

A GALA EVENT

In Catholic Circles Was the Knights of Columbus Institution.

WHEELING COUNCIL NO. 504,

Ushered Into Existence With Elaborate Exercises, Continuing All Day—The Principal Event Was the Banquet at the Carroll Club—There Were 300 Visiting Knights From Steubenville, Marietta and Elsewhere.

A branch of the Knights of Columbus was instituted in Wheeling yesterday, and elaborate exercises attended the occasion. Fully 300 visiting members of the order made the pilgrimage to Wheeling and were entertained lavishly. The day's proceedings began with 9 o'clock mass at the cathedral, included a large banquet in the afternoon at the Carroll club, and closed with the installation of officers of the local council in the evening at Odd Fellows' hall.

The Knights of Columbus is a Catholic fraternal insurance society and more closely approaches a secret organization than other Catholic societies. It was founded about nineteen years ago, at New Haven, Conn., and until late years it has been confined principally to the east. In its spread westward Wheeling has dropped in line, and Wheeling Council No. 504 starts off with sixty-three members and the promise of a successful regime. Its officers are as follows:

- Grand Knight—John J. Coniff.
- Deputy Grand Knight—John J. O'Kane.
- Chancellor—Harry Ebbert.
- Recording Secretary—Charles Ray.
- Financial Secretary—William B. Gundling.
- Treasurer—Walter Chapman.
- Lecturer—August Weitzel.
- Advocate—T. S. Riley.
- Warden—Joseph Knsr.
- Inside Guard—M. Malooly.
- Outside Guard—E. Gannon.
- Chaplain—Rev. R. C. Harris.
- Physician—Dr. C. A. Wingerter.
- Trustees—John Waterhouse, J. A. Blum, James McGlinly, James McCann and Frank Rieker.

The institution of the new council occupied the greater part of the day. There were three degrees to be conferred, and the council attended mass at St. Catharine's at 9 a. m., before the work proper began. Marietta and Steubenville councils attended this service and occupied especially reserved pews. Bishop Donahue officiated at the mass. Previously the candidates and Sir Knights assembled at the Carroll club and thence proceeded in a body to the cathedral.

The conferring of the first and second degrees began at 10:30 a. m., and they were exemplified at Odd Fellows' hall, where Wheeling council's lodge room is located. There were ninety candidates, sixty-three of them from Wheeling, twenty-five from Steubenville, and the others coming from Marietta and Parkersburg. Marietta council conferred the first degree, and Steubenville administered the second. The third degree was conferred in the evening, beginning at 7 p. m., by District Deputy Supreme Knight William A. Maline, of Youngstown, O., who had charge of the institution ceremonies throughout.

The event of the day was the banquet at the Carroll club auditorium, which opened at 3 o'clock. It was an unusually large affair. There were six tables running the length of the spacious auditorium, with covers laid for 350. The menu cards were artistically gotten up, the frontpiece being appropriate in that it had cuts of Christopher Columbus, the order's patron saint, and Wheeling's city building, Caterer E. B. Carney, of the Windsor, served the banquet, and from the stage, which was refreshing in palms and greenery, Mayer's orchestra discoursed musical selections between the courses. The banquet hall was profusely decorated with the national colors, and the scene was an inspiring one.

Grand Knight John J. Coniff was toastmaster and presiding officer, and his opening address and gracefully worded introductions were the point. The speakers included Mr. Coniff, Chaplain R. C. Harris, of the Cathedral; District Deputy J. T. Mooney and Grand Knight J. T. McDevitt, of Philadelphia; Grand Knight McCarthy, of

A Word to Doctors

We have the highest regard for the medical profession. Our preparations are not sold for the purpose of antagonizing them, but rather as an aid. We lay it down as an established truth that internal remedies are positively injurious to expectant mothers. The distress and discomforts experienced during the months preceding childbirth can be alleviated only by external treatment—by applying a liniment that softens and relaxes the over-strained muscles. We make and sell such a liniment, combining the ingredients in a manner hitherto unknown, and call it

Mother's Friend

We know that in thousands of cases it has proved more than a blessing to expectant mothers. It overcomes morning sickness. It relieves the sense of tightness. Headaches cease, and danger from Swollen, Hard and Rising Breasts is avoided. Labor itself is shortened and shorn of most of the pain. We know that many doctors recommend it, and we know that multitudes of women go to the drug stores and buy it because they are sure their physicians have no objections. We ask a trial—just a fair test. There is no possible chance of injury being the result, because Mother's Friend is scientifically compounded. It is sold at $1 a bottle, and should be used during most of the period of gestation, although great relief is experienced if used only a short time before childbirth. Send for our illustrated book about Mother's Friend.

The visiting delegations included 170 Knights from Pittsburgh, 80 from Marietta and 40 from Steubenville, and a number from Parkersburg, Toledo, Canton and Youngstown. It was undoubtedly the biggest affair in Catholic fraternal order circles ever in this city and it lent much prestige to the start of the Wheeling council.

THE FERRIS WHEEL.

