The following is the letter to which allusion is made on our second page. We think that we are in the hands of such long time before we again have an opporall promise to drop you a line; so if a rather corpulent budget comes to hand, (provided it is not kidnapped in the meantime,) don't be frightened. You see by the the date of my letter that we have moved—iamily, house, servants, and all—into Yankee land. We are only about a thousand miles farther from you than when we fixed in Huatsville. It is not quite so easy to receive letters from one's friends, nor to send any off to them. Indeed, the portion of the United States which we live in now is decidedly one of the most out of the way places I have seen. Although the cars seem to fun regularly, there is never a breath of news to gindien our hearts; no mail, and no passeagers but soldiers! The propile here don't allow a seal to travel on the cars but soldiers. I declare I have on the seems newspaper for two weeks, and expect if I were to see lost you I should regard it as a supernatural appearance, and be frightened to death.

The itev. Mr. ______ is here, and preaches for us every Sunday; but he is not so partial to the President of the Confederate States that he cannot leave him out of his prayers when necessary. He gets along very peaceably with the people. Last Sun day he prayed that the Lord would look upon us in mercy as we then stood before olitical enemies. The church was half filled with officers and high privates. all bedizzened out in blue broad cloth and gold lace and tassels, brass buttons and black feathers—strange to say, looking as calm and collected, after their agitated performsnees of the past week, as a pan of buttermilk. You'should see them us they troop past the gate sometimes, on horseback, forty or fifty of them together, with their murderous looking spurs attached to their heels, great long swords encased in brass and daugling with terrific clamor against the honess suites, wide teathern gir-dle, with innumerable dirks, pistols and bowie knives attached thereunto, they in like manner clashing against each other with unmirigated fory—all of which, with the ciattering of the horses' hoofs "apon the stony street," serve to produce an ef-fect so horribly frightful that our faces are fever-blanched with terror, and we instinctively pall oursun-bounets over-ourfaces and stop our ears with our fingers, that we may saut out as much as possible the terrifying and humiliating poise. And they are truly a brave set and look so much like conquerors. Napoleon himself could not have borne his "blashing honors" more gracefully than do these victorious Yankees! And, in truth, they have reason to look like victors; for they have reason to look like victors; for did they not perform the unparalleled ex-ploit of taking the city of Huntaville, with accounts of which all the Northern papers the most imperetrable brick houses, daring women, undaunted children and furious buildogs, the whole surrounded by a natural passaget of carth, stones and glant trees, impervious alike to shell, ball or sword! And yet through all of this (the completion of which, I must add, has oc-cupied the citizens of Huntsville thirty years) these wonderful conquerors have made their way, and are now in possession of this "modern thintaltar." I will, however, say, for the edification of such as may have but Triends or relatives concerned in this affair, that not a drop of blood was spilt; the trees, finding they were overpowered by numbers, gave way and allowed the enemy to pass unbarried. powered by numbers, gave way and allowed the enemy to pass unharmed; the stones, in like manner, retreated from "Camp Sinai" and took up a more desirable position near "Fort Retreat," which lies near the base of the mountain; the darling women retired to their casiles, whist compromise was entered into by the furious buildogs and ordennied children, and a temporary armistics decided upon—the enemy, meanwhile, walking in and nitch. enemy, meanwhile, walking in and pitching their tents. I cannot but think, when I look upon them, crowned with their fresholy won faurels, of the Irishman, who, walk log up to a dead man on the battle field, bidly ont off his head and held it up in triumph, and had much ado to persuade himself that it was in reality he, Pat, who had performed the wonderful feat!

