Several Skirmishes, and State Military Ordered Out.

Chief Colorow, a noted Ute Indian Chief, recently abandoned his reservation in Colorado, and gathering a band of about eighty followers went on the warpath. The cattlemen and ranch owners were greatly alarmed, and a force of about sixty men under Sheriff Kendall went in pursuit of the Utes. Many of the ranches and exposed residences were abandoned, their occupants fleeing to the nearest towns. A Meeker (Col.) dispatch from the Martin ranch, twenty miles away, and from him obtained the following:

"I left Glen Wood Springs on Sunday morning at twenty minutes past ten o'clock and rode down Grand Elk Crock, striking up the Rifle and going over an old Ute trail to Meeker, where I arrived just seven hours and fifty-five minutes from the time of starting. At Meeker I gave the despatch sent by General West to Commissioner Gregory, who employed Commissioner McNeill to carry the reply. The people of Meeker were very much excited, and the long absence of Kendall caused great anxiety. I remained at Meeker until seven o'clock last night, being undecided as to the best route to take to find Kendall. Senator Eddy came in at seven o'clock from his ranch on Axial Basin and reported that Sheriff Kendall and fourteen men were at Frank Martin's ranch on Milk River, within half a mile of Thornburg battle-field. He said that some of Kendall's men had deserted him.

"As soon as I heard this I immediately saddled my horse and started for Martin's ranch, which is twenty miles northwest of Meeker. I reached there at 10 o'clock and saddled my horse and started for Martin's ranch, which is twenty miles northwest of Meeker. I reached there at 10 o'clock and found Kendal. He was in good spirits and was accompanied by only fourteen men. He said that thirty-five men had left him at Williams' Fork, the day before, and that he had two skirmishes with the Indians, one on Saturday and one on Sunday. The fight on Saturday resulted he The two parties encamped within a couple of miles of each other all night. On Sunday morning the Indians again came up and opened fire. This drew the Sheriff's party out from the hills toward Williams River.

The fight continued for about an hour. One Indian fell from his horse, and Ken-dall thinks it was Eeny, the outlaw son of Colorow. It is certain, however, that one Indian, whoever he was, dropped from his horse dead. He was also said by Alfred Corkel to be Eeny, he having sold Eeny a horse as a racer last summer. The Indians then numbered about sixty, and Kendall's then numbered about sixty, and Kendall's force was about the same number. The Indians were only part of the band, and old Colorow was not with them. They were headed by Eeny. Just after this thirty-five men in the Kendall posse became dissatisfied with his ranagement and left him. The Indians had then drawn off into the hills. Thirty-five men left Kendall's camp and five men left Kendall's camp and went down North Fork. White and Kendall and fourteen men remained in camp. When the thirty-five, headed by Phil Foote, had gone about a m le, Indians fol-lowed them closely and fired at them. They took the Foote outfit for the whole party.
Sheriff Kendall, attracted by shots, gathered his men and rode after them. He closed in behind the Indians and opened fire, and the Utes immediately cut out from pursuit and went under cover in the hills."

went under cover in the hills."

From best information at hand it looks as if the appeal of Colorow to the young bucks at the agencies had been successful, and that he has obtained as many more warriors as he numbered in his original band. This will make his force amount to about two hundred ladions. They are divided into three groups. They are divided into three groups, and will probably occupy a day in getting

In response to despatches Governor Adams ordered out cavalry companies from Denver, Colorado Springs, Canyon City, Leadville and Asher. The orders to all these com-panies were to start for the front at once to assist Sheriff Kendall in serving his civil processs.

Governor Adams telegraphed to General Crook at Omaha that the situation was becoming serious, and he urged that steps be taken by the War Department to protect the settlers. The Governor's dispatch to the General detailed the situation, and stated that the State of Colorado would see that Sheriff Kendall's processes were served.

The Engineer Killed and Many

A Washington (D. C.) dispatch of Wednes day says: Another so-called "accident" on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, within the city limits of Washington, at an early hour this morning, caused the death of one per-son, the probable fatal wounding of two nal tower, a brick structure three stories high, where railroad men are employed to regulate the signals and the switches. When the train turned the sharp curve of the Y, the cars behind the engine flew the track and smashed into the signal tower, and in an instant there was a wreck, which for confusion has seldom here equally in railroad annals. The there was a wreck, which for confusion has seldom been equaled in railroad annals. The engine was dragged from the track, and, ploughing through the dirt and mud a distance of 160 feet, rolled completely over. There it lay, giving forth its steam and hot water in great jets. The steam ploughed up the dirt and covered the house in front of the engine with a fine layer of yellow mud that looked like a fresh coat of paint. The steam and water were blown through the house, and some of the inmates were bally scalded.

