

THE FIRST OF TWO MURDER TRIALS OPENS

Wednesday at St. Clairsville, Being That of Leonard Stevens, Charged With the

CLARENCE WARRICK MURDER

At Somerton Last April—The Jury Secured, and One Witness is Heard.

The trial of Leonard Stevens, indicted for the murder of Clarence Warrick, the fifteen-year-old boy who was killed at the home of his grandmother, Eleanor Warrick, near Somerton, last April, was commenced in the common pleas court at St. Clairsville, yesterday.

The first man called was Amos G. Boner, a farmer from York township, and he was accepted. Elijah Paucost and Charles Seabright were excused by defendant, and then Homer Reed, farmer, of Somerton, was accepted, as were also D. R. Humphrey and Charles Lynn, both farmers. C. W. Stonebraker was challenged and Elmer Galloway was accepted.

The jury complete is as follows: Amos G. Boner, farmer York township; Homer Reed, farmer, Somerset; D. R. Humphrey, farmer, Flushing; Charles Lynn, farmer, Union; Elmer Galloway, farmer, Warren; John Bethel, farmer, Flushing; Fred Amarine, like supervisor, Pease; George W. Ashton, farmer, Colerain; William J. Harvey, business man, Putney; L. W. Kemp, farmer, Smith; Robert Griffin, farmer, Warren; Alfred Massie, farmer, York.

The case was now ready for trial and Prosecuting Attorney Armstrong made a statement to the jurors, setting forth that there were two counts in the indictment, one charging murder and the other that the murder was committed while a burglary was being committed. He stated that the counsel for the state and defense had agreed that it was but just that the jurors should make up their verdict from the evidence and law as it shall be presented in this case.

There were thirty-three witnesses sworn for the state and the first man called was J. P. Reinhart, a neighbor of the Warricks, who was first at the house after the murder. He gave in detail the condition of the various rooms in the house, showing that every room had been ransacked, and then described the condition of the people he found there and identified a piece of tar twine, with which the women's feet were tied; the dead boy's position, and his own movements and examinations that morning.

Among the West Virginians at the Moore yesterday were Nell J. Fortney of Kingwood; Mrs. O. W. Koen and daughter, Miss D. L. Koen, of Mannington; Mrs. A. D. Watson, of Fairmont; L. C. Shaffer and J. A. Lenhart, of Kingwood.

women in the Warrick home were tied with the twine used in tying up bundles of lath, the peculiar knot being made by a machine, and this peculiar knot is still on the twine the murderers used. They will also show that both Stevens and Divine were in Somerton the night of the murder and various other incidents that seem to connect them with the crime charged.

To Prove an Alibi. On the other hand, the defense expects to prove an alibi, and one of the points they will try to make is an alleged expression of the murdered boy before he was shot—"I know you!"—to the burglars, when the fact is Stevens and Divine were both strangers in that neighborhood and the boy did not know them. The defense will claim the crime was committed by persons known to the boy and that he did not know the accused. They will also attempt to prove where Stevens was the night of the murder.

SOCIETY

One of the most brilliant audiences ever seen at the Opera House was attracted to that theatre last evening by the Princeton University Glee, Banjo and Mandolin Clubs. Society en masse was in attendance, among whom were a number of the alumni of the university, making it an event in the foremost rank of social functions of the season. The numbers played and sung were meritorious, and on the whole those present witnessed the richest treat of the kind ever given in the city. Nearly all the selections were enthusiastically encored, and were it not for the fact that some of the clubs refused to respond when prolonged applause followed their efforts, all would have responded a second and some a third time.

The theatre was well filled, and the mere statement that the programme was hugely enjoyed would be a too mild expression of the audience's appreciation of the merits of the performance. The glee club, under the leadership of Oliver Kingsley Badgley, in their efforts presented an exquisite harmony and blending of voices that was pleasing to the utmost on the auricular organs of those present. They displayed consummate ability, and their rendition of popular melodies fairly captivated the audience.

The Programme.

The banjo club, Charles Hamilton Bradley, leader, rendered selections that were highly enjoyed, and which received a lion's share of the plaudits. They showed technique of the highest order, and were compelled to respond to a number of encores. The mandolin club, led by Louis Emery Katzenbach, gave renditions of high merit, which came in for a large share of the applause. They were, by far, the finest band of mandolinists ever heard in the city.

It would be impossible to single out any of the numbers as deserving of especial mention. They were equally well rendered, and to say it was the finest performance of the kind ever given in the city suffices information that the entertainment was a rare treat and thoroughly enjoyed by those present.

The patronesses of the affair were:

- Mrs. J. Nelson Vance, S. S. Bloch, George Adams, Oliver T. Rhodes, John L. Dickey, George K. Wheat, James W. Paxton, Alfred Paull, H. M. Harper, W. A. Wilson, John D. Culbertson, Joseph P. Brady, B. Walker Peterson, Frank J. Hearne, H. Walker Quarrier, G. A. Aechman, Charles Howard, Howard Hazlett, S. W. Starnon, A. F. Husted, Robert C. Dalzell, Harry C. Franzheim, Chas. W. Franzheim, Wm. L. Giessner, J. J. Holloway, W. H. Harrison, Lawrence E. Sands, A. Allen Wheat, N. E. Whitaker, Wilson I. Kelly, Birney Kennard McMechen.

