and that manufactures will supply fully $400,000,000 of this vast sum.

Southern Industrial Convention.

The second semi-annual session of the Southern Industrial Convention will be held at Chattanooga, Tennessee, May 16th to 18th, and it promises to be more fruitful of results than the session held at Huntsville, Alabama, last fall, which was remarkable in attendance and the attention its proceedings attracted throughout the north and west. At that session addresses were made by Governor Atkinson and ex-Governor MacCorkle, of West Virginia, on two of the problems of the south, and which were widely quoted by the press of the country. The convention afterwards complimented this state by electing ex-Governor MacCorkle president.

Another "Christian Newspaper."

Another man sees a brief season of notoriety in the publication of a "Christian newspaper," and, according to the prospectus it is to be a permanent affair. The journal, however, will be conducted on lines quite different from those followed by Rev. Sheldon. The paper is to be published by Joseph Speyer, the editor of a German weekly paper of Kansas City. He will publish it as a weekly first, and afterward as a daily. If it finds favor with the public. While he will pay good wages to all whom he may employ, he will neither compensate himself directly for his work on the paper, nor use for his own benefit any of its earnings. "I will run it as Jesus would run it, without gain to myself, but paying those about me. The surplus will go to the poor," said Mr. Speyer, speaking of his proposed venture. "About the news, we shall print the seamy side of life and show it up. Christ took some women by the hand whom Sheldon would not mention in his sheet. We shall print everything that happens, and you bet your life it will be a good paper."

We judge from the announcement that Mr. Speyer will enter his new field for amusement, and as it is anything but amusing to conduct a newspaper of any character, we believe that he will find it an experience of a peculiarly depressing character.

A London dispatch says Lord Roberts is making preparations for an advance. That is what he has been doing for some weeks, but the Boers through apparent obstinacy persist in keeping in his way.

Hon. W. Scott Meredith goes into the Second district congressional convention with the strong endorsement of his home county, Marion, with lendings to wards his candidacy in others.

Senator Elkins and his estimable wife will please accept the cordial felicitations of the Intelligencer on the twenty-fifth anniversary of their marriage. Neither of them look it.

PASSING PLEASANTRIES.

He-If there could be any slower amusement than playing chess by mail, I should like to know what it could be. Him-They might use a messenger boy.—Indianapolis Journal.

Behind the Scenes—Ham Lett—Are there any long waits in the piece you are now playing? Sue Brett—Rather. I've been waiting ten weeks for a chance to look at my salary.—Chicago News.

"Mabel always said she would never marry any but a professional man." "And has she fulfilled her desire?" "Yes; her husband is Professor Thiddleton. He has an educated goat and a trained monkey that he exhibits on the stage."—Chicago Times-Herald.

Moving Along—On April 18, 2001, the British war office received the cheering news: "Her majesty's troops in South Africa are now concentrating for the siege of Pretoria." That same day the war department at Washington received a revised list of the week's killed and wounded in the Philippines.—Philadelphia North American.

The Royal Mandate—"No," said the up-to-date king, "I mean to do away with some of this flummery." "But, your majesty," protested the arbiter elegantly, "you must have passed to hold your train. Tell me, is that not more dignified than to have the royal train sweeping along the floor?" "Well, I can draw my own conclusion."—Philadelphia Press.

"There goes a man," said Mr. Sherlock Holmes, "who is completely under petticoat government." "Of course you know something about the man?" suggested the interested interlocutor. "Never saw him before in my life," replied the great detective. "He is all a part of the game. You saw him kick that dog just a moment ago? Well, he spoke in an angry manner to the newboy at the corner. The inevitable inference is that his wife is a little bit of a woman, and that he is afraid of death of her."—Boston Transcript.

Revolt Against Ruskin.

Chicago Tribune: A curious and violent revolt has broken out in England against Ruskin. Blackwoods and the Fortnightly both contain articles condemning Ruskin and all his teachings. The Blackwoods writer says Ruskin knew nothing of painting, of architecture, or political economy; contradicts him out of his own mouth, and will not even admit that he could write good English. The Portlighthly Review expresses practically the same judgments in more dignified form. This violent dislike of a man who a few years ago was regarded almost infallible is a curious but natural phenomenon. In part it may be accounted for by the persistent way in which Ruskin bullied his readers. He was always a slashing fighter. But probably this belated outburst may be still further accounted for by the indiscriminate and wholesale praise among those with whom Ruskin was in contact. This has produced a reaction in the opposition. It is as foolish to deny that Ruskin's theories of political economy were untenable as to deny that his theories of the true and noble in life were sound. His ethical teachings have done good to thousands of men and women and will help many thousands more. The attempt to bury his work under bitter invective is as unjust as to exalt him as infallible.

The Indiana Hanna.

