NEW RAILROAD.

Proposed Railroad to Connect Greenwood and Augusta. Possibly by Way of Edgefield.

Having the minimum capital stock of $30,000 and a maximum capital of $3,000,000, the Savannah Piedmont & Western railway was commissioned yesterday by the secretary of state. The company proposes to construct a standard gauge railway from the town of North Augusta, to the city of Greenwood, a distance of 60 miles. The petitioners are J. Peyton Clark, S. H. McGhee and Kenneth Baker. Mr. Clark is of New York city. The other petitioners are citizens of Greenwood. The road will use steam or electricity.

The company is given the right under the commission "of constructing a line of railroad from a point on the Savannah river, or at or near the town of North Augusta, in Schult township, in the county of Aiken, state of South Carolina, thence through said Schult township, Langley, Gregg and Shaw townships in said county and state; thence through any or all of the following townships in Edgefield county, to wit, Meriwether, Wise, Pickens, Shaw, Johnston, Elmwood, Blocker, Collins, Colliers and Moss, and through any or all of the following townships in Saluda county, Nos. 4, 5, 6 and 7; and through any or all of the following townships in Greenwood county, to wit, Brooks, Kinards, Fellowship, Ninety-six, Phoenix, Callison, Kirksey and Greenwood."

Recital in Expression by Miss Elizabeth Hollingsworth.

Miss Elizabeth Hollingsworth of South Carolina gave her recital for graduation in Expression at Judson College, Marion, Ala., Monday evening, March 22. Her program was "The Prince Chap" by Edward Peple, the author of "The Littlest Rebel", a very clever and interesting story of London artist life. The hero William Peyton is a young American sculptor from the South and the background of the play has various English characters of great interest, of which the butler Reunion is typical. A beautiful and virtuous model, Mrs. Arrington, in dying, leaves her little daughter to the care of Peyton; she appears at the three ages of five, eight, and eighteen years, in most striking and clever situations. Puckers, who brings coal for the artists and afterwards marries "an artist chap, a 'arry-nort" in a circus, is one of the most laughable characters on the stage; the earl, Princess Alice, and Mr. Helmer add depth to the plot. All these various personages were well presented and acted by Miss Hollingsworth; and her audience listened with marked attention and deep interest. Many offerings of beautiful pansies, roses, and other flowers showed the appreciation of her friends, after admiring the ease, grace, and fine voice and manner with which her piece was rendered. The Judson and her teacher, Miss Mary Hollingsworth, have reason to be proud of her talent and training.

The stage was decorated with ferns, smilax and lovely pink carnations, and the graceful ushers were Misses Adelaide Bell of Prattville and Ena Wessinger of Dallas County, and Messrs. Edward McMillan of Orrville and Gordon Wilder of Marion Institute.

Miss Mildred McMillan of Orrville assisted in the program with three violin numbers of great beauty, with Miss Jeannette Chapman of Jackson at the piano, both these young ladies being Music seniors this year.

State Sunday School Convention.

Newberry is alive with plans for the great convention of State Sunday School workers, which will convene April 20-22. This is the 38th annual convention of the South Carolina Interdenominational Sunday School Association, and it is expected that it will be one of the largest and best in the history of the organization.

The main sessions of the convention will be held in the Lutheran church, of which Rev. E. Fulenwider is pastor. The departmental conference will be held in the Methodist, Baptist, Presbyterian and A. R. P. Churches.

The music of the convention will be under the direction of C. Harold London, of Philadelphia. Mrs. E. B. Setzler, of Newberry, is chairman of the music committee and has a splendid committee associated with her, which will be responsible for the organization of a large choir.

Major T. T. Hyde, of Charleston, President of the Association, will preside at all the main sessions of the convention. Rev. W. H. K. Pendleton, chairman of the State Executive Committee, will preside at the annual meeting of that committee, which will be held on Thursday afternoon, April 20th, at 4:30 o'clock. This meeting will be followed by the annual banquet at which the fifty-four members of the executive committee will be guests.

At the morning sessions of the convention, there will be practical talks on methods of work from leading Sunday School workers and educators. The afternoons will be given over to conferences, and the evening sessions will be inspirational.

The Thursday afternoon session will be one of the most interesting of the whole convention, when Dr. Patterson Wardlaw, of the University of South Carolina, will present "The educational forces of the state helping to provide religious education." It is expected that Bishop W. A. Guerry will make an address on that afternoon, and delegates from all the leading colleges of the state are expected to be present.

A Story Hour for the children of Newberry will be given one afternoon by Mrs. Samuel Burts, of Spartanburg, and a special meeting for a ten-age boys and girls will be held at the same hour by Dick C. Cresham.

Special rates will be granted by the railroads, and Newberry is preparing to entertain the five hundred delegates with the same splendid spirit of hospitality that has made her famous as a Convention City.

Pleasant Occasion.

A large number of friends enjoyed a delightful hour with Mrs. J. W. Stewart on Saturday afternoon when Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Kernaghan were the guests of honor at an afternoon reception.

