

Scientist Finds Cure for Hook Worm.

Evidence that is gradually being accumulated by medical men in various parts of the world provides a good basis for the belief that carbon tetrachloride, a cheap and common chemical, is a cure for hookworm in human beings.

The discovery of the efficacy of the drug in removing parasites was made by Dr. Maurice C. Hall, of the United States Department of Agriculture, who tested it on dogs and even tried out its effect on himself.

In the Bogambra prison at Kandy, Ceylon, a country where hookworm is common, this carbon compound was tried on 14 persons with marked success. Among them was a condemned criminal who offered himself as a subject for a thorough test. He was given a maximum dose of 10 cubic centimeters of the drug, which removed 55 hookworms. Twenty-two days later he was executed. A post mortem examination showed that all these parasites had been removed.

The almost universal success thus far gives reason to believe that carbon tetrachloride is far superior to the old remedies, thymol and oil of chenopodium.

The tests made on human beings in various countries, including the large number in Fiji, bear out those made by Dr. Hall. He found that a very small dose, 0.3 of a cubic centimeter to a kilogram of live weight, amounting to less than an ordinary teaspoonful to for a 22-pound dog, was effective, but in one case a dog was given about 20 fluid ounces (nearly a half pint) without evidence of injury to the animal.—Progressive Farmer.

How Much Cottonseed Meal for Cows and Hogs?

We doubt if it is ever advisable to feed a dairy cow more than four pounds of cottonseed meal a day, if the feeding is to be continued for any considerable period. A cow giving 34 pounds of milk a day and on green pasture will probably use as much as 5 pounds of cottonseed meal a day to advantage and without injury, but we think it better to stop at 4 pounds of meal and make up the balance of the ration with some other rich protein feed like peanut meal, linseed meal, gluten feed, etc., if more protein is required. In fact, now that cottonseed meal is rather high priced, we think four pounds a day should be the maximum fed to any cow.

Probably one pound a day is as much cottonseed meal as should ever be fed to a hog. When the quantity is not limited to a pound a day, we would still make up not more than one-fourth of the ration with cottonseed meal. One of cottonseed meal to three parts of corn by weight is often used.—The Progressive Farmer.

To Avoid Overheating Horses.

Heatstroke or overheating is prevented by avoiding hard work in hot weather, unless the animal is in good condition and accustomed to the work and the heat; by avoiding hard work in hot weather with an animal that runs on pasture or is fed new hay, or a large amount of hay of any sort just before being put to hard work; by keeping the skin in good condition, by regular grooming and by keeping the animal in good health by proper care and feeding. If an animal at hard work on hot days does not sweat or if it stops sweating, stop work at once and get the animal in the shade, no matter what the desire to continue the work or movement of the animal may be, and as stated apply ice or cold water to the head and rub the skin of the body. After the animal has cooled off some, then sponge the body with cold water and rub dry. It is also a good practice to wash the whole body and rub it dry once a week in hot weather, especially with an animal that shows tendency to suffer unduly from the heat.—The Progressive Farmer.

A couple of sailors got into a discussion over the kind of animal a heifer was. One sailor claimed that the heifer belonged to the hog family, the other that it was a variety of sheep.

Finally, they called in Boatswain Bot.

"Bill, wot's a heifer—is it a hog or is it a sheep?" they said.

"To tell you the truth, mates, I dunno much about poultry."—London Mail.

The Farmer's Right to a Joyous Existence.

Of course the man on the farm lives more cheaply than the man in town. It is not so easy for the farmer to spend money. There is not a 50-cent moving picture show inviting his purse every night, there is no 50-cent ball game or $1 matinee almost constantly asking the patronage of himself and his family in the afternoon; a thousand other things which are regarded as "necessary expenses of town life are not found in the country.

But if the farmer spends less for these so-called "advantages" of modern life than townspeople spend, is that any reason why he should receive less for his day's work? Rather should he not receive "equal pay for equal work" and be able to use his surplus in developing in the country a compensating and parallel system of "advantages" adapted to the conditions of rural life—public and private libraries, individual and community music, community meeting-places for music, sports, recreation, community drama, etc.?

In short, the public must not assume that all the agencies for social pleasure are the peculiar right and privilege of the town worker, and that therefore no allowance need be made for such expenditures in the country. On the contrary, the farmer must demand and get such wages as will enable him to realize upon the profound declaration which former Secretary of Agriculture David F. Houston once made to the writer:

"The farmer is entitled to a joyous existence."

Among the inalienable rights that our Revolutionary ancestors named as the heritage of every freeman are "life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness." But to what extent, may we ask, has the "pursuit of happiness" been recognized as a right of the American farmer, the farmer's wife, and the farm children? Too often the farmer has been abused because—receiving a decent wage for once in his life during the World War and just after—he indulged in the purchase of a cheap flivver! And even the flivver in his case was two-thirds an agency of business, saving him and his teams much valuable time by its quick trips to market and only one-third an agency of pleasure—whereas the majority of town cars are almost exclusively pleasure cars.

The public must indeed recognize "the farmer's right to a joyous existence" including reasonable recreation, social intermingling, music, play and a vacation once a year.—The Progressive Farmer.

Sweet Potato Market Should be Enlarged.

There are undoubtedly tremendous possibilities in the sweet potato industry in the South. The people of America as a whole are not using much more than one-tenth of the sweet potatoes they should use—and would use if they fully understood how delicious, wholesome, and economical a food the sweet potato is. But if this great development is to be realized, the farmers of the South must make plans for advertising and developing the Northern market instead of merely organizing marketing associations to supply the demand that already exists.

There ought to be a federation of sweet potato curing and marketing associations and a large fund raised for advertising sweet potatoes to Northern customers, just as the growers of raisins, oranges, and prunes have advertised and developed the market for their products. If Southern sweet potato growers are content to organize simply to supply the present national demand, they will soon be wrestling with an unmarketable overproduction. But if they will set out in a really effective way to teach the Northern market the many and varied uses of the sweet potato, just as the raisin growers have taught the use of raisins, then we have only "touched the hem of the garment" of sweet potato possibilities.—Progressive Farmer.

Dr. Wellington Koo, the brilliant young Chinese diplomat, said recently:

"Some men seem to think that we Chinese are a very childlike and very innocent people. They think we all exactly resemble the Pekin merchant of the story.

"According to this story—and it is a gem—a Pekin merchant took a rather notorious foreigner to board with him at the rate of $20 a week. Six months passed, and the rather notorious foreigner had not yet let his host see the color of his money.

"So at the end of six months the Pekin merchant thought the matter over very thoughtfully and reduced the foreigner's board from $20 to $10. He explained that thus, if the foreigner never paid him he would not lose so much money."—Detroit Free Press.

SOUR STOMACH INDIGESTION

Theford's Black-Draught Highly Recommended by a Tennessee Grocer for Troubles Resulting from Torpid Liver.

East Nashville, Tenn.—The efficacy of Theford's Black-Draught, the genuine, herb, liver medicine, is vouched for by Mr. W. N. Parsons, a grocer of this city. "It is without doubt the best liver medicine, and I don't believe I could get along without it. I take it for sour stomach, head ache, bad liver, indigestion, and all other troubles that are the result of a torpid liver.

"I have known and used it for years and can and do highly recommend it to every one. I won't go to bed without it in the house. It will do all it claims to do. I can't say enough for it."

Many other men and women throughout the country have found Black Draught just as Mr. Parsons describes—valuable in regulating the liver to its normal functions, and in cleansing the bowels of impurities.

Theford's Black-Draught liver medicine is the original and only genuine. Accept no imitations or substitutes. Always ask for Theford's. 1785
