

THE CROPS.
SOUTH CAROLINA.—The Charleston Mercury of the 14th, says:
A letter from a Planter in Union District, dated September 5, says: "Our crops of cotton will be short, owing to the late frost, and the subsequent wet weather, which caused it to grow rapidly, and since that we have had a drought of five weeks, which continues up to this time, and has caused the plant to throw off more shapes than I have ever before witnessed. The consequence is that we have a large weed, with but little upon it."
A letter from one of the most extensive Planters in Abbeville District, says: "No rain for four weeks. Cotton is badly injured, and I am sure that I am not beyond the mark in stating that there must be a falling off from one-third to one-half in last year's crop from the District of Abbeville."
GEORGIA.—The Central Georgian says: "We hear a great deal of complaint among farmers in this section on account of the gloomy prospect of the cotton crop. The recent drought and the cotton worm, together with the rust, has and will materially injure cotton, to say nothing of its backwardness in the spring. The pea crop also will be short in some parts of the country. There will be, perhaps, an average yield of corn crop."
LOUISIANA.—The St. Francisville Chronicle of the 1st, has the following:
"Since our last issue we have had continued showers. Scarce a day has passed without rain, which has materially delayed the work of cotton picking during the week. There is to-day a decided change in the atmosphere. The air is cool and pleasant, and remains so that autumn is at hand."
TEXAS.—Extract of a letter dated Port Lavaca, Texas, Sept. 1st:
"For three weeks we have had fine weather for the cotton, and with the exception of a few plantations, cut up by the worm. The crop of Western Texas, including Colorado and Caney, will be an average one."
THE SUGAR CROP.—The Plaquemine (La.) Sentinel of the 5th inst. says:
"We have been informed by one of the most extensive planters on the bayou that the yield of their sugar crops this year will be at least equal to that of last. But lower down, on Bayou Cross Tete, the produce this season (although many will doubtless make equally as good crops) must inevitably be less than that of last year, for we are aware of one planter on that bayou who lost his entire crop of cane by the late overflow."
"Taking into consideration the low price of sugar last winter, the loss which has been sustained by many planters on the Mississippi, and the destruction that has lately attended the sugar cane on Red River, we conceive that a rise in sugar, of at least from one to two cents, will be the consequence. There are likewise good reasons for stating, that whatever may be the rise in price, it will be found to be greater at the commencement of the season."
The Iberville (La.) Independent of the 1st inst. says:
"The crops of cane in our parish that we have had an opportunity of seeing, present a very promising appearance at this time, but if the incessant rains continue on for a fortnight more the cane will not mature sufficiently, and in time to make more than half crops. There is not a sufficient crop of corn raised in the parish this season to supply the demand of the parish."
From the Columbia Telegraph.
MR. BENTON'S MOVEMENTS.—The only notice Col. Benton has taken of the letter of Mr. Calhoun is contained in the following passage in a speech delivered in St. Joseph on the 6th of August. He is speaking of an article, which appeared in the Charleston Mercury in 1835. He says: "It is not signed by Mr. Calhoun; for it is not his habit to sign what he writes, or even to write what he intends. He is vicariously on such occasions. When a paw is to go into the fire, he prefers that of any cat or dog to his own. He eschews writing and signing, but I have lately brought him to it. In that Jefferson City Speech I brought him to his milk! and I will churn it for him. (A voice from the crowd: "Let me have a little of the butter.") Yes! but not now. My business now is not with the Calhoun letter of 1835—but with the Calhoun 'Crisis' of 1835."
The St. Louis Republican says:
Col. Benton made a speech to several hundred ladies at St. Joseph. He spoke two hours on the subject of the Railroad to the Pacific. This is a new weapon in political warfare, and may be made to tell on revolving husbands, brothers and lovers.
An "extra" of the Platte Argus, of the 4th instant, says that Col. Benton, after speaking in Platte, City, where he was gloriously defeated, left there "uttering a curse upon every man, woman and child, and affected to fear that his life was in danger." We have received a letter from Platte City, which lets us into the secret. Here is an extract:
"Among other things, Col. Benton said, that every member of the last Legislature who voted for the resolutions of institution, understanding them, committed wilful and corrupt perjury! Mr. Wilkerson, one of our members, who voted for the resolutions was standing within less than ten feet of the Colonel and instantly sang out, 'You are a G-damn'd liar!' The Colonel tried to escape, by saying that he only meant what was understood the resolutions; but that did not seem to set any better on Wilkerson's stomach than what the Colonel first said—he did not seem willing to get out through a 'slip gap.' He made for fools, and again thundered in his face, 'You are a G-damn'd liar, Sir!'"
This language of Mr. Wilkerson may be thought violent. It is so, but Col. Benton provoked it by charging Mr. W. with wilful and corrupt perjury.—Jefferson (Mo.) Metropolitan, 15th.

GEN. TAYLOR AT MERCER, PA.—Gen. Taylor was welcomed with much enthusiasm at Mercer, Pa. and a delegation from Warren, Ohio, was in attendance. Gen. Taylor made a short speech to the multitude, and the Editor of the Trumbull County Whig, who was present, says:
"When Gen. Johnson had concluded, the President and himself were introduced into the Hotel, where they received the congratulations of the people until tea-time. The delegation from this place waited upon the President in form, and were received in the most cordial manner. He had a great many inquiries to make with regard to the industrial pursuits of the Reserve—its dairy farms; its adaptation to agriculture generally; its mineral resources, &c. all of which showed him clearly conversant with the topics introduced."
"The matter of Mr. Giddings and his charge with regard to the President's using his influence in favor of Walker's amendment, came up in the course of conversation. The General said he had been entirely misrepresented by Mr. Giddings in this particular—that the first intimation he had of influencing members of Congress was conveyed to him in the published charge of Mr. Giddings. He had never sent for a single member of Congress for the purpose of conversing with them on this topic; and out of the large number who called upon him after his arrival in Washington, the California question was mentioned but rarely, and then only as the conversation happened to take that turn. He owed to being anxious that California should have some government beside the bowie knife and pistol, but said he had never expressed a preference for the amendment of Mr. Walker over that of any other. He remarked in this connection, that the people of the North need have no apprehension of the further extension of slavery; that the necessity of a third party organization on this score would soon be obviated, with other observations too significant to be misunderstood."
While Mr. Clay was at Newport, (R. I.) his colored servant Levi, was persuaded to leave him and go to Boston. He returned, however, in the course of two or three days. His story, as stated by the "Newport News," is:
"That, having been followed from Saratoga by certain Abolitionists, who made overtures to him to run away, he was finally persuaded to take the step. When he arrived in Boston they paid him $300 and wanted him to go on board a ship that was about sailing for Liverpool. This he did not like, and, fearing as to what might be done with him he paid them back the money, and has returned in penitence to Mr. Clay, who kindly received him. Thus ends this small piece of business on the part of these officious abolitionists, who were actuated by no good motives. The boy states that no colored persons were concerned in the matter."
A DUTCH STORY.—I and prother Unnos and two other tugs was out hunting next week, and we drove nine woodchucks into a stone heap and kill ten out of the nine before they got in.
To the World.
Consumption is a disease which is carrying its victims to the tombs by thousands, without being arrested in its progress by the medicines in common use at the present time. But a brighter day is dawning, and has come—as to successfully arrest this disease. DR. ROGERS' LIVERWORT AND TAR, not only gives immediate relief in COUGHS and COLDS, but from the testimony of men of the highest standing here and elsewhere, it is making some very remarkable cures of CONSUMPTION. Improvements in the treatment of diseases are onward, and nothing can arrest its spirit in the present age.
