

SCHURZ ON THE PRESIDENCY.

Carl Schurz, says the Wilmington Star, has been talking freely about the Republican nomination for President. He is for Sherman against the field. He will oppose Grant if he is nominated. He would not support him. He is against any man who favors Grant. He did not once fancy Sherman, but he knows him better now, and believes him to be the man to succeed Grant.

He does not know that Sherman will be nominated, but he will prevent Grant from being the choice. The Grant men, on the other hand, say that his declination amounts to nothing. The Sen's letter says: "They say that Sherman's candidacy only helps Grant, for the reason that the more candidates there are with some positive strength, the more is the opposition to Grant become, and the result will inevitably be that Grant will be taken as a last resort, just as Hayes had to be taken as a last resort."

Senator Voorhees on the PRESIDENCY. Senator Voorhees is for Hendricks for President. He predicts the certain nomination of the favorite son of Indiana. He says Ewing will be elected in Ohio. He is of the opinion that John Sherman will be the Republican nominee. He says he knows that Grant does not desire the nomination, and is not a candidate. Of Gen. Hancock he has words of high praise. He says: "Hancock and David Davis would make a powerful ticket. The former can carry Peoria and the latter Illinois. Judge Davis is a magnificent man, and he is with us now heart and soul on all the great questions affecting the country."

CONKLING'S CHANCES FOR THE PRESIDENCY. The well informed New York correspondent of the Philadelphia Ledger writes that the Conkling case is a disturbing element in the Presidential campaign. He says that Conkling and Sherman are both to be at the Indiana State Fair. They want Conkling to enter the Ohio canvass, and thus increase his capital stock. The fact of Grant's unwillingness to become a candidate adds to their embarrassment. The correspondent says: "As long as General Grant's candidacy was a possibility, it seemed hardly worth an effort on the part of any one else to place himself in competition with it; but now that there is no such possibility the conditions are materially changed. There is an inducement to go to work now with some chance of success. If Sherman were out of the way, Mr. Conkling's friends believe he could walk over the course."

A Paris correspondent calls attention to the fact, which American ladies seem slow at comprehending, that to be in the fashion now means to be distinctively one's self in dress, and not as heretofore, a copy of some one else. The change makes it possible for all ladies to dress becomingly, which was impossible under the old system. -New York Herald.

DEATH OF GENERAL HOOD. A NOBLE SOUL DEPARTED. Sad Condition of His Children.

NEW ORLEANS, August 30.—General J. B. Hood died at four o'clock this morning. It is believed that his daughter Lydia will not recover. Edith is also very sick.

Sketch of His Career. John Bell Hood was born at Owingsville, Bath County, Ky., June 29, 1813; graduated from the United States Military Academy at West Point and appointed brevet second lieutenant of infantry July, 1838; transferred to the cavalry as second lieutenant 1855, and promoted to be first lieutenant 1858. He was mainly engaged in frontier service in Texas until 1859. He was severely wounded in an encounter with the Lipan and Comanche Indians July 20, 1857, and was on leave of absence in 1860. He resigned his commission April 16, 1861, and entered the Confederate army, serving in every position from first lieutenant to that of commander-in-chief of an army, with the rank of Lieutenant-General. He took part in the Chickasaw campaign, and subsequently fought at the second battle of Manassas, Sharpsburg, and Fredericksburg. At Gettysburg, where he commanded a division of Long street's corps, he lost an arm on the second day of the battle. Rejoining the corps when it was sent to Georgia, he was at the battle of Chickamauga, where he lost a leg and was made a Lieutenant-General. He subsequently commanded a corps in the army of Gen. Jos. E. Johnston, whom he succeeded July, 1864, and was thereafter in command of the Confederate army in its operations against Gen. Sherman. After the evacuation of Atlanta he marched westward and fought the sanguinary battle of Franklin, Tennessee. Soon after, another battle was fought near Nashville, December 15-16, 1864, and a short time after was succeeded by Gen. Dick Taylor. Since the war he has lived in New Orleans, principally engaged in insurance business. Gen. Hood was a brave and able officer, but was not the equal in generalship and executive ability of other Confederate leaders.

