

Miscellaneous.

From the New Orleans Tropic. The melancholy fate of this young man has excited a very great degree of interest in this community and we are sure that any thing relating to his untimely death will be read with avidity.

South-Carolina Iron.—This Iron for adhesion, strength and malleability, is thought to be superior to any iron, foreign or domestic.

The Times.—The almost universal embarrassment under which the country now labours, enjoins upon all the duty of reciprocal forbearance.

Our Patrons.—We return our thanks to those who, by request, came forward and paid up their old scores, and those who are in the habit of coming up to the rack without any request.

During Villain.—We have scarcely ever recorded a more daring piece of villainy than that which occurred on Sunday night last.

Happiness of Pigs.—The following is the conclusion of the learned and philosophical report on swine, by William Lincoln, at the agricultural fair held at Albany, a short time since.

"We took the liberty yesterday of entering our dissent to the recommendation of the Daily Whig, that the Senate of Maryland shall refuse to go into the election of U. S. Senator at the next session.

When we look at the comparative condition of the human race and of the swinish multitude, we may come to the conclusion that if a man will not be a man he had better be a pig.

The Advertiser.

EDGEFIELD C. H. WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 26, 1842.

"We will cling to the Pillars of the Temple of our Liberties, and if it must fall, we will perish amidst the Ruins."

FOR PRESIDENT: JOHN C. CALHOUN. Not subject to the action of any Convention. FOR GOVERNOR: Gen. JAMES H. HAMMOND.

FOR U. S. SENATOR: Gen. GEORGE McDUFFIE. FOR CONGRESS: Col. WHITEFIELD BROOKS.

The Court of Common Pleas and General Sessions, for this District, after a session of six days, adjourned on Saturday night last, to meet on the fourth Monday in January next.

We are about arranging our accounts, which will occupy our time, no doubt, until after next sale day, when they will be all handed over, for collection, without respect to persons.

The Richmond Whig indirectly states that Mr. Stevenson has been indirectly the appointment of Secretary of State.

ELECTIONS. Georgia.—By the returns published in the Georgia papers, the result of the Congressional Ticket in 89 counties are as follows: Black 33,973; Cobb 34,252; Cooper 31,228; Haralson 33,980; Lamar 34,114; Lumpkin 33,980; Milton 33,844; Stiles 34,076; Chappell 32,565; Gamble 32,786; Habersham 33,004; Kennan 32,385; King 32,387; Spalding 32,135; Wilkes 32,503; Wright 32,704.

The Legislature, so far as heard from, stands thus: in Senate 51 Democrats, and 34 Whigs; in the House 119 Democrats and 76 Whigs.

Ohio.—By the returns received, it appears that the Democrats have completely routed the Whigs, "Horse, Foot and Dragoons," in this their brag State, and that Shannon, the Democratic candidate for Governor, will, no doubt, carry the State, by a majority of about 6000 votes.

The Ohio Statesman says:—"The Democrats will have in the Senate a majority of 8, and in the House 10 certain—18 on joint ballot. Let the worshippers of live coons look upon this, and never again tempt to humbug an honest people."

Pennsylvania.—This State has gone for the Democrats by a large majority, and they will have a majority in both branches of the Legislature, which they have not had before for the last nine years.

The Legislature will be composed in the Senate of 19 Democrats and 14 Whigs, and in the House of Representatives 62 Democrats and 28 Whigs—making a Democratic majority, on joint ballot, of 29 votes.

New Jersey.—The Whigs have carried the Legislature of this State by a majority of 10—last year they had 12. It is impossible for the Democrats to secure the Legislature, on account of the unequal manner in which the representatives are apportioned.

STATE ELECTIONS.

The following comprise, we believe, all the returns for Members of the next Legislature.

CHESTERFIELD DISTRICT. Senator—Gen. W. J. Hanna. Representatives—J. W. Blakely, S. Jackson.

DARLINGTON. Senator—George W. Dargan. Representatives—A. D. Sims, J. D. Willison.

CLARENDON. Senator—L. E. Rlame. Representatives—J. L. Manning, H. J. Smith, J. M. White.

YORK. Representatives—W. C. Black, R. T. Allison, B. Hardin, J. S. Sitgreaves.

CHESTER. Representatives—N. R. Eaves, T. McClure, W. F. Davis.

UNION. Representatives—Dawkins, Gist, Lang and Booker.

LANCASTER. Representatives—J. P. Crockett, B. S. Massey. ANDERSON. Representatives—J. Steel, R. Berris, N. B. Norris, H. Wilson, J. Mullikin.

KERSHAW. Representatives—James P. Dickinson, James Chesnut, jr. LEXINGTON. Representatives—Pani Quattlebaum, Henry Arthur.

NEWBERRY. Representatives—C. B. Griffin, J. H. King, James Graham. MARLBOROUGH. Senator—J. C. David.

Representatives—W. J. Cook, E. P. Ervin. For the Advertiser.

REPORT ON MANURES. In submitting a report on the subject of Manures, the Committee do not flatter themselves with the expectation of being able to offer to the consideration of the Society, much new information, in addition to what may have already been consummated to its members, by means of the various Agricultural publications now being made in every section of this extended Union.

It has been ascertained by scientific analysis, that the earth is composed but of a few elementary substances. Silica, alumina, lime or calcareous matter, constitute its basis, with which are united under various modifications, portions of Magnesia and the Oxides of Metals.

derived from the operation of the laws of nature. Whenever lands that have become worn and impaired in fertility by constant use, are turned out and the cultivation discontinued, a growth of weeds, and briars and bushes soon spring up and cover the entire surface.

urgings its impotence upon the notice of the Society.—Necessity has forced, and is daily forcing the planter to its use, for the purpose of reconstituting his failing lands, and its use has taught and is daily teaching him its great utility.

Various opinions prevail among practical men in regard to the best mode of applying manure. I am persuaded that no general rule can be proscribed, which shall be adopted to all soils and localities. Each planter must determine for himself, having reference to the character of his lands, the condition of the manure, the period of the year when carted to the fields, the comparative convenience and despatch of the different modes of distribution, and various other considerations, which the circumstances of each individual can alone suggest to the mind.

It is in this primitive condition of the earth, there is no organic matter, and it was only after the lapse of years that the growth and subsequent decay of both animal and vegetable substances imparted to the earth this pecuniating ingredient, intended by nature as a rich provision for the nutriment of the whole vegetable kingdom.

Baltimore.—There was an election in this city yesterday for Mayor. Col. Hillen was the Democratic candidate. The Whigs did not think it worth while, the way the elections are going, to start an opposition candidate.

derived from the operation of the laws of nature. Whenever lands that have become worn and impaired in fertility by constant use, are turned out and the cultivation discontinued, a growth of weeds, and briars and bushes soon spring up and cover the entire surface.

It is in this primitive condition of the earth, there is no organic matter, and it was only after the lapse of years that the growth and subsequent decay of both animal and vegetable substances imparted to the earth this pecuniating ingredient, intended by nature as a rich provision for the nutriment of the whole vegetable kingdom.

It is in this primitive condition of the earth, there is no organic matter, and it was only after the lapse of years that the growth and subsequent decay of both animal and vegetable substances imparted to the earth this pecuniating ingredient, intended by nature as a rich provision for the nutriment of the whole vegetable kingdom.

REPUBLICAN OFFICE, half past 9 A. M. Editor of the Globe.—I have the satisfaction of informing you of the re-election of Colonel Hillen for Mayor, over Small, by a majority of 4,483 votes; and also 31 out of 42 members of the City Council.