

WAS BOURKE'S VOCAL ORGAN CRACKED?

Or Was He Disinclined to Face Music in a Town Where He Had Talked the

REAL DEMOCRATIC DOCTRINE

Four Years Ago - A Minnesota Lecturer Comes in the New Yorker's Stead.

Was Bourke Cockran's voice really cracked, thus preventing him from filling his Wheeling engagement last night, or was the cracked voice story a myth to cover up the quacks of conscience that must have been the eloquent and slighty Bourke when he thought of his plight in having to explain away his really convincing conviction of Bryan and Bryanism four years ago, as well as his statement so recently as last February that Bryan and free silver are more dangerous than the alleged imperialism?

The Intelligencer will not go so far as to share in the openly expressed opinion of many Republicans and sundry money Democrats that the cracked voice was really a cracked conscience. Let the veil of charity be drawn - let everybody agree that the cracked voice story is something more than a convenient and harmless piece of campaign fiction, but expressly to relieve the Hon. Bourke Cockran, of New York, from a predicament out of which even his almost matchless eloquence could barely extricate him.

Cockran Flickers.

As related below, there was no intimation that Mr. Cockran would not appear before the audience that comfortably filled the Grand Opera House. All Chairman Handlan appeared upon the stage and read three telegrams, the last of which was received in the afternoon, stating that Mr. Cockran would not fill his Wheeling engagement. In this connection, it is germane to inquire why the Democratic chairman and his associates resorted to the indefensible expedient of wording on Cockran's name and fame to get a big meeting, while knowing that he would not be here? Through an afternoon paper this could have been announced to the public, or at least by a bulletin on the ever-convenient Register window - but nary a bullet appeared, and every man, woman and child that came to the theatre expected to see and hear Cockran. Such campaign methods will not win the Democratic ticket in this county any votes, of that the local managers may get assured. What would the Register have said if, at the last moment something had prevented the coming of Colonel Roosevelt and the Republican committee had failed to inform the public at the very earliest opportunity? The question carries its own answer.

A Lecturer.

In the piece of the eloquent and flighty Cockran, Mr. S. W. Sample, of Minnesota, was introduced as the speaker of the evening. As a rhetorical performance, the gentleman's address was a success, and he brought in much of the fiery stuff that he peddles around the country in towns large and small during the lecturing season, at so much per admission - for Mr. Sample is a lecturer by profession. Whether his appearance on the Democratic stump is the carrying out of a contract at "so much per night," like his lectures, the Intelligencer is not able to state at this time.

The Meeting Opens.

The theatre quickly filled after the first demonstration, and there were frequent cries for "Pendleton" and "John O." which, however, the ex-congressman did not recognize. A few minutes later the parade would end, but the speaker advertised to appear was not in evidence. Chairman Handlan then came to the front and read telegrams in explanation of the absence of Mr. Cockran. The first was from Chairman Miller, of the West Virginia Democratic committee, stating that Cockran would speak here on the 28th; the second from the national committee confirming the announcement, and the third received Friday afternoon from the national committee, stating that owing to Mr. Cockran's voice having broken, he would leave for the east from Cleveland. These announcements were received in dead silence by the audience, which showed signs of dissatisfaction. Concluding, Mr. Handlan said the national committee had sent in Mr. Cockran's stead, Hon. S. W. Sample, of Minnesota, who, he assured his audience, is fully as eloquent a speaker as Cockran. Colonel Robert White was then introduced as chairman of the meeting.

Colonel White.

Colonel White said this was his first political appearance since 1892, and that 'If you send me anything just as good as Ayer's, I shall send it right back. I might afford to experiment with shoe polish, but I can't and won't experiment with the medicine which means sickness or health to me.'

IT IS A PITY SO FEW WOMEN are Entirely Free From Pelvic Catarrh.

Miss Anna Carsten, Clayton, Ill., says: "Your Pe-ru-na did me so much good. I believe I should have been dead by this time had I not used it. I am feeling as well now. I have not taken any medicine for four or five months. I can cheerfully recommend Pe-ru-na to my friends."

Miss Anna Carsten, 672 Scott street, Milwaukee, Wis., says: "I was a most miserable sufferer from falling of the womb, weak ovaries, and leucorrhoea, which caused me to be confined to my bed for a long time, being too weak to bear my own weight, even upon my feet. I was treated by the most reputable physicians in our city. They could do nothing for me. I am most happy to say that in three months after I began taking Pe-ru-na I was well - entirely cured without any appliances or support of any kind."

G. A. Proehl, New Portage, O., writes: "My wife has been sick for about five years. In the first place she doctor called it leucorrhoea and treated it about one year, when it turned to ulceration of the womb; she was then treated for that for two years, when the doctor gave her up. She could not walk for nearly two years. She then tried your Pe-ru-na. She has taken three bottles and it did her more good than any other medicine. A vast multitude of women have this year he would follow the advice of his personal friend, William L. Wilson, and vote for Bryan. He had always been opposed to a protective tariff, he said, and no less so now than before. Continuing, he took up the bugaboo of "imperialism," and worked it for all it was worth, drawing a picture that was calculated to inspire the worst fears in weak minded hearers, but had no terrors for men and women of sense. His announcement that he would vote for Bryan was received with cheers. Concluding, Colonel White introduced as the speaker of the evening, S. W. Sample of Minnesota, at the same time regretting that he could not introduce to this audience the Hon. Bourke Cockran.

Mr. Sample said it was a great embarrassment to him to speak in the place of that matchless orator, Bourke Cockran, but his audience was here to consider great issues rather than personalities. In fact, "interested more in the greatness of living Americans, William Jennings Bryan, than in the greatness of dead ones," he said. "I have read your words, 'Democracy, Death and Destruction,' he accepted the statement and added, 'Yes, destruction of trusts and private monopolies and death to imperialism and militarism.'"

He Was Vigor. "These are the times that try men's souls," said the speaker, and added something about "tyranny like hell" that wasn't exactly appropos, from the audience's point of view.

"The paramount issue, we are told is prosperity, and that imperialism is a Democratic nightmare," said Mr. Sample, and proceeded to hold up to derision the prosperity of the country, especially that of the great western states. The speaker, however, did not speak of the "morning glory" of the Democratic party, and these days in Nebraska, Iowa, Kansas and all the other western states. Figures of speech rather than cold propriety facts and figures were the gentleman's specialty, just as they are in stock in trade of all Democratic stump speakers this year.

Prosperity. The Republican party, he claimed, has had no part in the bringing of prosperity to the people of the United States, which he did not deny exists, surprising to relate. "So far as the production of the wealth upon which government can produce it," said Mr. Sample, and no Republican will deny the truth of this statement. But when it came to the respective merit and demerit of Republican and Democratic policies, Mr. Sample had nothing at all to say. Aside from the issuing of $200,000,000 bonds, he was not aware that the McKinley administration had done anything. That prosperity encouraged the McKinley tariff act, and that other monument to the greatness of the present administration, the gold standard act, were ignored by the speaker, just as so many other ineffectual facts are eliminated from the stuff that is dished out at Democratic mass meetings in this year of grace, 1900.

The Usual Thing. Continuing, Mr. Sample inflicted upon his audience the usual demagogic Democratic excuses for argument that run the gamut from Bryan to Haymond. Trusts, militarism, imperialism and the other "isms" of the party of negation were introduced with all the usual fillis. The audience, however, was sullenly apathetic, and its fast decreasing size was pitifully evident from the stage, where fifty or more vice presidents were seated. All in all, it was decidedly a frost, and the local Democratic leaders are doubtless in the dumps over the failure of Cockran to fill his engagement.