After the performance Mr. W. M. Vance, a graduate of Princeton, feted the members of the clubs, together with about 150 members of Wheeling society, at the Vance residence on Main street. The Opera House orchestra produced exquisite melody for those disposed to dance, and it proved a delightful and notable function. The itinerary of the clubs terminated in this city, and they depart for the college at Princeton to-day.

The function given by a number of young men at the Carroll Club auditorium as a return affair to the young ladies who have entertained them at each a number of times, last evening, takes rank among the most brilliant social events of the season of Wheeling society. The Opera House orchestra produced the melody for the dancers, who glided over the waxen floor in the poetic waltz, the rhythmic two-step and the festive redowa. Until an early hour this morning the merry devotees of Terpsichore tripped it, and reluctantly, even then, departed for their homes. The committee of young men having the affair in charge and to whom the credit is due for its unmeasured success was composed of John Murphy, Bert Welty, Walter Cochran and Gus Wetzel. At midnight the dancers repaired to the dining hall, on the lower floor of the club house, and here partook of an appetizing repast, composed of the most tempting viands of the season, prepared by Caterer Ziegenfelder.

A very enjoyable programme will be rendered at the Arion Hall this evening at 8 o'clock. The entertainment will be for the improvement of the vestry rooms of St. Paul's Church, and each child will take part in the Muden Easy Automatic Wax Works. In this original comedy twenty wax figures participate. They are in charge of a professor, his wife, his mother-in-law and his irrepressible son. Among the visitors who come to view the wonders are court ladies and gentlemen, as well as the denizens from Hogan's Alley. It is unnecessary to state it will be highly humorous.

Miss Mame McCammon will entertain a number of her lady friends this afternoon at her home on Zane street.

The Island Pedro Club will meet and be entertained this evening at the residence of Misses Mary and Grace Nichols, on South Penn street.

The Young People's Class will dance at the Carroll Club auditorium this evening and a large crowd will likely be in attendance. Miss Jessie Schrader will preside at the piano, a fact which insures exquisite melody for the lovers of dancing. At 11 o'clock a luncheon will be partaken of in the dining hall.

Aubrey Dramatic Company.

The Grand was crowded to the doors last night at the occasion of the first presentation in this city of "Sappho." The version used by the Aubrey Dramatic Company is clean and the story is wholesome and interesting. It was presented in an exceptionally pleasing manner, and the audience was delighted. In deference to the wishes of many patrons of the theatre, the management has decided to repeat "Sappho" Friday night. This afternoon the company will present a society melodrama entitled "A Strange Marriage," and to-night an elaborate scenic production, "Faust," will be given.

An alarm from box 51, at 6:30 o'clock last night, summoned the fire department to Alley C below Twenty-sixth street, where fire was discovered in a wash house in the rear of the residence of Mrs. Matthews, caused by a defective flue. POLITICS

The Republican city committee met last night and organized for the ensuing campaign. All the members were present, as follows: First ward—Jacob Snyder, Second ward—Fred Meyer, Third ward—Will H. Cassell, Fourth ward—Charles F. Meder, Fifth ward—W. H. Bukey, Sixth ward—Charles A. Helmbright, Seventh ward—William Schenerein, Eighth ward—Frank Edele.

For the chairmanship of the committee, Jacob Snyder, of the First ward, was chosen unanimously. Mr. Helmbright declining the honor. The latter, however, accepted the secretaryship, and Fred Meyer was made treasurer. These selections are excellent, and indicate that an aggressive campaign will be waged during the ensuing month.

Sheriff-elect Will W. Irwin yesterday made public three of his appointments, as follows: Jailor—Charles Dailer, of Washington district; Night jailor—Ernest Kreiger, of Triadelphia district.

Office deputy—Fred H. Thiers, of Madison district. There was a lively scramble for these Democratic official plums, the first that have been distributed at the court house for several years, and while the appointments are considered good selections upon the part of the incoming sheriff, there is endless wailing and gnashing of molars on the part of the disappointed ones.

Chief of Police Clemans is in receipt of a number of letters of congratulation upon his renomination at the late Republican primary election. One letter comes from a public official over the river, who says Wheeling has the finest lot of "cops" in the country.

There will be municipal elections in many West Virginia towns and villages on Thursday, January 3, among others at Pleasant Valley, Wheeling's smart suburb. Although there is but one Democratic voter in the town, his fellow Republican townsmen have for the fifth time placed him in nomination for the lucrative(?) office of mayor, and he will go through without opposition for town recorder. There are five councilmen to be elected, and ten nominations have been made, as follows: George Adams, S. S. Bloch, W. D. Johnson, S. P. Norton, Charles F. Paxton, John Helstern, W. B. Simpson, George M. Snook, B. K. McMechen, J. C. Brady.

The voting place is on Sycamore street, in the rear of the Rentsch residence, and the hours from 2 to 6 p. m.

The "Committee of One Hundred" will meet to-night at the Hub building. It is said that the committee will go carefully over the nominations by the Republicans and Democrats, and make endorsements of men on both tickets.
