hope for a day's respite from the pursuit of the vigilant creditor. This being the The House reconvened at 7:30 and after several helfectual efforts to have the milroad bill fixed as the special order for Monday or Saturday the same was proceeded with.

Mr. Marray moved to strike out the provision which required that one of the commissioners should be experienced in railway basiners as a garage large from the blessings which he has received while it is no less his duty to contribute there ever of experience in law and the other sioners should be experienced in railway basiness, one of experience in law and the other a merchant or agriculturalist, and to insert in lieu the lower amendment recommended by the committee, providing that the Commissioners should be selected one each from the lower, middle and upper sections of the State.

Mr. Living stone moved to a mend this amendment by inserting a provision that the Attorney General and the Commissioner of Agriculture expedicio, and one person to be appointed by the Governor, should constitute the Commission and the Governor, should constitute the Commission. the Commission.

This amendment was tabled, after a strong speech by Mr. Livingstone, and Mr. Murray's amendment was adopted.

On motion of Mr. Murray, the amendment of the committee providing that no member of the committee providing that no member. speech by Mr. Livingstone, and Mr. Murray's amendment was altopted.

On motion of Mr. Murray, the amendment of the committee, providing that no member of the General Assembly should be eligible to the appointment of Commissioner during his term as a member, was adopted.

Mr. Wideman moved to discharge the special order. The ayes and noes were demanded by Mr. Shumaker; ayes 48, noes 54.

Mr. Brawley moved to strike out Sections 57, 58, and Ilvof the bill, these being the important parts of it. In support of his motion Mr. Brawley took the floor, and in a speech of great power opposed the whole scheme of the bill as unconstitutional and unwise. The powers granted to the proposed Commission, he argued, were legislative, judical and executive combined. It was proposed to transfer millions of property from the control of its owners to the crpricious will of three men—to delegate to three men, the Legisla ure knew not whom, the most arbitrary at nority that the ing-nuity of language can devise. The proposed Commission he compared to a star thamber tribunal. Abuses had been complained of, but where were the facts? Had the Legislature investigated? Did abuses culst that it could put its fingers on? The newspapers had said that there were abuses; but would this House go to the files of newspapers for the evidence?

A vague idea prevalled that this law worked well here. Had the workings of the law been inquired into? Two newspapers in Georgia said it worked well but it was matural that in newspaper paid thousands a year to publish the schedules required would say it work-

Inquired into? Two newspapers in Georgia said it worked well but it was matural that a newspaper paid thousands a year to publish the schedules required would say it worked well. Had a commission been sent to Georgia to investigate the law there? Who knew that the law worked well in Georgia? He had on his desk the affidaylt of a man at the head of one of the leading corporations in Georgia saying that by the rate fixed by the Commission of that State historial felt eighty thousand short in a year of paying its fixed charges and the interest on its bonded debt. And if the law worked well in Georgia who tould say that is would work well in South Carolina? When before in the history of South Carolina have we gone to Georgia for a law? Ten or twelve years ago the State went to New York for a code of procedure and had ever since been amending it and changing it to soit their own wants and circumstantes.
