Is another column of this morning's paper will be found some resolutions passed by a meeting held in West Liberty township, one of which instructs the Board of Supervisors to vote at the Court House to-day for a bounty of six hundred dollars to volunteers under the late call of the President of the United States, instead of voting to confirm the sum offered last Monday by the Board. This six hundred dollar instruction is of course an extreme figure, and one which we presume neither the West Liberty member nor the other members of the Board will feel themselves seriously called upon to entertain. There is no necessity why they should entertain it, simply for the reason that it is an unnecessary proposition. The resolution, however, serves to show that there is a feeling in the country as well as in the city on this matter of the draft ,and that the people there are not less anxious for its prevention than the people here. It also shows that the plan adopted last Monday by the Board is not considered the best one that could be adopted-in fact not the one that will secure the county from a draft. This opinion of the West Liberty people is supported by the enlistment roll furnished us this morning from the Provost Marshal's office, by which it will be seen that we are making next to no progress at all in the work of filling the quota. At the rate disclosed by the published list it will take us a long time to fill our quota-much longer than the time allowed. It is of no use to speculate as to why this is the case, or to try to show, as probably could be shown, that the offer made by the Board is a very rational and fair one. It is not for non-enlisters to prescribe the terms upon which men willing to volunteer will enroll themselves to the eredit of one county more than another. The recruit takes his choice and decides for himself. If he prefers three hundred dollars down and no monthly installment, to one hundred down with a monthly installment, and there are parties in the market willing to meet his views and contract with him, as there are, we must alter

Added to these, thus divided in opinion, there are others who disagree still more widely as to the propriety of paying bounty to the one hundred and fifty or sixty who enlisted between the let of March and the 1st of between the lst of March and the lst of July last, to whom a bounty was not offered and who did not enlist with an understanding that they were to have any, It is argued that if we are going into the illimitable business of paying bounties under such circumstances that there will be no card of it and that we can just as well so end of it, and that we can just as well go back to the beginning and provide by the same equity for all who are enlisted to the credit of this county since the war commen ced. This, is logic, is called the reductio ad absurdum, and by virtue of such reduction those who argue in the manner indicated propose to show clearly how vain and impossible it is go back and ante-date the whole question of bounties and make such provisions as would accomplish a just sat-

It seems to us that there is a point is

The question is, and it ought to be an easy one to determine from the records, how many such persons did so enlist? This once settled the whole matter is within the bounds of an arrangement. Until it is so settled we are all at sea, and debate withont and and without hope of just decisio

Those to whom we must look for the present. Those to whom we must look for the means wherewith to pay these bounties feel a heattation under the circumstances. It looks to them like plunging inconsiderately into a wast range of expense-an expense that must be met by heavy_taxation-taxation that, superadded to the extraordinary expenses of the times-will be felt when it comes to be paid. They say, however, we are informed, that they are willing to furnish the money to provide a present bounty, about which there is so little division of public sentiment, even though that bounty be three hundred dollars. We are informed to this effect at least. Why not, then, disengage the present entirely from the past and settle one thing at a time? For our part, we should be sorry to think that the county would ever wrong a soldier out of county would ever wrong a soldier out of the fight hotter, if necessary. We had a very pretty little fight yesterday—of little account in comparison with the Army of the Potomac, and the "big things" of the southwest,—but we are satisfied with the result, although we mourn the loss of our gallant dead. The force under McCausland and Bradley Johnson, who were so gloriously defeated at Cumberland by Gen. Kelley, made a rapid march to Romney to escape bis blows. Johnson made the direct march up the New Creek road, while McCausland sent a portion of his force upon Fort Piano, commanding the town. The balance of his men were the town. The balance of his men were sent around the bill to the east end of the place, and about four hundred dismounted and deployed to the West, intending to surround Fort Fuller. The alarm was sudden, but not as complete as the rebels anticipated. Col. Stevenson, of the 154th Regiment O. N. G., assisted by Lieut. Col. J. F. The Rebel Cabinet. Prom the Richmond Sentinel, July 29.

