IN LIGHT AND BEAUTY.

Charming Visitors Swing the Social Circle.

Misses Sarah Leconte Davis, Florence Louise Powell, Elmina Eason and Mr. William Goss, who have been with Miss Blanche Gary for a week, have been enjoying a perfect round of entertainment. The attractive personality of these charming visitors has made many friends and admirers of them, not only among the young people of the city, but among those who are a little further along life's way.

RECEPTION BY MISS BLANCHE GARY.

On the evening of the arrival of these young people, Miss Blanche Gary gave them a reception, "For beauty and taste in decoration, and for pleasant features this entertainment, which was lighted by electric light, had an additional pretty effect, given by brass candelabra with pink shades placed at frequent intervals, and decorated in ferns, palms and pink roses. The piazza, where punch was served by Miss Eliza Gary, was lighted with Japanese lanterns. The guests at this ladies' affair were Misses Enoch and a more pleasant party of handsome young men and beautiful young ladies would be hard to imagine.

After the game delightful refreshments of cream, cake and mince were served.

The prizes were a dainty white gauze fan and a pack of cards in a handsome leather case, and were won respectively by Miss Edith McFall and Mr. W. H. White.

MRS. FRANK B. GARY ENTERTAINS.

Mr. Frank B. Gary entertained at cards in honor of Miss Blanche Gary's guests, on Wednesday evening.

The elegant home of Mrs. Gary stood out in beauty and splendor in the electric light which enveloped it on all sides, and radiated from every opening.

Punch was served by Miss Caroline Gary from a table in the hall decorated with roses and lighted with handsome brass candelabra.

The guests sat at five tables where they were most pleasantly engaged in the all-absorbing game, "bridge," for several hours.

Delicious refreshments of cream and cake were served, after which prizes were awarded to Miss Sarah Lee and Mr. Albert Henry.

The entertainment was pleasant in every feature.

MISS MAUDE M'CLUNG ENTERTAINS.

Another delightful bridge party complimentary to the Misses Davis, Eason and Powell was given on Thursday evening by Miss Maude McClung.

After an exciting contest the prizes were awarded to Miss Maude McClung, who received a set of gold beauty pins, and Mr. Albert Henry a pack of Congress cards.

During the evening a delicious salad course was served.

Those enjoying Miss McClung's hospitality were: Misses Davis of Columbia, Miss Eason of Abbeville, Miss Blanche Gary, Charlotte Powell of Aiken, Blanche Gary, Edith McFall, of Charleston, Mary and Fannie Stark, Sara Lee, Messrs. Will White, Joel Moore, Albert Henry, Bradley Reese, Will Barnwell, Dr. Nickles, Less Smith, Dr. Miner of Aiken.

MRS. W. W. BRADLEY ENTERTAINS.

In honor of Miss Blanche Gary's guests, Miss Florence Powell, Miss Sallie Davis and Miss Eliza Eason, the home of Mrs. W. W. Bradley was thrown open to a party of young people of the city.

The house was tastefully decorated in pink and green. Soft drinks were served in the dining room by Miss Maude McClung and Miss Eliza Gary.

Miss Fannie Stark and Miss Maude McClung sang a beautiful duet, and Miss Florence Powell rendered one of her best selections on the piano. It is not extravagant to say that there are not sweeter voices in the State than these young ladies are blessed with; and Miss Powell as a pianist is simply a wonder. The people of Columbia, in which city she received her musical education, give her first place among all those who have graduated in that city.

After listening to the lovely music, the young people went out on the beautiful front lawn. A large maple tree on the lawn had been hung with Japanese lanterns and under this a party of twenty young men and ladies joined in games of bridge.

The game closed at 12 o'clock; Miss Maude McClung and Mr. Will White winning the first prize, while Miss Blanche Gary fell to the consolation.

Refreshments consisting of a salad course and ices were served.

Mr. E. to Miss Mrs. J. F. Bradley and Miss Katherine Kline assisted Mrs. Bradley in welcoming her guests.

The visit of these young ladies will be long remembered as a pleasant occasion in Abbeville.
