

LOCAL BREVITIES.

Mrs. Jennie Holloway visited her sister, Mrs. W. E. Prescott, last week.

More cotton came into this market last week than during any week of the season.

Mr. James Boykin, of Aiken, visited his grandmother, Mrs. Caroline Abney, in Buncombe last week.

Competition, like Crockett's coon, has to come down. Ramsey & Bland are after it with their low-price gun.

Mr. Hugh Anderson has been added to the constabulary force by Gov. Tillman, and left Edgefield on Saturday last for the haunts of the blind tiger.

Mr. P. B. Whately, living in the Franklin neighborhood, lost his barn containing a large quantity of corn, fodder, etc., by fire last week. No insurance.

Mr. Edgar Reynolds, of the Liberty Hill section, had the misfortune to lose his dwelling house by fire one day last week. There was partial insurance, we believe.

The fearful forest fires showed what a tyrant fire can be when uncontrollable. But in Ramsey & Bland's new cook stoves fire becomes a most beneficent servant.

The planet Mars, which can be seen after dark in the eastern sky, is now nearer to the earth than it has been in seventeen years, or will be for that length of time.

A limited number of extra well fitting buggy and team collars at the purse-fitting figures may be found this week at Ramsey & Bland's.

The plant of happiness cannot thrive without the air of cheerfulness. The growth in your house will be very noticeable, however, if Ramsey & Bland's wall papers are used.

While in Columbia, Lillian Lewis, the actress, interviewed Gov. Tillman for a news letter syndicate which she represents. The interview will doubtless make interesting reading.

An Irishman asked a Scotchman one day why a railroad engine was always called "she." Sandy replied, "Perhaps it's on account of the horrible noise it makes when it tries to whistle."

It takes a rich man to draw a check, a pretty girl to draw attention, a horse to draw a cart, a mosquito to draw the blood, a free lunch to draw the hungry, and the prices on furniture, vehicles of all kind, fine harness and saddles to draw the crowd to Ramsey & Bland's.

The work on the Pace's branch trestle is progressing finely, and Capt. Grenaker thinks it will be completed in about three weeks. The terrors, to the ladies, of the transfer over the trestle on the "push" car, now made necessary by the condition of the road, are greatly lessened by the Captain's kind and careful courtesy and attention.

Last Saturday night as Stephen Yeddell, colored, was going home from the village in his cart he fell out on his head and was instantly killed. He was addicted to inordinate drinking and was at the time in a mandrin condition, so we have been informed. About the same time Stephen's wife, from whom he had separated, lay dying and died that night, and on Sunday they were both buried in Macedonia churchyard.

An esteemed correspondent writes as follows of a recent lecture by Rev. J. B. Traywick: "Rev. J. B. Traywick delivered one day last week a most excellent lecture before the Batesburg Collegiate Institute. His subject was 'Superstition.' There was a large crowd out to hear this lecture, which was instructive and impressive, so much so that when the speaker had finished Prof. Helms, principal of the institute, announced that he hoped to get Rev. Traywick to lecture again on the same subject, which was a very high compliment."

Some miscreants on Friday night last broke into Hammond & Bell's store and took therefrom a lot of groceries, etc., it is not known yet exactly how much. The following negro boys have been lodged in jail charged with the heinous offence: Enoch Simmons, George Penn, Ephraim Harrison, Teague Brooks, and John Harrison. There will be a great deal of this sort of work carried on during this fall and winter, we suspect. The stolen goods were found in the house of Ephraim Harrison, and the amount taken footed up about thirty-three dollars.

"F. B." a valued contributor of Parkville writes of the new dentist of that town: "Let everyone who is troubled with toothache go to the gallery over J. M. Sewell's store at Parkville and have their teeth extracted by Dr. Harley. One young lady openly avows that she pulled her's without pain, and during the filing of seven Mrs. J. M. S. sold a hat, took a measure for a dress, and gave orders for a dinner. A polished gentleman, formerly a resident of Williston, S. C., married the amiable daughter of Dr. J. H. Jennings, of Plum Branch. We hope this interesting family will soon make their home with us."

In a few days the Edgefield dispensary will be removed to the McHugh building, next door to the Farmers Bank.

Price figures a great deal in deciding whether you can or can't buy something desired. You can buy by going to Ramsey & Bland's.

Mrs. G. P. Cobb requests that all her pupils who propose to take lessons on stringed instruments commence on Thursday, the 1st day of November.

The harvest of your grain is over, but your harvest of bargains in rugs, window shades, and house furnishings has just begun at Ramsey & Bland's.

We regret to announce the serious illness of Miss Mamie Addison, of our town. The prayers of many friends ascend daily to the throne of Grace for her recovery.

The man who rides a hobby pays well for his transportation, but the man who rides in a buggy bought of Ramsey & Bland gets over ground for little money.

Owing to the fact that the first Tuesday in November is general election day, a legal holiday, the annual meeting of the County Commissioners has been postponed to the next day, Wednesday, the 7th of November.

It is worth coming from the utmost parts of Edgefield county to reach Ramsey & Bland during the progress of their November sale of Furniture of every description, also wagons, buggies, harness, window shades, rugs, and hardware.

Keep out the cold and rain by using Felt Weather Strips under your doors and windows, and hunt up Milligan's advertisement and find out where you can get them. Milligan holds the fort at 937 Broad Street, Augusta, Ga., he also sells mantels, tiling, grates and iron fencing.

Anderson Branham, colored, rest his soul, before he passed away, use to sing a song the refrain of which was

Times is gittin' hard, Money gittin' scarce, If times don't get no better here, I'm bound to leave this place.