The administration of President Davi has been, so far, eminently successful; and this furnishes prima facie proof that his this furnishes prima face proof that his cabinet has been wisely selected, and properly retained in office. This success, in the absence of specific charges and accusations, accompanied by proofs, is sufficient answer to the war of abusive epithets that has been from time to time, waged against most of the members of the cabinet. It is hard to reply to an argument of mere epithets, and yet these epithets continually induired in by the ignorant, the preisidiced. thets, and yet these epithets continually indulged in by the ignorant, the prejudiced, the malignant and the disloyal, if not replied

Its success would be the success of secession, of the war, of our cause and our country; and a refutation of the ferebodings of evil and prophesies of failure, so freely and continually indulged in by too many of the enemies of the Ad-ministration. It is evidence of their caution and not their regard for truth or character that they have not whispered the charge that they have not whispered the charge of corruption against a single member of the Administration, whilst the Northern press is full, and the Northern Congress daily rings, with such charges applied to the members of Lincoln's cabinet. Our Administration is able and efficient. Its success proves it. It is pure; for its bitterest enemies dare not deny it.

At eight o'clock the enemy retreated, picking up a part of their dead and wounded to the extent of four ambutance and three wagon leads. Onto County and the Draft—The Action of the Board of Supervisors Reviewed.

Editors Intelligencer:

Lecture this Evening.

I wish through your columns to make some comments upon the late action of the Board of Supervisors in reference to the county levy. I do not wish to remark upon them censoriously, but in a spirit of

The levying of a bounty for the seventy four men who enlisted under the impres-sion that they would receive a county bounty, was simply an act of rigid justice de-manded by every principle of honorable dealing, but in levying a bounty for some two hundred and forty other men who en-listed and received the government bounty without promise or expectation of a counwithout promise or expectation of a county without promise or expectation of a county bounty, however well it may speak for the heads and hearts of the supervisors, was, in my humble judgment, a mistake.

The expressed sentiment of the meeting at the Court House was in favor of levying a hourty to pay the seventy four men into just in the edge of the town, and the conductor was wounded in the leg. The commy outnumbered us, by their own confessions, three to one, and anticipated an easy victory. They came floating their own consensus and brave hearts, and went back with their sacrificed dead and wounded.

Col. Stevenson and Maj. Neil, 154th Regiment, Ohio National Guard, Licut. Col. Hoy, 6th West Virginia Infantry, commanding the Post, Licut. Bagley, Battery L., 1st Illinois Light Artillery, (who did some splendid firing.) Capt. Holmes, Battery H., West Virginia Light Artillery, and Mej. Simpson, 11th Va. Infantry, were particularly conspicuous in the fight and were active at avery point. Lieut. McKensie, of Battery L., came up with the reinforcements from Cumberland, to aid in making the fight hotter, if necessary. Another master, Oapt. Mathews, Oapt. Frank Kelley and others. But the enemy had gone — dishearthned and defeated. It was the present of the provision for paying the volunteers of the country of the action of the Supervisors, while country of the country of the people in offering a bonnty of the bary on the month of the people in offering a bonnty of the people in offering a bonnty of the bary of the bary of the bary of the bonnty of the bary for by the action of the Supervisors, while coupled with a three hundred dollar bounty it would have acted as a great sweepnet and brought in all the men in this and other counties who had the least notion of nlisting. I maintain that the action of the Board was unwise, in that while it did not lay too heavy a tax upon the county, it stretcheless rendered two-thirds of the amount so levied perfectly futile.

The whole arrangement looks like an eld Congressional dodge to kill the main bill by loading it with destructive amendbill by loading it with destructive amend-ments. If such was the design of those who shaped the bounty question before the Supervisors, they failed, and have only rendered the county liable for forty-eight thousand dollars, without making the peo-ple feel that they have received an equiva-lent. The twenty-four thousand dollars levied for the present bounty is useless, nutsely an unless the different townships. ntterly so, unless the different townships, by subscription, raise a sufficient sum to make the bounty paid in hand to their quots of callsted men amount to three hundred dollars and william do and I say, unless, because other countles are giving larger bounties and of course those enlisting will have themselves credited to those counties until their quotas are filled The Supervisors cannot plead that they were actuated by a spirit of economy, because, as already shown, the sum proposed and actually levied in sufficient to have paid three hundred dollars to every man needed under the present call if it had not been burdened with the two hundred dol-

Thus Ohio county, which has heretofore stood up the worthy compeer of her sisters, is to be unjustly stigmstized as having grown cold by andisturbed prosperity, as having refused the widow's mite out of the handred of thousands of dollars, which hundreds of thousands of dollars which the necessities of the government has thrown into her lap, to pay the men who may be willing to insure the centinuance of the quiet she has enjoyed through all this war.