At five o'clock the many invited friends began to arrive, and were greeted on entrance by Mrs. J. G. Edwards and conducted to the punch bowl by Miss Sallie Dunovant, where they were graciously served by Misses Willie May Hart and Julia Folk.

In the parlor the guests were charmed to see again after the return from their wedding journey Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Kernaghan, and with them in the receiving line, were Mrs. J. W. Stewart, Mrs. Matthews, of Columbia and Miss Rosela Parker.

After pleasant conversation, guests repaired to the dining room, where they were met at the door by little Miss Katherine Stewart who presented to each a golden slipper as an appropriate souvenir of this auspicious occasion. This room was most artistically decorated in narcissus of every variety, the color scheme being yellow.

The refreshments consisted of sliced cream and pound cake with mints and salted almonds.

We have lately received a lot of Men's All-Wool Blue Serges. Suits at $6.00, the kind you pay elsewhere $12.00. We only have a limited quantity of them. So come early and get yours before they are all gone. Rubenstein.

Mrs. Victoria Jane Foley.

Death in sudden form came to Mrs. Victoria Jane Foley, aged 61 years, wife of William J. Foley, a well known Hilltop grocer, she passing away at the family home, No. 1521 High street, Friday morning at 6 o'clock.

Mrs. Foley returned Thursday afternoon on a C. & O. train from a several days' visit to her daughter, Mrs. Henderson Nave in Cincinnati and over-exerted herself in running to catch a street car at Second and Market streets. She suffered a heart attack upon reaching her home. Dr. Oscar Micklethwait was called to attend her, working all night in a vain effort to revive her.

Mrs. Foley was born in Charleston, W. Va., and came to this city with her husband from Cincinnati eight years ago. Besides Mrs. Nave she is survived by two other daughters: Mrs. Mollie Broadwater of this city, and Mrs. Thomas Rice, of Hamlet, N. C. She also leaves a brother and sister Frank Gilbert and Mrs. Bert Wolf of Charleston.

Mrs. Foley was a member of the First Baptist church and a good Christian woman. The remains will be taken to Cincinnati Monday for burial.—Portsmouth, Ohio, Daily Times.

CLEMSON ENCAMPMENT.

Cadet W. D. Ouzts Gives Interesting Description of Encampment of Cadets at Anderson.

My dear Mr. Mims:—If you will allow me some space in your good old paper, I will give you a little description of our encampment at Anderson. We left barracks Monday March 22 at 1 p. m. We intended to leave at 7:30 in the morning, but owing to the unsettled condition of the weather Col. Cummins decided to wait until it looked more favorable. At 1:15 the bugle sounded for forward march, and the three battalions marched off in consecutive order. The corps was 750 strong, and you can imagine what a pretty sight it was to see us marching along with our blanket rolls on our shoulders, and accoutrements on.

Col. required us to march to Sandy springs, and when we got there we could take the train or march the rest of the way as we liked. All marched to Sandy springs in about three hours, and had a ten minutes rest at the end of every hour. Some few marched the rest of the way, but most of us were glad of the opportunity to ride. I think those that marched all the way were sick of their bargain before they reached camp that night, although they made very good time.

The camp was situated in north Anderson about a mile from the courthouse, and called Camp Riggs in honor of the president. All marched from the depot to the camp. The band furnished music while marching through town, this cheering us up on the way to our new quarters.

We arrived at the camp about 5:30, stacked our arms, fixed the straw for our beds, and then got ready for retreat. We had retreat at 6:15 and then we were released until 7:30 to go up town. If we wished. It was very cold Monday night and was especially tough on the sentinels though I think the whole corps suffered from cold that night.

The bugle sounded the next morning at 6:30 for reveille. We had to go out with our arms and have a ten minutes drill. After breakfast Tuesday morning we had to drill for an hour and a half. We were quite stove up from the march on the preceding day.

After we had finished drilling we were released for the rest of the day. Most of the boys remained in camp, and rested until after dinner then went up town. The Palmetto moving picture show had a special vaudeville on for the week which the cadets enjoyed immensely. There were other good movies in town also. Tuesday ended with all of us having a very good time owing to the circumstances.

On Wednesday morning we had reveille and breakfast at the usual time. After breakfast Col. marched the corps out in north Anderson about two and one half miles from the courthouse, where we had maneuvering drills for about two hours, then marched back to camp, and released until four in the afternoon. At four we had to give the town a dress parade. The streets were crowded, and the people cheered us as we passed by, especially the girls. After the parade we were released until 6:30. At that time we were marched back up town to the Anderson theatre where we were given a cordial reception by the ladies.

After seeing five reels of good movies, each battalion went up stairs where they were served with delicious sandwiches and lemonade by some of Anderson's prettiest girls. After the reception every cadet watched his chance to get with one of the pretty girls. And every cadet who was so unlucky as to be without a girl slipped quietly around to the vaudeville. After the reception a dance was given especially for the benefit of the cadets, which many attended and enjoyed immensely. Wednesday ended with every one having had one of the grandest times in his life.

