Representation and Taxation. A correspondent, whose thoughtful letter was published yesterday, advises that the Constitution of the State be so amended that both stitution of the State be so amended that both stitution of the State be so amended that both stitution of the State be so amended that both stitution of the State be so amended that both stitution of the State be so amended that both stitution of the State be so amended that both the state be so amended that both stitution of the State be so amended that both the state be so amended that both stitution of the State be so amended that both stitution of the State be so amended that both the state be so amended that was published yesterday, advises that the Constitution of the State be so amended that both population and property shall be specifically spepresented in the State Legislature, as was the law in South Carolina from 1808 to 1868. The prime reason for the proposition is the necessity of protecting the proporty-holding class from the raids of those who have luttle or no property, and who pay no taxes.

There is great complaint already in the State on the subject of the incidence of taxation by reason of the inequality of assessment. If facts count for anything in political calculations South Carolina is in danger, as no other State is, of being taxed at will by voters who have luttle or no property will be drawn to day. Mr. McCord came to town last night to be on hand promptly its morning.

The Press and Banner has a form of blank which is intended to meet the difficulties originated will protect the people against this, and nowhere is such protection more necessary, we imagine, than in the upper part of the State. As well as can be judged, the majority of the voting population is to be found in the lower counties. And these counties, by representation in proportion to population alone, can control South Carolina legislation.

We have no doubt that the proposition to amend the Constitution will excite surprise, and it is not unlikely that heedless persons will deride it and even denounce it; but the white people of the State—the property-holding class—need some safeguard, and we know of no better safeguard than that which has been described.—Nevs and Courier may be very nalatable to the "wealthy and intelli-

Cokesbury's Crisis.

The election for the benefit of the Narrow 19th instant. An honored friend of the enterprise in writing a private letter to the editor the matter, and we take the liberty of making an extract from it, which is as follows:

"Abbeville Court House, with its 2,000 population is about the same to a narrow gauge as 4,000 population is to a broad gauge. The road can be built from here to Abbeville for at least one-third the cost of the Columbia and Greenville branch, and I think, as our road is a certainty the people of Abbeville would do well that the people of Abbeville would do well that the people of Abbeville would appear to the people of Abbeville would appear tainty, the people of Abbeville would do well to consider the advisability of this connec-tion. It is only a question of time when we will cross the mountains and reach the grain fields of the West and smoke houses, too, and the inexhaustable coal fields of Tennessee, and the fine timber of the mountains. Why may we not have, with all these advantages, manufactories of wagons, plows, &c., at our city of Greenville, such as they have at South Bend and Louisville. By this route coal can be delivered in Greenville at $2.50 per ton. That will be a large item in manufactories of all kinds. Coal that we now get is loaded on the cars in Tennessee at $1.00 per ton, but it has to come over fower works and the freight is has to come over four roads and the freight is pooled. Besides our road running paralell with the Columbia and Greenville will cheapen all freights to Hodges, and thus benefit the people of all that section along the line of that road.

Inanently deprive us of the full rights of citizenship because they happened to be less fortunate in the possession of this world's goods.

The presumption is that before the law every man in the State is the equal of any other man, and we fail to understand why Charleston should now seek to increase her unjust representation, instead of surrendering the powers which do not of right belong to her. Sach a course as is proposed by the News and Courier furnish the country people with another unmistakable evidence that they should watch Charleston. In the election of members to the Legislature the country people should be sure that they elect Senators and Representatives to represent them and not to pander to the greed of Charleston. The man who can see nothing in this State outside of Charleston, is, in our opinion, no fit person to become a Legislator. Charleston, we believe, would deprive us of our citizenship if she could thereby assumeentire and absolute control of the State.

There is an evident disposition cropping up among some of the up-country demagogues, which we are sorry to see countenanced by some of the up-country demagogues, which we are sorry to see countenanced by some of the up-country perss, to excite sectional prejudice and issue between the up-country. According to Charleston's proposition, if Vanderbilt had been a citizen of South Carolina his wealth, together with the satelites that usually gather around wealth and power, would have secured to him almost an absolute their property was in comparative security; the low-country was overand of the State.

In reply to the stabs made at Charleston and Banner last week and week before, which admits that it is jealous of Charleston for its full representation, we have only to say that we are sorry that such unworthy sentiments should be left, much less expressed, by Brother Wilson.
