

MARKED BRAVERY

Has Always Characterized the Life of Gov. Theodore Roosevelt.

COMES FROM DUTCH ANCESTRY.

Graduated With Honors from Harvard and Afterward Distinguished Himself as a Man of Affairs in the Empire State—Writer of Books and Contributor to Magazine—Won Laurels as a Soldier—Typical Type of American Citizenship.

The career of the Hon. Theodore Roosevelt has been one of meteoric accomplishment, and yet it has been one of signal usefulness and great honor—on which has contributed most appreciably to the prosperity of the nation, and which conserves the public good.

Theodore Roosevelt is now governor of the state of New York, but he will always live in the admiring hearts of his fellow men as the organizer and commander of the First United States volunteer cavalry, but more popularly known as "Roosevelt's Rough Riders."

Theodore Roosevelt won for himself the grand distinction of being one of the most intrepid heroes of the Hispano-American war, and his unexcelled bravery at the storming of San Juan hill, where his horse was shot from under him, will always be recited as a glorious instance of the bravery of the true American.

He was born in New York city on October 27, 1858, and comes from a family that for generations has been noted for its wealth, social position, high intelligence, disinterested public spirit, general usefulness and philanthropy.

Theodore Roosevelt is a Knickerbocker of the Knickerbockers, being seventh in descent from Kiliaf Martenssen van Roosevelt, who, with his wife, Janette Samuels-Thomas, emigrated from the Netherlands to New Amsterdam in 1649, and became one of the most prominent and prosperous burghers of that settlement.

At the Republican state convention, September 27, 1898, he was put in nomination by Senator Dewey and was chosen on the first ballot. He defeated his Democratic opponent, Judge Augustus Van Wyck, and was elected by a plurality of about 18,000 votes, and was duly inaugurated at Albany on January 3, 1899, governor of the state of New York.

With such a successful, distinguished and worthy ancestry it is not to be wondered at that Governor Roosevelt has accomplished so much and risen to such lofty heights in national prominence.

From the very dawn of his manhood he seems to have had a purpose in life. Graduating from Harvard college in 1880, after distinguishing himself both as a diligent student and a devoted athlete, he made a tour of Europe, in the course of which he ascended the Matterhorn and Jungfrau, tramped through the country districts of Germany and "roughed it," thereby gaining much knowledge. Hastening back to New York he threw himself with his wonted earnestness in the political campaign then raging. In the fall of 1881 he was elected to the assembly from the Murray Hill district.

In 1886, although leading what was generally regarded as a forlorn hope, he was given the nomination for Republican mayor of New York city, and made a splendid fight for success, but displayed his true soldierly qualities and submitted gracefully when defeated by Abram S. Hewitt, one of the ablest and strongest men the Democrats could have nominated.

This brought Theodore Roosevelt in the full glare of publicity, and his political opponents are free to admit that his entire life and public career have been irreproachably correct, and his stands before the world to-day a magnificent American statesman, calm, self-sustained, far-sighted, considerate, brave, masterful, and, above all, God-fearing, with a character without stain and a spotless private life, and under the strongest light his manhood has ever shown resplendent.

Among his admirers was President Harrison, who, in 1889, appointed him a member of the national civil service commission. Although retained in office by the succeeding Democratic administration—that of President Cleveland—he was not in touch with it on large questions, and gladly accepted the call of Mayor Strong to a seat on the board of police commissioners of the city of New York. He was speedily chosen president of this executive police body. Acting on the theory that the duty of the police is to enforce the law, he brought the efficiency of the New York police department to a high standard, and one that has never been equaled, and we are sorry to state, has not since been retained. Theodore Roosevelt's regime as president of the police board of New York city will long be remembered, for the great city of New York received a better service at the hands of this body than has ever fallen to the lot of that city. There were fewer crimes than ever before and greater harmony, and all through the great power and aggressiveness of Theodore Roosevelt.

In 1892 Mr. Roosevelt published his "History of the Naval War of 1812," a work which showed its scholarly author to be admirably equipped for the task of historical delivery and the task of weighing documentary evidence. The work attracted wide attention. It was to tender him the high post of assistant secretary of the navy. Mr. Roosevelt accepted this appointment and entered upon his duties in the summer of 1897. This work, probably, which influenced Secretary Long, of the navy department. His work here was as vigorous and as meritorious as ever. It was Theodore Roosevelt who urged that precautions be made for defense when the war cloud of the Hispano-American strife cast its shadow across the country. He was also mainly instrumental in assisting to map out the plans that Admiral Dewey so successfully and masterfully carried out in the capture of the Philippines, and the name of Theodore Roosevelt will indelibly be linked with that most brilliant episode.