Thursday morning we had to drill for an hour. Col. then released us until three in the afternoon. In the morning we all enjoyed a little fox race, given us by a gentleman who lives about three hun-

Missionary Rally Arranged For Mt. Zion Church.

Last Sunday the 4th of March, was, as Baptists know, the day set apart by the Southern Baptist convention as missionary day. On that day the members of Mt. Zion church decided to try to raise twenty-five dollars for missions within the next five weeks. After a stirring speech by the superintendent, the Sunday school raised thirteen dollars of this amount. It was then decided that the effort of the church would be postponed till the 4th Sunday in April when Rev. P. B. Lanham, the pastor will bring with him some visiting speaker or speakers. There will be an all-day service with dinner on the grounds, and the church will hold a regular missionary rally. It is hoped that there will be a large attendance from the surrounding country, and that the day, in addition to its religious services, may be a social reunion, especially for the scattered membership of the church. Mr. Editor, will not you and Mrs. Mims accept an invitation to be present with us on that day?

Mr. W. J. Gaines, the superintendent of our Sunday school, has accepted an invitation from Rev. P. B. Lanham to address the congregation of Gilgal church, the 2nd Sunday in April on the subject of missions.

Miss Mamie Cheatham with a party of young friends from Trenton attended the school play at Monetta last week.

On last Friday night Miss Mary Gaines gave a box party at her school. Judging by the ready sale of the boxes and the price paid for some of them, one would think that the war depression had not reached this corner. A gratifying sum was raised which will be used for school improvements.

Mrs. Thomas J. Jackson. Relic of the Great Confederate General Dies in Charlotte.

Charlotte, N. C., March 24—Mrs. Mary Anna Jackson, widow of Thomas Jonathan ("Stonewall") Jackson, the famous Confederate general, died at home here early today. She had been ill for many months. An attack of pneumonia three days ago hastened her death. Her granddaughter, Mrs. Randolph Preston, and other relatives were at Mrs. Jackson's bedside when she died. Public buildings, schools and business houses will be closed tomorrow, the day of the funeral. The body will be buried at Lexington, Va., beside that of "Stonewall" Jackson.

Mrs. Jackson was born near this city July 21, 1831, the daughter of the Rev. Robert Hall Morrison, a Presbyterian minister and founder of Davidson college. She attended Salem (N. C.) academy and college, finishing in 1849.

Her marriage took place in July, 1851. Jackson then was a major, serving as instructor in Virginia Military institute at Lexington. She became a close student of military tactics and always took extreme interest in the fortunes of the Confederate armies. After her husband died of wounds in 1863, she wrote a volume of memoirs of his career.

Gen. and Mrs. Jackson had two children, both daughters. One died in infancy and the other married William E. Christian. After her death in 1889 she left a daughter who became the wife of E. R. Preston, a Charlotte attorney, and a son, Thos. Jackson Christian, a lieutenant in the United States cavalry, stationed in the Philippines.

Mrs. Jackson's last days were spent at the old Jackson homestead in this city. She had been ill for many months and suffered a relapse yesterday.

The historical meeting of the Mary Ann Buie chapter was held on Thursday afternoon with Mrs. C. D. Kenny and at this time the birthday of Gen. Wade Hampton and the 19th anniversary of the chapter organization were celebrated the dates coming so close together. The historian, Mrs. O. D. Black told a few points of interest concerning the chapter organization. The movement was really started by Mr. W. D. Allen a gallant confederate soldier of blessed memory and the chapter was organized March 26, 1896 with 15 charter members. Mrs. Harriet Kenny who knew Miss Buie well for she was often in her home, told many interesting things of her, concerning her work for the soldier.

Before going into the program the historian spoke of the death of Mrs. Thomas J. Jackson, the widow of Gen. Stonewall Jackson. The members wore their badge of mourning in tribute to her memory. A chapter catechism was held which strengthened the memory of the members concerning dates, etc. "Personal side of Wade Hampton;" Mrs. J. P. Bean; "Wade Hampton the soldier;" Mrs. M. T. The next D. of C. meeting will be held with Mrs. M. W. Clark on Thursday the 8th, the business and historical being combined. A most delightful tea was the one given on Friday evening by Mrs. F. M. Boyd in compliment to her guest, Miss Bertha Stahn of Chester, and Miss Josephine Mobley. Social affairs held in this lovely home are always characterized with great beauty and enjoyment, and all present spent two most happy hours. Especially attractive was the tea table having no cloth, but hand made place covers and the centerpiece was a large bowl of Roman hyacinths. The place cards were unique maps of Virginia with a star designating a certain spot and each one bore a line of the song "Carry me back to old Virginia," having the wording slightly changed. Each line was read out forming the verse, Miss Mobley being the last "There is where this heart longs to go." The repast was served in several courses upon beautiful china and cut glass. Upon the return to the parlor the remaining time quickly passed in social chat. The Angelina Bacon chapter, children of the Confederacy met with Misses Frances and Bessie Ford Turner on Saturday afternoon there being about 15 present. The