THE PALMETTO YEOMAN. Columbia has now a daily evening paper, and a very sprightly and intelligent one. It is called the Palmetto Yeoman, and is published by Mr. C. M. McLanin, formerly owner of the Baptist Herald, and of other papers from time to time. Mr. McLanin is a practical printer of great skill and a newspaper man of wide experience. The Palmetto Yeoman is published at the low price of $4 a year, 40 cents a month; and 10 cents a week.

LET US AWAKE TO THE SUBJECT OF ROAD-WORKING.

Editors of the Edgefield Advertiser: As you are interested in the public roads, and travel over them occasionally in picnic season, perhaps you might like to hear the condition they are in, which I tell you is a very bad one. A reliable gentleman who lives a few miles South of Ninety-Six, said to me it would not hurt a buggy any worse to run it down the steps of a house, than it would to run it over some places in the roads. I have also heard bad reports as to how the roads have been worked in the Mountain Creek section of County. The Commissioners ordered all overseers to warn out their hands and put the public roads in good fix, if it took the full number of days required by law to work them. Have the overseers obeyed the order as to working the roads well? No, not one in ten! The Commissioners ought to make overseers know what it is to obey orders, and overseers ought to make road hands know what orders really mean. If overseers fall to obey orders, the Commissioners ought to, without fear, favor or affection, report them, and have them fined according to law. And just such Commissioners is what Edgefield County ought to have. And then we would begin to have better roads; and when the Commissioners or any other officers fail to do their duty, then it's the people duty to turn them out, and put new ones in their places. There is a great complaint about not having picks and shovels to work the roads with, which I think is a just one. Why don't the Commissioners furnish these; why not levy a tax sufficient to get such tools? Five or ten cents from each taxpayer in the County, I think, would certainly pay for them, and nobody would be hurt. The most of the overseers and hands, I think, have come to the conclusion that it does not matter much whether they work the roads or not. If they only walk over the road, brush it a little, and fling a little dirt in the worst places, it's all right. What is the matter with the people of Edgefield; have they lost all their public spirit and enterprise? There is a song a great many overseers and their hands have been singing for the last ten years. It runs pretty much thus: The overseers, when they meet to work in the spring say, "men, it's too busy a time to do much to the road now; we have too much plowing to do in the house; corn and cotton don't grow in the big roads; but when we lay by our crops, we'll meet again in August, and then we will fix the roads all right." And when they meet to give the road that good August working, they have another song to sing which is "men, the protracted meetings commence on Saturday, and it will take a day or two to fix for them, and when they are over, we will have fodder to pull, so we'll have to give the road a light brushing over again." And oh! how thrillingly the hands sing this song, and clap their hands for joy, and say, "we've got mighty good overseers; what a parcel of clever fellows they are!" And the Commissioners to whom we look to have the roads worked, it seems, have been sitting under the sound of those sweet songs until they have fallen into the same strain, all agreeing and getting a long together well.

Our Democratic Commissioners deserve credit for the economy they have used in building bridges and taking care of the people's money; but what credit they deserve for having the public highways worked, I leave for the people who travel over the roads to judge.

OSERVER. G. VOLGER, OF AUGUSTA.

This is one of the best Liquor and Tobacco houses in the whole South, and has reached its present point of excellence by a strict adherence to sound business principles. Volger's stock is always full, and, being selected with great care, invariably affords satisfaction to those who patronize the house. Read Volger's card in another column, and note his array of domestic and imported Beers. And also the fact that he makes the sale of Mineral Waters a specialty. Of course as regards all staple Wines and Liquors, Volger is emphatically in the front rank. "Price lower than the lowest for cash."

Very soon our planters will begin to ship or haul their cotton to Augusta. And not only cotton, but other produce. And in all that fair city they can find no better man to handle such cotton and produce than Burdell & Wood, corner McIntosh and Reynolds Streets. Commission for selling, 90 cents per bale. Burdell & Wood honor the Advertiser this week with a new card, which we hope none of our planting public will overlook.