Theodore Roosevelt worked with tireless activity and energy in the navy department, but, when military operations were decided upon, the fighting spirit of this vigorous American forced him, despite all entreaty—even of the executive—to demand active service in the field.

He was accordingly appointed second in command of the First United States Cavalry. Through the magic of his personality the dare-devil riders of the plains, his old friends the cowboys, and the educated athletes of the east, flocked to enlist, and as a result this famous regiment was composed of men who, like Roosevelt, possessed courage that was indomitable. Theodore Roosevelt never asked his men to go where he would not lead. He was the first to set foot on Cuban soil of his whole command. He won his spurs for his dauntless courage on San Juan hill, and was promoted to colonel of this famous organization, and won a perfect halo of glory for his conduct throughout the entire Santiago campaign.

At the Republican state convention, September 27, 1898, he was put in nomination by Senator Dewey and was chosen on the first ballot. He defeated his Democratic opponent, Judge Augustus Van Wyck, and was elected by a plurality of about 18,000 votes, and was duly inaugurated at Albany on January 3, 1899, governor of the state of New York.

Retain Will Seek New Fields. Special Dispatch to the Intelligencer. PARKERSBURG, W. Va., June 22.—The sensational and bitter discussion, which for a year has prevailed among the members of the Baptist church here, and which threatens to disrupt the congregation, resulted to-day in the announcement that on Sunday next Rev. F. S. Retan would tender his resignation as pastor to take effect July 1, and would accept a charge at Bristol, Tenn. It is alleged that Mr. Retan and his peculiar rules and regulations have been the cause for the trouble and that under a new pastor the church will again become united.

At a meeting of the alumni of the university this morning, Judge M. H. Dent, of the supreme court of appeals, was elected president of the alumni association, and Waitman T. W. Barbe, secretary. A reunion and banquet for next year were planned for. An order was passed by the board of regents this morning electing Major J. M. Burns, of the United States army, commandant of cadets at the university, to succeed Captain J. A. Lockwood.

FAKE STORY Published Relative to Judge Tavenner's Candidacy for Congress. Special Dispatch to the Intelligencer. PARKERSBURG, W. Va., June 22.—The Register story from Huntington, alleging that H. S. Wilson and Creed Collins are to withdraw from the race for the Democratic congressional nomination in this district in favor of Judge Tavenner, is hoisted at here. Judge Tavenner is at his summer place and cannot be reached to-day, and Mr. Wilson is in the interior of the district making a canvass. Mr. Collins, who was in the city to-day, said: "I am not going to withdraw, I have the nomination now."

He added that he would bet $1,000 that Tavenner would not be nominated and $500 that he would not even be in the convention. Mr. Wilson's friends assert that Mr. Wilson will not withdraw under any circumstances, and claim the story is a fake.

Divine Cures

Tongaline relieves pain quickly. The pain of rheumatism, gout, neuralgia and similar diseases is acute and often terrible. The first step toward a cure is to remove this agony. Two or three doses of Tongaline in quick succession take away the pain. But Tongaline does not stop there as ordinary lozenges and liniments do. It deals with the poisons which cause the disease, and whether they be uric acid, sodium urate, or disease germs, Tongaline causes them to be expelled from the body by the simultaneous action of the liver, kidneys, bowels and skin.

To find relief from their agony many unfortunates have been driven to use opium or morphine. Tongaline contains neither opium or morphine. For the relief of severe headache it is far superior to the innumerable combinations of acetanilid sold as "headache cures."

There is no mystery about Tongaline. The label on the bottle tells you what it contains. If you understand its action or pharmacy you will understand on what a sure foundation it is constructed. There are 64 doses in a bottle of Tongaline, costing $1.00. You can get it from your druggist.

Divine Cures

Tongaline is a result of the highest discoveries in pharmaceutical science. For twenty years it has cured the diseases for which it is specific. It has received the highest endorsement from physicians. It has proved a blessing in the hands of sufferers themselves. It is harmless in its nature, sure in its action, and its use is followed by no unpleasant or dangerous results such as followed many of the treatments prescribed for rheumatism.

Take Tongaline as a preventive on the first indication of rheumatic pains, rheumatic fever, neuralgic pains or headache. It will prevent the threatened attack and remove the poisons from the system before the disease becomes chronic and stubborn. The ingredients of Tongaline act harmoniously on all the organs of elimination, the kidneys, liver, bowels and skin, so that the whole body is regenerated and purified.