The Passing of the Greatest Engineering Freak of the Century. Chicago Evening Post: When the Ferris wheel is sent to the scrap heap—a thing likely soon to happen—the greatest engineering vagary of the century will have passed into that oblivion reserved for fads, flying machines and perpetual-motion contrivances. Not that the great Ferris wheel is any of these, but simply because it never could serve any practical use, because it embodies no distinctly new principle in engineering, and because it has a marvellous faculty of emptying the coffers of those who try to make its huge bulk earn even a small part of the cost of maintaining it—to say nothing of the cost of original investment.

As one of the wonders of the World's Fair of 1893—perhaps the chief wonder—the Ferris wheel stood unique. Its great size, marvelous construction and distinct novelty made it not only the crowning feature of the Midway, but the gossip of four continents. During the continuance of the exposition more than a million and a half of visitors from all quarters of the globe, rode in its suspended cars, from a height of 264 feet, caught a bird's-eye glimpse of the fair grounds, the lake and the distant city.

Though less than a third the height of the Eiffel Tower of the Paris Exposition, the Ferris wheel was a much greater wonder. The Eiffel Tower was merely a continuous projection of successive towers one upon another. Given a suitable base, its construction simply meant the stringing of iron and steel straight into the air. But in the Ferris wheel something new in construction was accomplished—new because of its great size. It was the projection of a gigantic circle, carrying thousands of tons of steel and iron suspended from an axle and readily movable by the application of machinery. To have built the Ferris wheel simply to stand upon its periphery would have been a comparatively simple task. To suspend this mass of metal from a central point and give it motion was the conception of genius.

Eiffel and his engineers were three years building the tower in Paris. The Ferris wheel was constructed and carrying passengers within four months. The idea of erecting this great wheel came to George Washington Gale Ferris, a native of Illinois, and an engineer for the Pittsburgh Iron Company, about a year before the opening of the World's Fair. Mr. Ferris was then known as one of the most expert bridge builders in America, if not in the world, but when his scheme was mentioned to other engineers it was promptly dismissed as chimerical. Some went even so far as to laugh at him, and not one dreamed the project ever would get beyond the speculative stage. But Mr. Ferris was persistent, and, besides, had faith in himself. Courageously he set to work and succeeded in interesting sufficient capital to warrant him in ordering material for the wheel.

About $25,000 was spent in plans, tests, etc., before the actual construction of the wheel began. Some thirty firms took part in its making and a Chicago firm saw to its erection. When ready to be turned the Ferris wheel had cost $362,000 and had consumed about 8,000,000 pounds of iron and steel. The movable part of it weighed 4,200,000 pounds, and required two engines of 1,000 horse power each to keep it turning. And so nicely adjusted were all the parts, so well balanced was the great steel circle with its thirty-six cars, capable of carrying 2,160 persons, that it was under as full control as a sewing machine or a pony engine. Once or twice during the world's fair the motive power needed to adjust the wheel to the wind was so far that the public was concerned were humorous incidents, which gave the newspaper men a few columns of anything but dull reading matter.

It is barely possible that had the World's Fair lasted a year or two, the Ferris wheel might have paid for itself. This is based on the assumption that the wheel would have continued to be a novelty for twelve months or more. As it was, the gross earnings of the wheel during the fair were $312,000. About one-fifth of this went to the stockholders as profits. The power necessary to operate the big wheel would have run a cotton factory of 100,000 spindles and 3,000 looms and employing 5,000 operatives. The boilers of the power plant consumed coal like an ocean liner. No other single feature of the great exposition represented such an expenditure of energy.

But the fair lasted only six months, and the Ferris wheel ceased paying dividends with the closing of the exposition gates. Had it gone from its place on the Midway direct to the scrap pile or to Coney Island, as was at one time suggested, more than one Chicagoan would have been some thousands of dollars richer to-day. The wheel that was such a drawing card on the shores of Lake Michigan, where the surroundings were somewhat proportioned to its size, was moved to the north side of the city and placed in a corner so small that the cars hung over other property while the wheel was revolving.

There it has turned occasionally for the last few years, eating up coal, piling up cost, an eyesore to the neighborhood and a white elephant to its owners. What has the big wheel cost to date? Besides the sum paid to stockholders during the World's Fair, and counting as part of the cost what it has cost to its owners, it is safe to say that $1,000,000 will not cover the total. To move it from Jackson Park to the North Side cost alone $175,000, and it is figured it will require an expenditure of at least $25,000 to take it down and remove it from where it now stands.

Worked on His Feelings.

New York World: "Good evening, Mr. Manygirls," said the young man. "Evening!" responded Mr. Manygirls gruffly. A pile of papers, evidently bills, lay scattered in front of him. Hence his gruffness. The young man smiled. "Bills for your seven daughters' spring clothes and bonnets, I presume?" said he. "Yes," replied the old man. "But is it any of your business?" "It is. I have come to ask you if I may not take one of those daughters off your hands." The old man rose with a smile. "Take one?" he exclaimed. "Why, boy, you can move to Utah and take the whole seven." The young man had caught him at the right time.

Both were well dressed, and about twenty-three years of age.