CHIMING IN WITH THE CRY OF CHEAP BOOTS AND SHOES. In this week's Advertiser, Mulherin, of Augusta, chimes in with the cry of cheap Boots, Shoes and Hats. And still Mulherin's goods are always of the very best. Mulherin has been in the shoe business for a long time. Indeed he has been located in his present stand for several years. He guarantees satisfaction in price and quality to all customers, and he will always be glad to see the many old Edgefield friends to whom he has for years past sold good boots and shoes. And he would be equally glad to see young people who have not known him before. And if they ever know him, they will cling to him forever. That's what we say. When you go to Augusta, be sure to visit Mulherin, crowned with yards of good deals and honest dealing.

A NEW FIRM OF EDGEFIELD MEN. A new firm of Edgefield men in Augusta—good men and true. We allude to Dr. H. D. Hudson & Mr. G. H. Burton. "Heck" Both of them have been in the grocery business for years; and now they join teams and add the commission or cotton-buying feature to their undertaking. In another column they speak for themselves. We leg for their card special and universal attention. Led Edgefield hand to Edgefield, whether at home or abroad, whether on this side the Savannah or beyond. Hudson & Burton are opposite the Augusta Hotel.

THE HAMPTON GUARDIAN.

Our friend McSweeney, who, for a couple of years, issued so fine and popular a paper at Ninety-Six, now lifts up his useful voice and wields his manly right arm in the low country. The Guardian now comes to us from the new town of Hampton, the capital of the new county, on the Augusta and Port Royal Railroad. And the Guardian of the low country is not a whit behind the Guardian of the up-country, which is saying a great deal. Our heart is with our friend in his new field, and we wish him fair sailing and unbounded success.

THE LAW FOR MURDERERS. "Every departure from the good Bible law of capital punishment has been followed by a fearful increase in the number of murders and of other crimes," and in every State where the death penalty has been abolished there is a growing public sentiment in favor of the re-enactment of the law. There is no safety without it and the prisons are full of those whose hands are red with the blood of their neighbors. In Kentucky "it is urged that it would be better to hang convicts than to imprison them for life," and the Georgia legislature are considering two very important measures—to expedite the trial of murderers and to repeal the "Alston Law," which provided that juries should decide whether a murderer should be confined in the penitentiary or hung. In all the other States where a mistaken humanity has provided for the immunity of the prisoner rather than the safety of society there is a movement to make murder and all the graver crimes punishable by death. It may not be in accord with the merciful tendencies of the age but why rehand the assassins should be treated with more consideration than their poor victims is a question that has never been satisfactorily answered. Of late years there has been entirely too much tenderness for criminals and these efforts to rebuild the gallows are a step in the right direction. The law has been an insufficient protection for society and through corrupt courts, half-hearted prosecutions and money-making executive murder has become a kind of inhuman pastime. If more men were hung there would be fewer murders. Capital punishment has the highest possible endorsement—it is right and proper and effective. No other method has ever filled its place. It is a sickly sentimentality that would make the protection of thieves and cut throats more sacred than the purity and well being of society.—Abbeville Medium.

Is It Possible That a remedy made of such common, simple plants as Hops, Buchu, Mandrake, Dandelion, &c., could do so many such marvelous and wonderful cures as Hop Bitters do? It must be, for when old and young, rich and poor, Pastor and Doctor, have been cured by them, we must believe and doubt no longer. See other column.

A FOUL CRIME COMMITTED! We learn that Alexander Bryce, Jr., who resided nine miles from Wall-halla, in the Northwest portion of the County, was shot and instantly killed on Monday night last. The following are the particulars as we learn them from those who were present at the inquest: On Monday night Bryce was at James E. Cox's, near his own place. About an hour after dark Cox and Bryce started to the house of the latter. On the way, when in about fifty or sixty yards from Bryce's home, they were accosted by two persons, one of whom enquired of Cox who they were. Cox replied, himself and Bryce. One of the men then immediately fired at Bryce. Three shots were fired altogether, two of which would have proved fatal. At the third fire Bryce fell and expired immediately.