Near the engine lay Hamilton Brosius, the engineer, crushed and dying, and his fireman with several bones broken. But behind the engine was a scene of panic and confusion. One car was crushed and nearly buried under the tracks and timbers of the demolished building. Two sleeping coaches and one passenger coach remained on the track. The mail car, the express car, and the baggage car were rolled over and their sides were crushed. The roof of one car protruded from the ruins of the building.

In the signal tower, on the upper floor or observatory. William Baxter, the railroad observatory, William Baxter, the railroad signal man, was at work when the disaster signal man, was at work when the disaster happened. On the ground floor Joseph Healey, a young man employed by the railroad company, was engaged cleaning lamps. Baxter, it appears, realized the impending danger in time. He gave a shout to Healey, and then leaped from the tower to the ground. He broke his arm in the fall and was badly shaken up, but escaped more serious injury. Healey, below, however, was buried in the ruins of the house. When he was disinterred it was found that the timbers had fallen so as to protect him from the tons of brick so as to protect him from the tons of brick and mortar above him. He was badly fright-ened and bruised and blinded by the lime and laster.

The disaster at once created intense excitement. A fire alarm was sounded, which quickly brought the firemen and the police to the scene. Ambulances were hurriedly sent for and a corps of physicians came, summoned from every direction. Firemen, policemen. railroad men and residents went to work with coats off to clear out the debris. Many injured passengers were removed and taken to neighboring houses or drug stores, or to the hospitals. In this way eighteen or twenty people were got out of the wreck, some of them only slightly injured, others with hones broken and bodies badly bruised and cut.

In the last election, when the Liberal-Unionist candidate was successful, the vote was as follows: R. Verlin, Liberal-Unionist, 4,416; J. T. Brunner, Home Ruler, 3,958.

The result of the election is a crushing blow to the Tories, who were confident that they would retain the seat. At their clubs the news was received with consternation. Home Rule clubs and centres were correspondingly elated.

A week ago the London Standard (Tory) said that the issue would be a trial of strength under peculiarly significant circumstances, and pointed out that, though Mr. Brunner was a large local employer, his opponent, who is a son of the Duke of Westminster, was a member of an old Cheshire family that had been seated in the county for centuries and had special claims upon the support of every unionist.

Mr. Brunner, the newly elected member, made an address to the electors of his district. In the course of his remarks he said: "You have won a victory for Mr. Gladstone and for Ireland. The issue between the classes and the masses has been made absolutely clear for the first time. The significance of this message of peace to Ireland it is impossible to overrate."

The citizens of Garfield county are all wrought to the highest point of excitement over the fact that the whole White River country is swarming with Indians, and that an attack by them is imminent in all of the ranches lying away from Meeker.

The first intelligence of the serious turn of affairs was obtained by a correspondent near the Milk River trail, about eight miles above Meeker, where he overtook Dan Van Cleef, the Adjutant General's courier, returning from the Martin ranch, twenty miles away, and from him obtained the following:

Train No. 4, the St. Louis, Chicago, and Cincinnati express from the West, due in Cincinnati express from the West, due in Washington at 6:30, came thundering into the city over the Metropolitan branch at 6:30, and at the curve, nearly a mile away from the "Y," began whistling "down brakes." For some reason the brakes were not put down. The air brakes, it was said, did not work, and the engineer began blowing his distress whistle for the brakemen to put on the regular brakes. Either the brakemen did not heed the signal or it was not given in time to be of use, for the train, flying at a frightful rate, came thundering on toward the sharp curve at the Y. On the south side of the Y, in the little corner made by the intersection of the tracks, was the railroad signal tower, a brick structure three stories outside and in with cut granite masonry laid in regular courses with an excellent mortar of lime and sand. It is surmounted by a parapet or battlement of gray burned brick eighteen or twenty inches thick. The inside of the wall is made of earth and loose stone, well rammed in. Every 200 or 300 yards there is a flanking turret thirty-five or forty feet high, projecting beyond and over-looking the face of the wall in both directions, and near each turret is a stone staircase leading down between the walls to a door opening upon the ground in the rear. The most astonishing thing about it is, however, that it climbs straight up the steepest and most rugged mountain sides, courses along their summits, descends into gorges and ravines, and, rising again, skirts the face of almost inaccessible crags, crosses rivers, valleys and plains in endless succession from one end of the Empire to the other-from the seashore on the Gult of Pe-Chee-Lee to the desert wastes of Turkestan. It is almost impossible to conceive of its capture except through treachery or gross neglect on the part of those whose duty it should be to defend it. It is laid out in total defiance of the rules of military engineering, and yet the walls are so solid and inaccessible, and the gates so well arranged and defended, that it would puzzle a modern army with a first-class siege train to get through it, if any effort whatever were made for its defense,"-New York Observer.