The enough have since their arrival in the place, proceeded to lay waste all the plantations within their jurisdiction. That third morning after their advent, they marched, well armed and equipped to Gen.

the capturing all the corn and bacon on the place (comprising thirty or forty wagon loads,) and also taking prisoners eighteen or twenty wild and spirited horses and des, who delended the place and themselves as well as could have been expected, and made all the resistance in their power. On another occasion a party of them went, to Geo. C. P.—'s dwelling house, when the family were all absent, and took possession of all the deguerreotypes, jewelly and namerous other little trinkets and toys upon the stegere. _____'s house shared the same fate, the "sentinel" being off guard, A cavalry company laid siege to Major C's 'sortifications" and took a large amount of ammunition in the shape of preserves and pickels. Maj. C's fine regiment of feather beds and mattresses were com-plately cut to pieces in the affray; and never did a nobler set of fellows perish; many a silect tear will be dropped in trig ulation to their memory, as the story of their noble resistance and ignominious death is read. Oh! what have not these villains to answer for? They say they are determined to set fire to this noble struc-ture before they leave, and have also deci-ded by council of war, that Sanato deciture before they leave, and have also decided, by council of war, that Senator C's

Mr. B. reached this place from Corinth some four or five days since, but having heard that the people in this place were inlimited to the President of the C. Prof. Wo, the gasnt hero of the College, also came to hand from Corinth, College, siso came to hand from Corioth, having walked nearly the whole of the way, and being eight er ten days on the road. The enemy took him into custody as soon as he arrived, and tried to force him to disclose something relative to the position of our army, but as the gentleman in quastion swore he would disclose nothing. and that no threat nor bribe on their part could induce him to change his determination, he was therefore sentenced to be transported to the camp, with percuptory orders that he should be strictly guarded

YANKESVILLE, April 22, 1862.

My Dear Sixter:—As it may be a very bed, I always commit my helpless self to bed, I always commit my helpless self to Him who has promised to his chosen that "not a hair of their heads should perial," and such trust have I in these promise that I have no fear, even though death should be my foe. Sometimes when I wake up in the morning I am so surprised to see myself still safe, and that the shells have not yet driven me to the Nits, that I say to myself in the most thankful and cherry way possible, good morning, my dear, I'm glad to see you're still here. I miss dear little Huutsville so much,

I miss dear little Huofaville so much, and often think of the pleasant country walks we used to take, and the happy times we used to have singing on the porch every night; but here the streets are so guarded that fone dare not go beyond the dwelling houses, and as for auging in concert the city is too full of Yankeedoodles ever to attempt such a thing. Oh! our own dear soldiers, how I long to see them again in our midst; although I have no near kindred in the war. I fael, now that I am separated from them, that each one is am separated from them, that each one is dear to me as a brother. All our girls are groud and brave, and uever lose hops. They give uo quarter to the Yankees, and, as one of them remarked, he hadn't seen a woman smile since he has been in H., for bow can we smile and be gay in their presence, when "our hearts are with Char-ley over the water?" We had three hundred Confederate prisoners in town for about two weeks, and every morning and evening the ladies used to visit them and cheer them up, and take care of the sick ones, and carried them all the food they ate. We used to make biscuit and warm corn bread for them every day, and so did everybody else. The Yankees gave Mrs. B. flour meal and meat to cook for them.— Day before yesterday they left in wagons towards O., and we hear to-day that our troops have taken them all back again, troops have taken them all back again, but don't knew how true it is. Every day troops are retreating from C., towards Stev., under pretence of a battle expected there, but in my opinion they are getting away from our forces. Sometimes there are not more than 500 troops in towa, and we hope that they will soon leave. I do want to get back into the S. C so badly, if you see any of my solding. so hadly, if you see any of my soldies friends up your way, please ask some of them to come and escort us back. We cannot return without protection. There is a large party of girls here who came with me, and who will join us. Our political cance has run aground, and the non-secession waves are so high, that it would be actually dangerous for a party of females to brave them without some trusty arm to guide the vesser's prow. I wish I could see you all. We ought not to be separated.— Kiss my brother and take good care of him men are so precious these war times, and my best love and a kiss for your dear siste and the little ones and mother. We think of you all the time. Direct your letters to Yankeeville, U. S., until you hear further. I do not expect to be in H. before the last part of next month. Buenos noches. YOUR LIVING SISTER
