THURSDAY, OCT. 15, 1891.

The Synod of South Carolina will meet at Sumter, on Tuesday, the 20th inst.

The Cotton Growers convention will meet in Atlanta on the 29th inst. All who intend to go should note the date as the convention will certainly be held at that time.

Charles Stewart Parnell, the great Irish statesman and political leader, died last Friday after a short illness. He was the greatest advocate of the cause of home rule Ireland ever had.

John Wingate, Esq., assistant U. S. district attorney, died at his home in Greenville, on the 6th inst., after a lingering illness from paralysis. His remains were sent to Charleston for burial.

In the State campaigns now in progress the Alliance men and third party advocates have gone back to their old party and none of these sentiments are heard during the hot struggle that is now going on between the two old parties.

Be sure and read our dictionary offer in another column, Webster's unabridged dictionary is a book that should be in every household, and never before was such a chance offered to secure this standard work as the SENTINEL offers to its readers.

If the reports of Steve Ryan's failure as published are true, his business success again will be a sad commentary on the commercial integrity of his abettors. The merchants of Atlanta in his line, were recklessly robbed by his ruthless course.

Mr. James M. Long, a prominent and well known farmer of Edgefield county, was shot and instantly killed by a negro tenant last Saturday morning. The negro had sold a bale of cotton against the order of the farmer, and when asked about it, shot the landlord. The murder has not been caught.

The review of the business of the South by the mercantile agencies, shows that the outlook was never more promising, and that the Southern business men have good cause to anticipate a splendid season for trade. The rise in the price of our staple product the past week has helped the prospect very much.

The Charleston World has suspended and is not likely to resume publication. On Wednesday, the 7th inst., the last issue was printed. Those who have paid their subscriptions in advance of that date their money will be refunded by sending application to W. G. Harvey, 39 Hayne street, Charleston, S. C.

The campaigns in Ohio and New York are getting interesting. Campbell in Ohio is meeting the attack of the G. O. P. campaign—McKinley—with telling blows, and Cleveland and Hill in New York are bringing all the factions of the Democracy together in solid rank. If Campbell beats McKinley, it is thought that he will be the coming man of the party of the people. The third party is not in it.

Quite a number of newspapers and writers are again advising the farmer to hold his cotton for higher prices. This is a question the farmer should decide for himself. If he is able and his judgment recommends that course, let him hold it; if to the contrary, let him sell, and in the loss or gain in this speculation he will have only himself to condemn or commend. No fine being can tell anything about the price of cotton two months hence.

H. B. Hendricks, the postmaster at Pickens, was out last week inspecting the country postoffices, and swapping experience and observation with the postmasters. He was requested by the great and rich government of the United States to do this gratis and pay his own expenses. If it was necessary to have the work done, the government should pay for it. Working for the public for accommodation is the business of a newspaper alone.

Devises of real estate should always be recorded in the office of mesne conveyance for the county in which the land lies. For the want of a law requiring this to be done, the record of land titles is very imperfect. The law should provide that all will conveying any estate in lands should be governed by the same law of record as deeds and mortgages. Then the system would be uniform and complete, and titles to real estate would not become so obscure and jumbled.

The price of cotton has firmed ahead this fall at a more steady rate than that of any other agricultural product. Wheat has taken spirit, but the market has not been so steady as cotton. If the market holds good for two months, the Southern farmer will be O. K. Though the present price of the staple is low in comparison to that of other days, everything that the producer has to buy is proportionately low, and the difference in the price of the product is counterbalanced.

The short history of South Carolina compiled by John Langdon Weber, school commissioner of Charleston, and published by Ginn & Co., of Boston, is a book that will fill a long felt want for a short, simple and complete school history of the State. The author has divided his treatise into fifty lessons, each treating of a certain period in the State's history, bringing it down to the present year. It is a book that should be introduced into every school in the State, as no where else can the primary student get a true history of South Carolina written so plainly.

GOOD MAIL SERVICE.

Next to good roads and railroads for the improvement and rapid development of a country is a good and thoroughly efficient star route mail service. In this is almost everything else, poor pay, poor service; cheap price, cheap goods. To have anything well done, we must pay well for it. If we buy a first-class article, we must pay a first-class price. Competition in this, as in a great many other things runs down the value of the service more than it does the price. When the time comes for letting mail contracts, our people should remember that the government is as able, as it is willing to give good pay for good work, and no one should send in any cut throat bids. Every bondsman is liable to have to perform the contract of his principal and he should not sign the bond, if he could not afford to do the work for the price.