We hope times are better with Anderson, they are no better here.

We give up the most of our first page to the new county government bill, the one adopted at the last session of the Legislature. We would advise our readers to preserve this paper carefully that they may always have a ready reference to the law in case of its adoption by this county. As we understand the matter, the adoption or rejection of this law is left with the County Board of Commissioners. See clause 11.

Seize the golden opportunity of buying hardware at Ramsey & Bland while they are in the spirit of making sacrifices upon their goods.

"Tis said that it is never too late to mend. However, if your buggy is sadly disfigured you can afford a new one at Ramsey & Bland's prices.

No man can tell the farmer what is best for him to do in the present stringency, but he must do something; he must keep a-hooping, there is no doubt about that. Suppose, for a change, that we advise him to sow oats largely this fall, and after oats, peas. Repeat this for three years, and by that time cotton will be higher or lower than it is now and his land will be 50 per cent. better than now, and a hundred per cent better than if he had been planting it in cotton during those years.

To Cure a Bone Felon. Wrap a cloth loosely around the felon leaving the end open. Pour gunpowder in the end and shake down until the end is covered, then keep it wet with camphor. In two hours the pain will be relieved and a perfect cure will follow quickly.

Medical Card.

I WILL resume the practice of medicine in Edgefield and vicinity. Many thanks for past patronage, and I only ask a partial continuance of the same. Can be found in my office from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. My specialties are: Scrofula, complaints peculiar to women, and venereal diseases. I am the oldest physician in the county, though not the oldest man. I have been said by some up-start young M. D. that the oldest physicians are at least fifty years behind the times; per contra, it has been said by philosophers, statesmen, scholars, and gentlemen, from Zsoulapius to Jennings, that "practice makes perfect." I have never forgotten anything in my life, except when I did so on purpose. And, if not, why not? W. D. JENNINGS, M. D. Oct. 23, 1894.

THE Old, Old Past, Though Lost to Sight to Memory Dear.

Mr. Editor: In the hope that the musings and reminiscences of an old man may be acceptable to your numerous readers, this is sent you. In looking back to the thirties we find changes so great and unusual, that the present generation could hardly realize their existence. Our dear old county, I suppose, was named after Edgefield in England (vide Scotts Woodstock) and not as is usually thought from its location on the border of the State, and must have had a goodly sprinkling of Englishmen as settlers. Of course there were other good settlers, notably German and Irish, together with some French, besides numbers from other States of the Union. However that may be, the result has worked well, and we have at present a population that any section should be proud of.

Having been born and raised in the village of Edgefield, I remember the excitement incident to the days of Nullification, when Gen. James Jones was distributing South Carolina State buttons and when every man and boy sported a rosette. Gen. Jones was a lawyer and lived where the family of Cashier Mims now lives. Every man and boy was most zealous and even the women, bless them, sympathized. Our great leader, Calhoun, was a power in the land then and up to his death in 1850; and long may his memory remain with a grateful people. And then the Florida war, when three companies went from Edgefield; namely, The True Blues from the old Seventh Militia or Bloody Regiment, one from Saluda, Capt. David Denny, and one from the Ninth, Capt. Hibler. The Captain of The True Blues was Capt. Jones.

Next, to the Mexican war we sent the Old Ninety Six Boys, Capt. Brooks, and then in our last sad experience, the war between the States, Edgefield as usual, was well represented, losing many gallant souls and gaining much glory, but nothing else. As a forerunner in miniature of the pomp and circumstance of war, we now refer to the gallant militia in the Saluda or 10th Regiment, which met for muster at Richardsonville, Mt. Willing, and Towles; the 9th Regiment which met at Red Hill, Shingler, Lowes, and Spring; the 7th Regiment met and mustered at Old Wells, Pine House, and Cherokee Pond, at all of which places much fun and pleasure was had, and where many a hard battle, fist and skull, was indulged in; when liquor, purer and better than now, was to be had almost without price.

And then our elections, where the longest pole knocked down the persimmon, where each aspirant announced himself and depended on merit or personal popularity, where each candidate entered into a general sweepstake, coming out generally in a good humor, whether defeated or not. Those old times I maintain, were better than the present, more social and good feeling existing, where each man, as a rule, thought and acted for himself, some exceptions of course, as is the case in all rules. In those days it was almost a duty to turn out to salesdays, to musters, and to camp meetings, to the latter where piety and hospitality went hand in hand; where all the good folks mingled, young and old; where much good was done, and where many marriages were arranged, and what harm was done thereby? The good Book says "multiply and replenish the earth," and what better chance could be offered than the camp ground for courting when the zealous preacher, either country or town raised, were men venerated and loved and when our women were more respected I fear than now. We may look around us, and if disposed to be just and fair, we will be compelled to acknowledge the past will not suffer when brought in comparison with the present.

In the olden times the dollar was not the almighty thing that it now is, people then knew almost everybody and in meeting the usual greetings were pleasant and hearty, there was more soul and kindly nature shown. Such things are called "old fog" and "behind the times," but which is most desirable, the good humor and bonhomie of the past or the selfishness of the present? I leave this as a conundrum. Now don't backbite me before my face, and say he is only a disappointed old man, when the truth is the writer is of a good old age, but tries to keep it a green one, and loves his fellow man perhaps more than they deserve, and his fellow woman too, for they deserve it. If these desultory thoughts are not smothered in the waste basket you may again hear from me. THE OLD REGIMÉ.