Boston Herald: It is to be hoped that the report is true that the Indiana Republicans intend to nominate Mr. H. H. Hanna as their candidate for governor. It would be courageous action on their part, for Mr. Hanna is more identified with efforts for a gold standard of currency than almost any man in the nation. His name into prominence on this issue rather than on what would be accounted strictly party service, and his nomination would be a challenge to the free silver element that would be refreshing. He is one of the most respectable men in point of character and courage in the nation, and if, as is said, the party is thinking of making him a United States senator as well as governor, it would be a further good symptom. But it will not do to be too sure as regards either office until the more active partisans of the state have got in their work. This Hanna, as far as we are informed, is no relation to the other. The Ohio Hanna takes more interest in the raising and the distribution of money in politics than in the principles of finance.

A Strange Hold.

Cleveland Plain Dealer: The millionaire lobbyist had rudely rejected the suitor for his daughter's hand. "Never mind," said the young man calmly as he picked up his hat, "I will see you later." "No! If I see you first," said the lobbyist coolly. "You will have to see me," said the youth. "What do you mean by that?" snarled the old schemer. "I mean," said the youth calmly, "that I have every assurance that I will be elected to the next legislature, and you know it is going to be a reform body." "Then the old man quailed before him."

A Girl's Essay on Boys.

New York Ledger Monthly: At a recent school examination for girls this composition was handed in by a girl of twelve: "The boy is not an animal, yet they can be heard to a considerable distance. When a boy hollers he opens his big mouth like frogs, but girls hold their tongue till they are spoken to, and then they answer respectfully and tell just what they want. A boy thinks him if over because he can wade where the water is deep. When the boy grows up he is called a husband, and then he stops wading and stays out nights, but the grown-up girl is a widow and keeps house."

A Presentation.

Indianapolis Journal: "Ma, me, an' Bess bought you some awful nice candy and Easter eggs." "How thoughtful, Dicky; where are they?" "Well, ma, an' Bess got awfully hungry on th' way home, an' we had to eat 'em up."

Blessed Spot.

Chicago Tribune: "You kiss the bald spot on top of your husband's head? How funny!" "Not funny at all. He got that bald spot scratching to make a living for me and the children."

Grand Old Men

Some men seem to defy old age. They walk erect, their eyes are bright, their laugh is hearty. They are men of to-day—not men of yesterday. They are also men who have kept themselves in good physical condition in the past. As we grow older waste matter accumulates in the system. The body cannot throw it off without assistance. So, little by little the machinery of the body is clogged, vitality is lowered, and enjoyment of life ceases. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, cannot make old men young, but it does make them strong and healthy. By removing the waste accumulations, by increasing the blood supply, by strengthening the stomach and organs of digestion and nutrition, and thus increasing the assimilative and nutritive powers, "Golden Medical Discovery" makes grand old men young. "I suffered for six years with constipation and indigestion, during which time I employed several physicians, but they could not reach my case," writes Mr. G. Popplewell, of Eureka Springs, Carroll Co., Ark. "I felt that there was no help for me, could not retain food on my stomach; had vertigo and would fall helpless to the floor. I commenced taking Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and little by little I am now in good health for one of my age—60 years. I owe it all to Dr. Pierce's medicines." Dr. Pierce's Pills greatly benefit old men by keeping the bowels in activity.

REFLECTIONS OF A BACHELOR.

A man's heart is generally where his old shoes are. A man never accomplishes much till he has got something behind him to be ashamed of. A good many husbands get their only view of their wives' new Easter bonnets while they are in the jack-pot.

A woman can always get rid of a man by letting him see her kiss her dog, but when a man wants to get rid of a woman he has to let some other woman see him kiss some other woman.—New York Press.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces. We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by Catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free. F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O. POLITICAL OFFICIAL CALL.

First District Republican Congressional and Delegate Conventions.

The Republican voters of the First Congressional District are hereby notified that a convention for the purpose of nominating a candidate to represent the said district in the Congress of the United States, to be held at the ensuing election, will be held at Weston, W. Va., Wednesday, June 6, 1900, beginning at 1 o'clock p. m. Also a convention for the purpose of selecting two delegates and two alternates to represent the said district in the National Republican Convention, to be held at Philadelphia, Pa., to nominate a candidate for President and Vice President, to be voted for at the ensuing presidential election, will be held at Clarkburg, W. Va., Monday, May 7, 1900, beginning at 3 o'clock p. m.

The basis of representation, to prevent confusion, will be the same as that for the state nominating convention, to-wit: One vote for every one hundred votes cast for G. W. Atkinson for governor in 1896, and one for every fraction of one hundred over 100. County committees are requested to provide for the selection of delegates to each of said conventions. S. G. SMITH, Chairman. HUGO L. LOOS, Secretary.