A LONG SESSION.

It is probable that the coming session of the Legislature will be the longest on record. The passing upon the new codification of our laws will require one month, and it will take a month or six weeks to get through the new business that will be brought before that body. The lecturers of the sub-Alliances in each county have been organized into an advisory committee to put into the hands of the members from each county, bills and acts that the order desired acted upon and passed at this session, which will cause a considerable amount of new business to be brought up. If all this is done the members will see the violets in bloom when they return to the bosom of their family next spring.

A NICE DOCTOR.

The doctor came and felt her pulse, and satisfied himself as to the nature of the disease and put several potions in capsules to be taken at stated intervals, and went his way. The patient gazed the medicine out of the capsules, and stirred in molasses and gulped it down. To a neighbor who came she said: "The doctor is particularly nice with the medicine he gave me. He measured it out put it in little glass boxes with lids." "Ha! ha!" replied the visitor, "he meant for you to swallow the whole thing." "My gracious!" said the patient, "he is a plumb fool, if he thinks I am going to eat glass."

Charleston's Annual Gala Week festivities will open on Monday the 26th inst. The railroads will sell tickets at excursion rates good for the week.

Over seven hundred bales of cotton were sold in Anderson last Friday, at prices ranging from 81 to 82.

FINANCE DEMANDS.

Hon. John G. Ois, the newly elected Alliance congressman from the Fourth Kansas district, has prepared a financial measure for the consideration of the incoming Congress, consisting of nineteen sections and occupying four newspaper columns. It is presented to represent the views of the Alliance party on the money question and is a type of the legislation now demanded by that party in the West. It provides for pennies and nickels, silver and gold coins and the free and unlimited coinage of both, and then $2,000,000,000 of paper money, each bill being absolutely money and not in the form of promise. It provides that "each and every kind of money mentioned in this section shall be interchangeable with cash and shall be a full legal tender for all debts both public and private." It provides further for three treasury funds, the general revenue fund, the real estate and revenue fund and the national food and clothing fund.

PEDDING.

Believing the traffic in intoxicating beverages to be one of the most prolific causes of degradation and ruin to the individual, disorder, pauperism and crime in the Commonwealth; that it is subversive of all law, moral and civil, and should not receive the sanction of law; therefore, we, the undersigned, do hereby enter our solemn protest to the continuance of such traffic by law; and we do hereby earnestly pray the Honorable Senate and House of Representatives of South Carolina to give their earnest consideration to and enact the Bill now pending in the House looking to the prohibition of the liquor traffic in South Carolina. And we shall ever pray.

Petitions headed as above are now being circulated in all the counties of the State by a committee appointed by the Good Templars of the State and are being signed.

Where Part of the Money Goes.

Two men were discussing the mule trade of the county a few days ago. They figured up about $100,000 paid to dealers in this place for mules this year. More than half these mules were sold on time, which added at least one fourth to their value. At Gaffney City, Woodruff and other places $25,000 worth were sold. That is one thing that keeps the farmers down. Then add the flour, the bacon, the molasses, the corn, oats, hay, wheat bran, pearl grits, cabbage, apples, peanuts, whiskey, and the hundred other things that farmers can raise could do without, and see how the farmers are down. They are going to stay down, too, unless they make their supplies at home and learn how to put in six days a week the year round and always have something on hand to sell that somebody else wants to buy.—Spartan.

A Neighbor's Kind Word.

Our good friend and neighbor the Pickens SENTINEL has just celebrated its twentieth birthday with an editorial article of characteristic strength and modesty, speaking of the country in the most complimentary terms and pledging its fidelity to the continuance in the future and purpose it has hitherto devoted itself to. The people of Pickens for whom the SENTINEL has been a faithful friend and representative, are to be congratulated on the long life and prosperity of so good a newspaper. The SENTINEL does not have much glitter or noise or pretension about it, but it is as true as steel and has always had brains, honesty, hard work and courage in its management.—Greenville News 6th inst.
